PREFACE.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE, SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA.

The compilation of the Blue Book involves a vast amount of labor and the interested coöperation of a large number of persons who contribute to its completeness and success without any adequate recognition or hope of any reward beyond the gratification of public spirit. Correspondence must be carried on or communication in some way had with members of the legislature and some attachés, one hundred and thirty in all, to secure photographs and material for biographies, and with the various State officials and judges of the higher courts for the same purpose; with the county clerks of the fifty-eight counties; with the city clerks of the incorporated cities and towns, of which there are now some two hundred in California; with the heads of departments of the city and county of San Francisco; with the Secretaries of the States, Territories, and Island possessions of the United States, of which there are fifty-three; with members of Congress from California; with the various departments of the Federal Government at Washington, and with a large number of Federal officials in this State; more fully with the various State Boards and the heads of the many State institutions of California, who are, perhaps, more largely concerned in having proper representation in the publication.

Thus, more than six hundred persons contribute in some manner toward the production of this volume, and the arrangement and compiling of that mass of material is no small task on the part of the publisher. A large number of these contributors are not even remotely interested in the Blue Book in a personal way, and, unfortunately, by reason of the small number of volumes provided for by the act which authorizes this publication, it is not possible even to reward these persons by sending them a copy. It is only by this acknowledgment, therefore, that recognition can be made of their valuable assistance.

In this connection it is desired to acknowledge assistance in the work of obtaining photographs to Burton M. Hodson of Sacramento, Stockton, and Oakland, to Bushnell, of Sacramento, Oakland, San José, and San Francisco, to Vaughn & Keith and Habenicht, of San Francisco, who furnished the photographs for use in connection with the biographies; for photographic views, to Harold McCurry of Sacramento, who furnished the views for the State Capitol and other illustrations; Mrs. Alice Hare, of Santa Clara, for the residence of Governor Alvarado (by courtesy of M. Rieder of Los Angeles); W. R. Stone, for the views of the Yosemite Valley; the Pillsbury Picture Co. of San Francisco; the photographic department of the Southern Pacific Company, which furnished the picture of Colton Hall, restored; also to the California Alaska-Yukon Exposition Commission, by permission of which a number of half-tones are reproduced which were used in the publication of the book "California" distributed at the Seattle Exposition.

The Blue Book for 1909 has been carefully edited as to its historical features, and material added to increase its value in that respect; rearrangement has also taken place in the contents since the edition of 1907, with a view to the presentation of its statistics in connected form, and its illustrations have been largely increased.

As the act for the publication of this volume provides that copies shall be sent to the Governor and Secretary of State of each State in the Union, and to the Congressional Library at Washington, and as in other ways a large number of copies find their way into other states or are seen by visitors to our libraries, the Blue Book has been compiled with a view to making it not only of interest and value to the officials and other people of this State who may use the publication, but also a credit to California wherever the book may circulate among people residing beyond our borders.

Very respectfully,

B. F. Curry.

Secretary of State.

AUTHORITY FOR PUBLICATION.

This volume is published under authority of and its distribution provided for by the following Act of the Legislature:

CHAPTER XVI.

An act to provide for the compilation, printing, binding, publishing, and distribution of a Legislative Manual and State Blue Book, or Roster, and repealing conflicting acts.

Approved February 12, 1903; Stats. 1903, page 19.

The People of the State of California, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. The Secretary of State is hereby authorized to compile, or cause to be compiled, published and distributed seven thousand five hundred copies of a Legislative Manual, State Blue Book, or Roster. The volume shall be ready to distribute at the beginning of the next fiscal year, and at the same time biennially thereafter.

SEC. 2. The volumes shall be distributed as follows:

To the Governor of the State, fifty copies.

To each elective State Officer, Senator, and Member of the Assembly, twenty copies.

To the Clerk, Sheriff, and District Attorney of every county of the State, one copy each.

To every Judge of the Supreme Court, Supreme Court Commissioners, and Judges of the Superior Court, one copy each.

To the Mayor of every city, or Chairman of its Board of Trustees in this State, one copy each.

To the State Library, twenty copies.

To every public and every law library in this State, one copy each.

To the Governor and Secretary of State of every State in the Union, one copy each.

To the Congressional Library at Washington, D. C., five copies.

To each high school in this State, one copy.

The remainder of the volumes shall be distributed at discretion by the Secretary of State.

SEC. 3. The acts of March thirty-first, eighteen hundred and ninety-one, and March twenty-third, eighteen hundred and ninety-three, on same subject, and all other acts in conflict with the provisions of this act, are hereby repealed.

SEC. 4. This act shall take effect from and after its passage.

The State Capitol.

THE STATE CAPITOL OF CALIFORNIA.

Located in the midst of a spacious park of over thirty-three acres in extent, an area covered with stretches of green sward studded by an interesting variety of trees and shrubs obtained from many climes and countries; standing on a slight eminence sufficient to give it a commanding aspect over its surroundings, the ascent from the ordinary level attained on the four sides by means of two gently sloping grass covered terraces, but the building itself easily reached by means of broad walks and carriage drives—the California State Capitol is one of the best constructed, most substantial, commodious, and beautiful capitols in the United States.

Work on the foundation of the structure was commenced on September 24, 1860. The corner stone was laid with imposing Masonic ceremonies on May 15, 1861, and the building was completed according to the original plans as amended, which left the attic and basement unfinished, in the year 1874. The Capitol was first occupied by the Governor and other State officers on November 26, 1869, the Supreme Court met in the building for the first time on December 3, 1869, and the legislature took formal possession of the structure on December 6, 1869. The occasion was observed by the firing of a salute and a general display of flags in Sacramento. The cost of construction was $2,600,000.

During the years 1906-07-08, under the administration of Governors Geo. C. Pardee and J. N. Gillett, the State Capitol Commission, composed of the Governor, the Secretary of State and the State Treasurer, expended the sum of $372,925 in completing the attic and basement, remodeling parts of the interior, installing new engine room machinery and steam heating plant, replumbing and rewiring the building throughout for telephone, telegraph and electric lighting purposes, and furnishing it with new electric light fixtures, putting in two new elevators and dynamos, cementing the floors of the basement and of the third and fourth stories, tiling the second story corridor with mosaic, putting in iron stairways throughout, from the basement to the top of the dome, putting on a steel and concrete and asphaltum roof, repainting the interior and exterior of the building, etc., and making the structure as nearly fireproof as possible. Only the doors, window frames, a few of the floors on the first and second stories, and the furniture in the offices, are of wood, and these few wooden floors are laid on brick and cement.

The total cost of the building, including this work, was $2,972,925. Competent architects have stated that the building can not be duplicated for $5,000,000.

The plans of the Capitol were drawn by Mr. F. M. Butler and were selected by the commission on May 19, 1860, as the best and most artistic of seven competitive plans submitted. Mr. Reuben Clark was appointed superintending architect, which position he held until the latter part of 1865, when he had to resign on account of ill health. On January 1, 1866, Mr. G. P. Cummings was appointed superintending architect; later Mr. A. A. Bennett succeeded Mr. Cummings, and the building was completed under his supervision.

Messrs. Sutton & Weeks were the architects of the remodeling work now completed, their plans having been selected by the Board of Capitol Commissioners from five competitive sets submitted. The board secured the services of Mr. H. A. Schulze as consulting architect, and Mr. S. W. Getchell was appointed superintendent of construction. The contracts for repairing and remodeling were let on April 13, 1906; the work was completed in the middle of 1908. The earthquake and fire of April 18, 1906, which nearly destroyed San Francisco and damaged other cities and towns in the region around the bay, made it almost impossible to obtain building material and secure the services of mechanics during the wonderful period of civic reconstruction which followed, and caused a delay in the completion of the work on the building of more than a year, but the State Capitol as it now stands is a credit to the architects, the superintendents of construction, the contractors, and to the mechanics who worked on the building.

The architecture is of the florid Roman-Corinthian style. The building faces the west, has a basement and four stories surmounted by a dome, and contains 146 rooms. The remodeling work recently completed added 70 rooms to the original number. The average size of the offices on the first and second floors is 28 by 28 feet, the height 20 feet on the first floor and 18½ feet on the second. The Appellate Court room is 28 by 30 feet and 20 feet high. Some half-dozen of the offices are a few feet smaller than the average given.

The exterior walls of the basement and first story are constructed of California granite, and the three upper stories are of hard burned brick covered with mastic and four coats of white paint. The walls average six feet in thickness, and the stone and brick were laid in cement mortar.

The north, south and west walls are of perpendicular and horizontal construction. At the north and south ends, on the east or rear side, an L or wing 81 feet in width extends out 58 feet from the main line of the building, and from the center of the building on the same side a semi-circular wing 69 feet across at its greatest width is built out for a distance of 54 feet. This middle wing is entirely occupied by the Library.

The following are the principal measurements of the State Capitol in detail:

| Size of Senate chamber..... | 73 x 56 feet |
| Size of Assembly chamber..... | 73 x 75 feet |
| Height of Senate and Assembly chambers..... | 36½ feet |

There are two entrances on the east, one each on the north and south, and one—the main entrance—on the west side of the building. The entrances to the building on the north, south and west sides are through massive arched granite porticos, supporting colonnades of iron pillars making other porticos on the second or legislative halls story. The main entrance to the building, facing the west, is through a storm door, there being also a small hardwood door on either side of the storm door. The corridor at the entrance is of Utah white sandstone trimmed with a California marble base and large panels of California onyx framed with marble. The doors of the other entrances to the building, to the portico on the front of the building on the second story, and to the entrances to the Assembly and Senate chambers are of massive hand-carved walnut.

The basement is used for storage and record rooms for the several state officers, for the state archives, and for the armory, for the receiving and shipping of goods, books, etc., by the State Janitor, State Library, Armory and other departments. The engine rooms, dynamo and meter rooms are also located in the basement.

The corridors of the first floor are beautifully tiled; a colored representation of the great seal of the State in the floor panels 6 feet square ornaments the entrance to each corridor. The rotunda is richly and artistically decorated with colored stucco work, the wall panels are scroll and figure work, and to the height of the first story is ornamented with scrolls, and representations of mining, of science, literature, art, music, seed time, and harvest. There are niches in the rotunda on the first and second floors which may some day hold marble statues, if the example is followed of the late D. O. Mills, who donated the magnificent statue of Columbus and Isabella, which stands in the center of the rotunda, facing the entrance.

On the first floor are located the offices of the Governor, Secretary of State, State Controller, Board of Equalization, State Treasurer, Clerk of the Supreme Court, Attorney General, the law library, the court room of the Second District Court of Appeal, the chambers of the judges, and the offices of the clerk, bailiff, and stenographer of the court. These offices are all handsomely decorated and richly furnished.

The main feature of the decorations in the Governor's private and business offices is the California poppy in cloud and sky effects on the ceiling and frieze of the walls, which are tinted a delicate green with a five-foot base of pure white lincrusta decorated with gold leaf scrolls. The walls of the Governor's reception room are tinted a dark red, the decorations on the ceiling and frieze being paintings of California wild flowers. The furniture in the Governor's rooms is mahogany with the exception of the record cases, which are of hand carved black walnut. The carpets in the Governor's private and business offices are red Wiltons, and in the reception room the carpet is a rich green velvet. Oil painted portraits of former Governors of California are hung in the several rooms of the state officers; most of them, however, are to be seen on the walls of the Governor's offices.

The rooms of all of the state officers are beautifully and uniquely decorated and furnished, no two being alike. The walls of the rooms are tinted and the ceilings and friezes are decorated with the seal of the state and with flowers, such as roses, magnolias, and wild flowers, or scroll work touched up with gold leaf as the central idea; or they are painted to represent a piece of tapestry or an oriental rug. The furniture is either mahogany, black walnut, or oak. The furniture and decorations, and the carpets, or hardwood, or ricolith floors, as the case may be, are arranged so as to produce a harmonious and pleasing effect.

In accordance with the wishes and tastes of Judges Chipman, Hart, and Burnett, the Appellate Court room is plainly, but richly, furnished and decorated. The doors, baseboards, window-cases, and judge's bench are of Philippine janizero, a wood having the appearance of light, reddish mahogany, but of richer quality. The table for the attorneys and the chairs in the courtroom are mahogany, and the floor is laid with figured green Wilton carpet. The walls and ceiling are painted plainly, the walls being a delicate green and the ceiling and frieze a harmonious color scheme.

On the second floor are located the offices of the Lieutenant-Governor, State Printer, State Janitor, State Forester, and Surveyor General; the Senate chamber also is located in the south L and the Assembly chamber in the north L on this floor, east of the corridor. In accordance with custom, the Senate chamber is furnished in red and the Assembly in green, the desks of the members are of black walnut, and those of the presiding officer and clerks are of hand-carved mahogany. Neither one of these rooms is decorated, and the ceilings and walls of both are white with the exception of the lobbies under the galleries, which are painted green in the Assembly and blue in the Senate. A five-foot lincrusta border above the marble base is painted red in the Senate and green in the Assembly chamber. In the Senate chamber hangs a magnificent oil painting of Washington, and in the Assembly chamber one of Lincoln. On the frieze over the Lieutenant-Governor's chair in the Senate chamber is the following Latin motto in gold leaf: "Senatoris est civitatis libertatem tueri," which being translated means, "It is the duty of a senator to guard the liberty of the commonwealth." On the frieze over the Speaker's chair in the Assembly is the following Latin motto: "Legislatorum est justas leges condere," which being translated means, "It is the duty of legislators to make just laws." The Senate and Assembly chambers are wainscoted with California marble, and are large, roomy, and well lighted. The acoustics are excellent. Ample accommodations are provided for the presiding officers, clerks, and sergeants-at-arms of the two houses in rooms adjacent to the chambers, and a large gallery in each house for the sight-seeing public. During the Sacramento terms of the Supreme Court the judges sit in bank in the Senate chamber, and hold court in departments in the appellate courtroom.

The corridor of this, the second floor, is tiled with marble mosaic, in panels; in each corner and the center are representations of bunches of California poppies.

The library has a large semi-circular room off the corridor on this floor; in fact, the library has been assigned rooms on every floor in the building, and occupies about twenty per cent of the floor space of the entire Capitol.

On the third floor are the galleries of the Senate and Assembly chambers, and the offices of the State Board of Examiners, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Adjutant General, Horticultural Commissioner, State Veterinarian, State Board of Health, State Commission in Lunacy, and State Engineering Department.

The fourth floor, with the exception of the space occupied by the library and three rooms that have been assigned to the architect's department of the State Engineer's office, has been arranged for legislative committee rooms and employes' offices, which were much appreciated by the members at the last legislative session, as theretofore there had not been enough rooms in the Capitol to provide a sufficient number of committee rooms for the accommodation of the legislature.

At this height the scenic beauty impresses the visitor. The view will repay one for climbing the iron stairs from the fourth floor level to the top of the dome. If one should get tired, he can stop at the first or second landings, one quarter or half-way to the top, and walk around the outside of the dome, at either of those stations, and the view will be delightful; but if he will continue on and climb the winding stairs to the very top he will obtain a magnificent panoramic view of the Sacramento Valley and its surrounding mountain ranges. On the east can be seen the Sierra Nevadas, on the west the Coast Range, away off to the north the snow-capped peak of Mount Shasta, and to the south, Mount Diablo. The course of the Sacramento and of the American rivers can be traced for miles through the valley to where the American is seen to empty into the Sacramento at the northwest corner of the capital city, and their course as one river can be traced for miles on its winding way towards the sea.

THE CAPITOL (MAIN OR WEST FACADE), p. 18.—The exterior effects of the reconstruction work on the building appear in the removal of the numerous pieces of sculpture which formerly were conspicuous upon the roof; the building up of the parapet walls some two feet and the raising of the roof to meet the new level, thus adding to the height of the fourth story; the row of upper windows cut to admit light and air to the committee rooms in the front and the library department in the rear of the building on the fourth floor. The heavy growth of trees in the park is noticeable in this picture.

THE CAPITOL (REAR OR EAST SIDE), p. 20.—The semicircular wing in the center and all of the fourth story on this side is occupied by the State Library. The wing on the left or south end contains the Senate chamber, and the Assembly chamber is in the wing on the right or north end of the building.

COLUMBUS'S LAST APPEAL TO ISABELLA.

"I will assume the undertaking on behalf of the crown of Castile, and will pledge my jewels to defray the expenses of it, if the funds in the treasury shall be found inadequate."

Statue of Columbus Before Queen Isabella of Spain.

In the Rotunda of the State Capitol. Weight about five tons. Presented to the State by Darius Ogden Mills.

According to the historian Prescott, these are the words, uttered in May, 1492, by Queen Isabella of Spain, the consort of Ferdinand II, when, after listening to the theories of Christopher Columbus, she became his patron, and furnished funds to equip the caravels "Nina," "Pinta," and "Santa Maria" in an expedition to discover a western ocean route to India, and by that act made possible, at that time, the discovery of the western hemisphere, and laid the foundation for its colonization and subsequent development and, indirectly, for the existence of these United States of America.

The statue embodying this sentiment now stands in the center of the rotunda of the Capitol of the State of California—the most western State of this Union. The statue is of heroic size. Queen Isabella is represented as sitting upon her throne with a thoughtful and glorified countenance, uttering the above words, which are assumed to be fairly historically correct. Columbus is kneeling at her left side, holding a sphere in his hand, by aid of which he is demonstrating his theory of the rotundity of the earth, while at the Queen's right kneels her personal page in wonderment and undisguised interest. The figures are noble in their bearing, and have called forth the highest commendation of the artistic world, while the delicacy of the work and the expressive mien and attitudes have elicited general admiration.

This exquisite and valuable piece of statuary was executed by Larkin Goldsmith Mead, an American sculptor of international fame, in Florence, between the years 1868 and 1874, and was originally sold by the artist to Mrs. Legrande Lockwood of New York, who subsequently sold it to Darius Ogden Mills in 1882 for the sum of thirty thousand dollars ($30,000.00) gold, for the purpose of presentation to the State of California. The offer of this statue to the State of California was informally made by Mr. Mills in the spring of 1883, and upon assurance of its acceptance by the State, was shipped from Florence, Italy, and arrived in Sacramento about the first of September, 1883. It was placed in the center of the rotunda of the State Capitol, where it now stands, and was formally presented to the State by Mr. Edgar Mills, representing his brother, D. O. Mills, the donor, and accepted on behalf of the State of California by Governor George Stoneman, on December 22, 1883.

DARIUS OGDEN MILLS was born in North Salem, Westchester County, New York, September 25, 1825. He was descended from an old family founded in America by a pioneer who came from the north of England near the Scottish border before the American Revolution; received his education at the North Salem Academy and at Mount Pleasant Academy in Sing Sing, leaving the last named institution at the age of seventeen to begin work as clerk in New York. In 1847 he removed to Buffalo to become a partner in, and to act as cashier of, The Merchants' Bank of Erie County.

Retaining his interest in the bank, in December, 1848, he left Buffalo for California, arriving in June, 1849, and going almost immediately to Sacramento, where by carrying on trade with the miners, he had by November, 1849, accumulated about $40,000, at which time he returned to Buffalo to sell out his interest for the purpose of making California his home.

The year 1850 found him again in business in Sacramento, in which year he started The Bank of D. O. Mills, which to this day is one of the leading banks in Sacramento, and is now known as The National Bank of D. O. Mills & Co.

At the time of the organization of the Bank of California he became its president and remained at the head of this institution until 1873. In 1875 he again became president of the bank, retiring in 1878.

He served as regent and treasurer of the University of California from 1874 to 1881. His interest in the University was demonstrated by his endowment of a professorship of intellectual and moral philosophy and civil polity, at an outlay of $75,000, which has since increased in value to over $100,000.

In 1880, Mr. Mills transferred his home and a portion of his capital to the city of New York, of which city he was thereafter a resident, but he maintained a winter home at Millbrae, California, about twenty miles south of San Francisco. Mr. Mills died at Millbrae on January 3, 1910, at the age of 84 years, and on the 14th of January his remains were interred in the family vault in Sleepy Hollow Cemetery at North Tarrytown, State of New York.

Two magnificent buildings erected by him, each bearing his name, are located on in San Francisco and the other in New York. He was a director of the Bank of New York; trustee of the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company; of the Metropolitan Trust Company; of the United States Trust Company; of the Metropolitan Museum of Art; of the American Museum of Natural History; member of the American Geographical Society; founder of the Training School for Male Nurses, and of Mill Hotels Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4, for homeless men in the city of New York. Among the many charities which Mr. Mills encouraged, these hotels alone are a monument worthy of the name of any man.

LARKIN G. MEAD, the sculptor, was born in Chesterfield, New Hampshire January 3, 1835, but at an early age removed to Brattleboro, Vermont. His early artistic talent attracted the attention of Nicholas Longworth of Cincinnati, father of the present Congressman of that name from an Ohio district, who provided for the boy's artistic education. After executing several notable pieces of sculpture Mead moved to Florence in 1862, where he resided up to the time of his death. His most noted works are his statue of Ethan Allen in the Hall of Representatives, in Washington, and his magnificent statue of Abraham Lincoln for the President's monument in Springfield, Illinois. Besides these noted works, the "Recording Angel," "The Green Mountain Boy," the colossal statue of "Vermont," which crowns the dome of the State Capitol at Montpelier, the statue of Ethan Allen in the State House of Vermont, the "Returned Soldier," "Columbus's Last Appeal to Isabella" (the subject of this article), "America," executed for the soldiers' monument at St. Johnsbury, Vermont, the "Discovery of America," "Cavalry," "Infantry," "Artillery," "Navy," and the "Mississippi River" all bear witness to his artistic ability and contribute to his fame as one of America's greatest sculptors.

CAPITOL PARK.

The grounds within which the State Capitol stands extend from Tenth street on the west to Fifteenth street on the east, and from L street on the north to N street on the south, taking in ten blocks in all of the city of Sacramento, including the space which would otherwise be occupied by intersecting streets, and comprising an area of 33.05 acres. The portion contained within the area lying between the boundary of the south line of L street to the north line of N street, and from the east line of Tenth street to the west line of Twelfth street, and containing 11.90 acres, was donated to the State by the city of Sacramento; the portion contained within the area lying between the boundary of the south line of L street and the north line of N street, and from the west line of Twelfth street to the west line of Fifteenth street, containing 21.15 acres, was purchased by the State for the sum of $100,000.

The grounds are thickly planted with trees and shrubs of over one hundred varieties, procured from all parts of the world. The first work of making the park was commenced about the time of the occupancy of the State Capitol, in 1869, and the growth of the collection has since steadily continued under the direction of the Capitol Commissioners. The identity of a great number of these trees and shrubs was entirely lost, and no systematic and thorough effort was made to classify them until in July, 1905, when the Commission secured the services of Miss Alice Eastwood, head of the Horticultural Department of the Academy of Sciences, at San Francisco, to do the work. Under her direction the park was thoroughly gone over and its growth labeled with botanical as well as common names, together with the countries of nativity. Herewith are given the common names of one hundred and sixteen varieties of trees and the principal shrubs, together with the countries of their origin:

A short distance east of the State Capitol about half an acre of the park is set apart as a memorial grove, dedicated and presented to the State on May 1, 1897, by the ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic, Department of California. The trees forming this historic grove were transplanted from the prominent battlefields of the Civil War, and other places noted in American history. Among them are several varieties not named in the foregoing list, such as the water oak, maple, mulberry, ash, dogwood, and Texas rosebud.

CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA.

PREAMBLE AND DECLARATION OF RIGHTS.

PREAMBLE.

Purpose of the Constitution.

We, the people of the State of California, grateful to Almighty God for our freedom, in order to secure and perpetuate its blessings, do establish this Constitution.

ARTICLE I.

DECLARATION OF RIGHTS.

Inalienable rights of men.

SECTION 1. All men are by nature free and independent, and have certain inalienable rights, among which are those of enjoying and defending life and liberty; acquiring, possessing, and protecting property; and pursuing and obtaining safety and happiness.

Government for and by the people.

SEC. 2. All political power is inherent in the people. Government is instituted for the protection, security, and benefit of the people, and they have the right to alter or reform the same whenever the public good may require it.

California a part of the Union.

SEC. 3. The State of California is an inseparable part of the American Union, and the Constitution of the United States is the supreme law of the land.

Freedom of religion.

SEC. 4. The free exercise and enjoyment of religious profession and worship, without discrimination or preference, shall forever be guaranteed in this State; and no person shall be rendered incompetent to be a witness or juror on account of his opinions on matters of religious belief; but the liberty of conscience hereby secured shall not be so construed as to excuse acts of licentiousness, or justify practices inconsistent with the peace or safety of this State.

Habeas corpus.

SEC. 5. The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended unless when, in cases of rebellion or invasion, the public safety may require its suspension.

Bail—Witnesses.

SEC. 6. All persons shall be bailable by sufficient sureties, unless for capital offenses when the proof is evident or the presumption great. Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed; nor shall cruel or unusual punishment be inflicted. Witnesses shall not be unreasonably detained, nor confined in any room where criminals are actually imprisoned.

Jury trial.

SEC. 7. The right of trial by jury shall be secured to all, and remain inviolate; but in civil actions three fourths of the jury may render a verdict. A trial by jury may be waived in all criminal cases not amounting to felony, by the consent of both parties, expressed in open court, and in civil actions by the consent of the parties, signified in such manner as may be prescribed by law. In civil actions and cases of misdemeanor, the jury may consist of twelve, or of any number less than twelve upon which the parties may agree in open court.

Indictments—Information—Grand jury.

SEC. 8. Offenses heretofore required to be prosecuted by indictment shall be prosecuted by information, after examination and commitment by a magistrate, or by indictment, with or without such examination and commitment, as may be prescribed by law. A grand jury shall be drawn and summoned at least once a year in each county.

Freedom of speech—Libel suits.

SEC. 9. Every citizen may freely speak, write, and publish his sentiments on all subjects, being responsible for the abuse of that right; and no law shall be passed to restrain or abridge the liberty of speech or of the press. In all criminal prosecutions for libels, the truth may be given in evidence to the jury; and if it shall appear to the jury that the matter charged as libelous is true, and was published with good motives, and for justifiable ends, the party shall be acquitted; and the jury shall have the right to determine the law and the fact. Indictments found, or information laid, for publications in newspapers, shall be tried in the county where such newspapers have their publication office, or in the county where the party alleged to be libeled resided at the time of the alleged publication, unless the place of trial shall be changed for good cause.

Freedom of assembling and petitioning.

SEC. 10. The people shall have the right to freely assemble together to consult for the common good, to instruct their representatives, and to petition the Legislature for redress of grievances.

Laws to be uniform.

SEC. 11. All laws of a general nature shall have a uniform operation.

Military subordinate to civil power.

SEC. 12. The military shall be subordinate to the civil power. No standing army shall be kept up by this State in time of peace, and no soldier shall, in time of peace, be quartered in any house without the consent of the owner; nor in time of war, except in the manner prescribed by law.

Criminal trials—Rights of the accused.

SEC. 13. In criminal prosecutions, in any court whatever, the party accused shall have the right to a speedy and public trial; to have the process of the court to compel the attendance of witnesses in his behalf, and to appear and defend, in person and with counsel. No person shall be twice put in jeopardy for the same offense; nor be compelled, in any criminal case, to be a witness against himself; nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property without due process of law. The Legislature shall have power to provide for the taking, in the presence of the party accused and his counsel, of depositions of witnesses, in criminal cases other than cases of homicide, when there is reason to believe that the witness, from inability or other cause, will not attend at the trial.

Rights of private property.

SEC. 14. Private property shall not be taken or damaged for public use without just compensation having been first made to, or paid into court for, the owner, and no right of way shall be appropriated to the use of any corporation other than municipal until full compensation therefor be first made in money or ascertained and paid into court for the owner, irrespective of any benefit from any improvement proposed by such corporation, which compensation shall be ascertained by a jury unless a jury be waived, as in other civil cases in a court of record, as shall be prescribed by law.

Imprisonment for debt and for militia fines forbidden.

SEC. 15. No person shall be imprisoned for debt in any civil action, on mesne or final process, unless in cases of fraud, nor in civil actions for torts, except in cases of willful injury to person or property; and no person shall be imprisoned for a militia fine in time of peace.

Bills of attainder—Ex post facto laws—Obligation of contracts.

SEC. 16. No bill of attainder, ex post facto law, or law impairing the obligations of contracts, shall ever be passed.

Rights of foreigners.

SEC. 17. Foreigners of the white race, or of African descent, eligible to become citizens of the United States under the naturalization laws thereof, while bona fide residents of this State, shall have the same rights in respect to the acquisition, possession, enjoyment, transmission, and inheritance of all property, other than real estate, as native born citizens; provided, that such aliens owning real estate at the time of the adoption of this amendment may remain such owners; and provided further, that the Legislature may, by statute, provide for the disposition of real estate which shall hereafter be acquired by such aliens by descent or devise. [Amendment adopted November 6, 1894.]

Slavery prohibited.

SEC. 18. Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, unless for the punishment of crime, shall ever be tolerated in this State.

General warrants.

SEC. 19. The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects, against unreasonable seizures and searches, shall not be violated; and no warrant shall issue but on probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, particularly describing the place to be searched and the person and things to be seized.

Treason.

SEC. 20. Treason against the State shall consist only in levying war against it, adhering to its enemies, or giving them aid and comfort. No person shall be convicted of treason unless on the evidence of two witnesses to the same overt act, or confession in open court.

Special privileges, limitations on.

SEC. 21. No special privileges or immunities shall ever be granted which may not be altered, revoked, or repealed by the Legislature, nor shall any citizen, or class of citizens, be granted privileges or immunities which, upon the same terms, shall not be granted to all citizens.

Constitution mandatory.

SEC. 22. The provisions of this Constitution are mandatory and prohibitory, unless by express words they are declared to be otherwise.

Rights retained by the people.

SEC. 23. This enumeration of rights shall not be construed to impair or deny others retained by the people.

Property qualification forbidden.

SEC. 24. No property qualification shall ever be required for any person to vote or hold office.

ARTICLE II.RIGHT OF SUFFRAGE.*Who may vote; who may not.

SECTION 1. Every native male citizen of the United States, every male person who shall have acquired the rights of citizenship under or by virtue of the treaty of Queretaro, and every male naturalized citizen thereof, who shall have become such ninety days prior to any election, of the age of twenty-one years, who shall have been resident of the State one year next preceding the election, and of the county in which he claims his vote ninety days, and in the election precinct thirty days, shall be entitled to vote at all elections which are now or may hereafter be authorized by law; provided, no native of China, no idiot, no insane person, no person convicted of any infamous crime, no person hereafter convicted of the embezzlement or misappropriation of public money, and no person who shall not be able to read the Constitution in the English language and write his name, shall ever exercise the privileges of an elector in this State; provided, that the provisions of this amendment relative to an educational qualification shall not apply to any person prevented by a physical disability from complying with its requisitions, nor to any person who now has the right to vote, nor to any person who shall be sixty years of age and upwards at the time this amendment shall take effect. [Amendment adopted November 6, 1894.]

Privileges of voters.

SEC. 2. Electors shall in all cases, except treason, felony, or breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest on the days of election, during their attendance at such election, going to and returning therefrom.

Primary elections.

SEC. 2½. The Legislature shall have the power to enact laws relative to the election of delegates to conventions of political parties; and the Legislature shall enact laws providing for the direct nomination of candidates for public office, by electors, political parties, or organizations of electors without conventions, at elections to be known and designated as primary elections; and also to determine the tests and conditions upon which electors, political parties, or organizations of electors may participate in any such primary election. It shall also be lawful for the Legislature to prescribe that any such primary election shall be mandatory and obligatory. The Legislature shall also have the power to establish the rates of compensation for primary election officers serving at such primary elections in any city, or city and county, or county, or other subdivision of a designated population without making such compensation uniform, and for such purpose such law may declare the population of any city, city and county, county or political subdivision. Provided, however, that until the Legislature shall enact a direct primary election law under the provisions of this section, the present primary election law shall remain in force and effect. [Amendment adopted November 3, 1908.]

Voters not obliged to perform military duty on election day.

SEC. 3. No elector shall be obliged to perform militia duty on the day of election except in time of war or public danger.

Residence of voters.

SEC. 4. For the purpose of voting, no person shall be deemed to have gained or lost a residence by reason of his presence or absence while employed in the service of the United States; nor while engaged in the navigation of the waters of this State, or of the United States, or of the high seas; nor while a student at any seminary of learning; nor while kept in any almshouse or other asylum, at public expense; nor while confined in any public prison.

Elections to be by ballot or otherwise.

SEC. 5. All elections by the people shall be by ballot or by such other method as may be prescribed by law; provided, that secrecy in voting be preserved. [Amendment adopted November 3, 1896.]

Voting machines.

SEC. 6. The inhibitions of this Constitution to the contrary notwithstanding, the Legislature shall have power to provide that in different parts of the State different methods may be employed for receiving and registering the will of the people as expressed at elections, and may provide that mechanical devices may be used within designated subdivisions of the State at the option of the local authority indicated by the Legislature for that purpose. [New section; adopted November 4, 1902.]

ARTICLE III.

DISTRIBUTION OF POWERS.

Three departments of government.

SECTION 1. The powers of the government of the State of California shall be divided into three separate departments—the legislative, executive, and judicial; and no person charged with the exercise of powers properly belonging to one of these departments shall exercise any functions appertaining to either of the others, except as in this Constitution expressly directed or permitted.

ARTICLE IV.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

Legislative power.

SECTION 1. The legislative power of this State shall be vested in a Senate and Assembly, which shall be designated the Legislature of the State of California; and the enacting clause of every law shall be as follows: "The People of the State of California, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows."

Sessions of the Legislature.

SEC. 2. The sessions of the Legislature shall commence at twelve o'clock M. on the first Monday after the first day of January next succeeding the election of its members, and after the election held in the year 1880, shall be biennial, unless the Governor shall, in the interim, convene the Legislature by proclamation. No bill shall be introduced in either house forty days after the commencement of each session without the consent of three fourths of the members thereof. [Amendment adopted November 3, 1908.]

Election of Members of the Assembly.

SEC. 3. Members of the Assembly shall be elected in the year eighteen hundred and seventy-nine, at the time and in the manner now provided by law. The second election of Members of the Assembly, after the adoption of this Constitution, shall be on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, eighteen hundred and eighty. Thereafter Members of the Assembly shall be chosen biennially, and their term of office shall be two years; and each election shall be on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, unless otherwise ordered by the Legislature.

Election of Senators and qualifications of Members of Legislature.

SEC. 4. Senators shall be chosen for the term of four years, at the same time and places as Members of the Assembly, and no person shall be a member of the Senate or Assembly who has not been a citizen and inhabitant of the State three years, and of the district for which he shall be chosen one year, next before his election.

Number of Senators and Members of the Assembly.

SEC. 5. The Senate shall consist of forty members, and the Assembly of eighty members, to be elected by districts, numbered as hereinafter provided. The seats of the twenty Senators elected in the year eighteen hundred and eighty-two from the odd-numbered districts shall be vacated at the expiration of the second year, so that one half of the Senators shall be elected every two years; provided, that all the Senators elected at the first election under this Constitution shall hold office for the term of three years.

Senatorial and Assembly districts.

SEC. 6. For the purpose of choosing members of the Legislature, the State shall be divided into forty senatorial and eighty assembly districts, as nearly equal in population as may be, and composed of contiguous territory, to be called senatorial and assembly districts. Each senatorial district shall choose one Senator, and each assembly district shall choose one Member of Assembly. The senatorial districts shall be numbered from one to forty, inclusive, in numerical order, and the assembly districts shall be numbered from one to eighty in the same order, commencing at the northern boundary of the State and ending at the southern boundary thereof. In the formation of such districts no county, or city and county, shall be divided, unless it contains sufficient population within itself to form two or more districts, nor shall a part of any county, or of any city and county, be united with any other county, or city and county, in forming any district. The census taken under the direction of the Congress of the United States in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty, and every ten years thereafter, shall be the basis of fixing and adjusting the legislative districts; and the Legislature shall, at its first session after each census, adjust such districts and reapportion the representation so as to preserve them as near equal in population as may be. But in making such adjustments no person who is not eligible to become citizens of the United States, under the naturalization laws, shall be counted as forming a part of the population of any district. Until such districting as herein provided for shall be made, Senators and Assemblymen shall be elected by the districts according to the apportionment now provided for by law.

Each house to choose its officers and judge of the qualifications of its members.

SEC. 7. Each house shall choose its officers, and judge of the qualifications, elections, and returns of its members.

Quorum.

SEC. 8. A majority of each house shall constitute a quorum to do business, but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and may compel the attendance of absent members in such manner and under such penalties as each house may provide.

Rules of proceeding, and expulsion of members.

SEC. 9. Each house shall determine the rule of its proceeding, and may, with the concurrence of two thirds of all the members elected, expel a member.

Journals.

SEC. 10. Each house shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and publish the same; and the yeas and nays of the members of either house, on any question, shall at the desire of any three members present, be entered on the journal.

Members privileged from arrest.

SEC. 11. Members of the Legislature shall, in all cases, except treason, felony and breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest, and shall not be subject to any civil process during the session of the Legislature, nor for fifteen days next before the commencement and after the termination of each session.

Vacancies.

SEC. 12. When vacancies occur in either house, the Governor, or the person exercising the functions of the Governor, shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies.

Meetings to be open.

SEC. 13. The doors of each house shall be open, except on such occasions as, in the opinion of the house, may require secrecy.

Adjournment.

SEC. 14. Neither house shall, without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than three days, nor to any place other than that in which they may be sitting. No member shall draw pay for any recess or adjournment for a longer time than three days.

Laws, how passed.

SEC. 15. No law shall be passed except by bill. Nor shall any bill be put upon its final passage until the same, with the amendments thereto, shall have been printed for the use of the members; nor shall any bill become a law unless the same be read on three several days in each house, unless, in case of urgency, two thirds of the house where such bill may be pending shall, by a vote of yeas and nays, dispense with this provision. Any bill may originate in either house, but may be amended or rejected by the other; and on the final passage of all bills they shall be read at length, and the vote shall be by yeas and nays upon each bill separately, and shall be entered on the journal, and no bill shall become a law without the concurrence of a majority of the members elected to each house.

Approval of bills by Governor, and veto power.

SEC. 16. Every bill which may have passed the Legislature shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the Governor. If he approve it, he shall sign it; but if not,

he shall return it, with his objections, to the house in which it originated, which shall enter such objections upon the journal and proceed to reconsider it. If after such reconsideration, it again pass both houses, by yeas and nays, two thirds of the members elected to each house voting therefor, it shall become a law, notwithstanding the Governor's objections. If any bill shall not be returned within ten days after it shall have been presented to him (Sundays excepted), the same shall become a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the Legislature, by adjournment, prevents such return, in which case it shall not become a law unless the Governor, within thirty days after such adjournment (Sundays excepted), shall sign and deposit the same in the office of the Secretary of State, in which case it shall become a law in like manner as if it had been signed by him before adjournment. If any bill presented to the Governor contains several items of appropriation of money, he may object to one or more items, while approving other portions of the bill. In such case he shall append to the bill at the time of signing it, a statement of the items to which he objects, and the reasons therefor, and the appropriation so objected to shall not take effect unless passed over the Governor's veto, as hereinbefore provided. If the Legislature be in session, the Governor shall transmit to the house in which the bill originated a copy of such statement, and the items so objected to shall be separately reconsidered in the same manner as bills which have been disapproved by the Governor. [Amendment adopted November 3, 1908.]

Impeachment.

SEC. 17. The Assembly shall have the sole power of impeachment, and all impeachments shall be tried by the Senate. When sitting for that purpose, the Senators shall be upon oath or affirmation, and no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two thirds of the members elected.

Officers subject to impeachment.

SEC. 18. The Governor, Lieutenant-Governor, Secretary of State, Controller, Treasurer, Attorney-General, Surveyor-General, Chief Justice and Associate Justices of the Supreme Court, and Judges of the Superior Court, shall be liable to impeachment for any misdemeanor in office; but judgment in such cases shall extend only to removal from office and disqualification to hold any office of honor, trust, or profit under the State; but the party convicted or acquitted shall, nevertheless, be liable to indictment, trial, and punishment, according to law. All other civil officers shall be tried for misdemeanor in office in such manner as the Legislature may provide.

Members not eligible to certain offices.

SEC. 19. No Senator or Member of Assembly shall, during the term for which he shall have been elected, be appointed to any civil office of profit under this State which shall have been created, or the emoluments of which have been increased, during such term, except such offices as may be filled by election by the people.

Certain officials not eligible to office under State Government.

SEC. 20. No person holding any lucrative office under the United States, or any other power, shall be eligible to any civil office of profit under this State; provided, that officers in the militia who receive no annual salary, local officers, or postmasters whose compensation does not exceed five hundred dollars per annum, shall not be deemed to hold lucrative offices.

Embezzlers not eligible to office.

SEC. 21. No person convicted of the embezzlement or defalcation of the public funds of the United States, or of any State, or of any county or municipality therein, shall ever be eligible to any office of honor, trust, or profit under this State, and the Legislature shall provide, by law, for the punishment of embezzlement or defalcation as a felony.

Money, how appropriated; how drawn.

SEC. 22. No money shall be drawn from the treasury but in consequence of appropriations made by law, and upon warrants duly drawn thereon by the Controller; and no money shall ever be appropriated or drawn from the State treasury for the use or benefit of any corporation, association, asylum, hospital, or any other institution not under the exclusive management and control of the State as a State institution; nor shall any grant or donation of property ever be made thereto by the State provided, that notwithstanding anything contained in this or any other section of this Constitution, the Legislature shall have the power to grant aid to institutions conducted for the support and maintenance of minor orphans, or half-orphans, or abandoned children, or aged persons in indigent circumstances—such aid to be granted by a uniform rule, and proportioned to the number of inmates of such respective institutions; provided further, that the State shall have at any time the right to inquire into the management of such institution; provided further, that whenever any county, or city and county, or city, or town shall provide for the support of minor orphans, or half-orphans, or abandoned children, or aged persons in indigent circumstances, such county, city and county, city, or town shall be entitled to receive the same pro rata appropriations as may be granted to such institutions under church or other control. An accurate statement of the receipts and expenditures of public moneys shall be attached to and published with the law at every regular session of the Legislature.

Compensation of members of the Legislature.

SEC. 23. The members of the Legislature shall receive for their services, the sum of one thousand dollars each for each regular session, to be paid at such times during the session as may be provided by law, and the sum of ten dollars each, for each day while in attendance at a special or extraordinary session, for a number of days not exceeding thirty; and mileage to be fixed by law, all paid out of the State treasury; such mileage shall not exceed ten cents per mile; and each member shall be allowed contingent expenses not exceeding twenty-five dollars per member for each regular biennial session. The legislature may also provide for additional help; but in no case shall the total expense for officers, employés and attachés exceed the sum of five hundred dollars per day for either house, at any regular or biennial session, nor the sum of two hundred dollars per day for either house, at any special or extraordinary session, nor shall the pay of any officer, employé or attaché be increased after he is elected or appointed. [Amendment adopted November 3, 1908.]

Limitation of expense for officers and employees.

SEC. 23a. The Legislature may also provide for the employment of help; but in no case shall the total expense for officers, employés and attachés exceed the sum of five hundred dollars per day for either house, at any regular or biennial session, nor the sum of two hundred dollars per day for either house at any special or extraordinary session, nor shall the pay of any officer, employé or attaché be increased after he is elected or appointed. [New section; adopted November 3, 1908.]

Every act to embrace but one subject—Amending acts.

SEC. 24. Every act shall embrace but one subject, which subject shall be expressed in its title. But if any subject shall be embraced in an act which shall not be expressed in its title, such act shall be void only as to so much thereof as shall not be expressed in its title. No law shall be revised or amended by reference to its title; but in such case the act revised or section amended shall be reënacted and published at length as revised or amended; and all laws of the State of California and all official writings, and the executive, legislative, and judicial proceedings, shall be conducted, preserved, and published in no other than the English language.

Local and special legislation forbidden.

SEC. 25. The Legislature shall not pass local or special laws in any of the following enumerated cases, that is to say:

First—Regulating the jurisdiction and duties of Justices of the Peace, Police Judges, and of Constables.

Second—For the punishment of crimes and misdemeanors.

Third—Regulating the practice of courts of justice.

Fourth—Providing for changing the venue in civil or criminal actions.

Fifth—Granting divorces.

Sixth—Changing the names of persons or places.

Seventh—Authorizing the laying out, opening, altering, maintaining or vacating roads, highways, streets, alleys, town plots, parks, cemeteries, graveyards, or public grounds not owned by the State.

Eighth—Summoning and impaneling grand and petit juries, and providing for their compensation.

Ninth—Regulating county and township business, or the election of county and township officers.

Tenth—For the assessment or collection of taxes.

Eleventh—Providing for conducting elections, or designating the places of voting, except on the organization of new counties.

Twelfth—Affecting estates of deceased persons, minors, or other persons under legal disabilities.

Thirteenth—Extending the time for the collection of taxes.

Fourteenth—Giving effect to invalid deeds, wills, or other instruments.

Fifteenth—Refunding money paid into the State treasury.

Sixteenth—Releasing or extinguishing, in whole or in part, the indebtedness, liability, or obligation of any corporation or person to this State, or to any municipal corporation therein.

Seventeenth—Declaring any person of age, or authorizing any minor to sell, lease, or incur his or her property.

Eighteenth—Legalizing, except as against the State, the unauthorized or invalid act of any officer.

Nineteenth—Granting to any corporation, association, or individual any special or exclusive right, privilege, or immunity.

Twentieth—Exempting property from taxation.

Twenty-first—Changing county seats.

Twenty-ninth—Affecting the fees or salary of any officer.

Thirtieth—Changing the law of descent or succession.

Thirty-first—Authorizing the adoption or legitimation of children.

Thirty-second—For limitation of civil or criminal actions.

Thirty-third—In all other cases where a general law can be made applicable.

Fish and game districts.

SEC. 25½. The Legislature may provide for the division of the State into fish and game districts, and may enact such laws for the protection of fish and game therein as it may deem appropriate to the respective districts. [New section; adopted November 4, 1902.]

Lotteries prohibited.

SEC. 26. The Legislature shall have no power to authorize lotteries or gift enterprises for any purpose and shall pass laws to prohibit the sale in this State of lottery or gift enterprise tickets or tickets in any scheme in the nature of a lottery. The Legislature shall pass laws to prohibit the fictitious buying and selling of the shares of the capital stock of corporations in any stock board, stock exchange or stock market under the control of any corporation or association. All contracts for the purchase or sale of shares of the capital stock of any corporation or association without any intention on the part of one party to deliver and of the other party to receive the shares, and contemplating merely the payment of differences between the contract and market prices on divers days, shall be void, and neither party to any such contract shall be entitled to recover any damages for failure to perform the same, or any money paid thereon, in any court of this State. [Amendment adopted November 3, 1908.]

Congressional districts, formation of.

SEC. 27. When a congressional district shall be composed of two or more counties, it shall not be separated by any county belonging to another district. No county, or city and county, shall be divided in forming a congressional district so as to attach one portion of a county, or city and county, to another county, or city and county, except in cases where one county, or city and county, has more population than the ratio required for one or more congressmen; but the Legislature may divide any county, or city and county, into as many congressional districts as it may be entitled to by law. Any county, or city and county, containing a population greater than the number required for one congressional district, shall be formed into one or more congressional districts, according to the population thereof, and any residue, after forming such district or districts, shall be attached, by compact adjoining assembly districts, to a contiguous county or counties, and form a congressional district. In dividing a county, or city and county, into congressional districts, no assembly district shall be divided so as to form a part of more than one congressional district, and every such congressional district shall be composed of compact contiguous assembly districts.

Elections by the Legislature.

SEC. 28. In all elections by the Legislature the members thereof shall vote viva voce, and the vote shall be entered on the journal.

General appropriation bill, what to contain.

SEC. 29. The general appropriation bill shall contain no item or items of appropriation other than such as are required to pay the salaries of the State officers, the expenses of the government, and of the institutions under the exclusive control and management of the State.

Support of sectarian schools prohibited.

SEC. 30. Neither the Legislature, nor any county, city and county, township, school district, or other municipal corporation, shall ever make an appropriation, or pay from any public fund whatever, or grant anything to or in aid of any religious sect, church, creed, or sectarian purpose, or help to support or sustain any school, college, university, hospital, or other institution controlled by any religious creed, church, or sectarian denomination whatever; nor shall any grant or donation of personal property or real estate ever be made by the State, or any city, city and county, town, or other municipal corporation, for any religious creed, church, or sectarian purpose whatever; provided, that nothing in this section shall prevent the Legislature granting aid pursuant to section twenty-two of this article.

Public credit to corporations prohibited.

SEC. 31. The Legislature shall have no power to give or to lend, or to authorize the giving or lending, of the credit of the State, or of any county, city and county, city, township, or other political corporation or subdivision of the State now existing, or that may be hereafter established, in aid of or to any person, association, or corporation, whether municipal or otherwise, or to pledge the credit thereof in any manner whatever, for the payment of the liabilities of any individual, association, municipal or other corporation whatever; nor shall it have power to make any gift, or authorize the making of any gift, of any public money or thing of value, to any individual, municipal or other corporation whatever; provided, that nothing in this section shall prevent the Legislature granting aid pursuant to section twenty-two of this article; and it shall not have power to authorize the State, or any political subdivision thereof, to subscribe for stock, or to become a stockholder in any corporation whatever.

Extra compensation to officers prohibited.

SEC. 32. The Legislature shall have no power to grant, or authorize any county or municipal authority to grant, any extra compensation or allowance to any public officer, agent, servant, or contractor, after service has been rendered, or a contract has been entered into and performed, in whole or in part; nor to pay, or to authorize the payment of, any claim hereafter created against the State, or any county or municipality of the State, under any agreement or contract made without express authority of law; and all such unauthorized agreements or contracts shall be null and void.

Charges by certain corporations, regulation of.

SEC. 33. The Legislature shall pass laws for the regulation and limitation of the charges for services performed and commodities furnished by telegraph and gas corporations, and the charges by corporations or individuals for storage and wharfage, in which there is a public use; and where laws shall provide for the selection of any person or officer to regulate and limit such rates, no such person or officer shall be selected by any corporation or individual interested in the business to be regulated, and no person shall be selected who is an officer or stockholder in any such corporation.

Appropriation bills to contain but one item.

SEC. 34. No bill making an appropriation of money, except the general appropriation bill, shall contain more than one item of appropriation, and that for one single and certain purpose, to be therein expressed.

Punishment for bribery.

SEC. 35. Any person who seeks to influence the vote of a member of the Legislature by bribery, promise of reward, intimidation, or any other dishonest means, shall be guilty of lobbying, which is hereby declared a felony; and it shall be the duty of the Legislature to provide, by law, for the punishment of this crime. Any member of the Legislature who shall be influenced, in his vote or action upon any matter pending before the Legislature, by any reward, or promise of future reward, shall be deemed guilty of a felony, and upon conviction thereof, in addition to such punishment as may be provided by law, shall be disfranchised and forever disqualified from holding any office or public trust. Any person may be compelled to testify in any lawful investigation or judicial proceeding against any person who may be charged with having committed the offense of bribery or corrupt solicitation, or with having been influenced in his vote or action as a member of the Legislature, by reward or promise of future reward, and shall not be permitted to withhold his testimony upon the ground that it may criminate himself, or subject him to public infamy; but such testimony shall not afterwards be used against him in any judicial proceeding, except for perjury in giving such testimony.

Establish system of highways.

SEC. 36. The Legislature shall have power to establish a system of state highways or to declare any road a state highway, and to pass all laws necessary or proper to construct and maintain the same, and to extend aid for the construction and maintenance in whole or in part of any county highway. [New section; adopted November 4, 1902.]

ARTICLE V.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.

Executive power vested in the Governor.

SECTION 1. The supreme executive power of this State shall be vested in a Chief Magistrate, who shall be styled the Governor of the State of California.

Election and term of office of Governor.

SEC. 2. The Governor shall be elected by the qualified electors at the time and places of voting for members of the Assembly, and shall hold his office four years from and after the first Monday after the first day of January subsequent to his election, and until his successor is elected and qualified.

Qualifications of Governor.

SEC. 3. No person shall be eligible to the office of Governor who has not been a citizen of the United States and a resident of this State five years next preceding his election, and attained the age of twenty-five years at the time of such election.

Election of Governor, how made known.

SEC. 4. The returns of every election for Governor shall be sealed up and transmitted to the seat of government, directed to the Speaker of the Assembly, who shall, during the first week of the session, open and publish them in the presence of both houses of the Legislature. The person having the highest number of votes shall be Governor; but in case any two or more have an equal and the highest number of votes, the Legislature shall, by joint vote of both houses, choose one of such persons so having an equal and the highest number of votes for Governor.

Governor to be commander-in-chief.

SEC. 5. The Governor shall be commander-in-chief of the militia, the army and navy of this State.

Governor to transact executive business.

SEC. 6. He shall transact all executive business with the officers of government, civil and military, and may require information, in writing, from the officers of the executive department upon any subject relating to the duties of their respective offices.

Governor to see that laws are executed.

SEC. 7. He shall see that the laws are faithfully executed.

Governor to fill vacancies.

SEC. 8. When any office shall, from any cause, become vacant, and no mode is provided by the Constitution and law for filling such vacancy, the Governor shall have power to fill such vacancy by granting a commission, which shall expire at the end of the next session of the Legislature, or at the next election by the people.

Governor may call extra session of Legislature.

SEC. 9. He may, on extraordinary occasions, convene the Legislature by proclamation, stating the purposes for which he has convened it; and when so convened it shall have no power to legislate on any subject other than those specified in the proclamation, but may provide for the expenses of the session, and other matters incidental thereto.

Governor's message.

SEC. 10. He shall communicate by message, to the Legislature, at every session, the condition of the State, and recommend such matters as he shall deem expedient.

Governor may adjourn Legislature.

SEC. 11. In case of a disagreement between the two houses with respect to the time of adjournment, the Governor shall have power to adjourn the Legislature to such time as he may think proper; provided, it be not beyond the time fixed for the meeting of the next Legislature.

Officer of the United States not to act as Governor.

SEC. 12. No person shall, while holding any office under the United States, or this State, exercise the office of Governor, except as hereinafter expressly provided.

Governor to keep great seal.

SEC. 13. There shall be a seal of this State, which shall be kept by the Governor, and used by him officially, and shall be called "The Great Seal of the State of California."

Form of commissions.

SEC. 14. All grants and commissions shall be in the name and by the authority of the people of the State of California, sealed with the great seal of the State, signed by the Governor, and countersigned by the Secretary of State.

Lieutenant-Governor, qualifications and duties.

SEC. 15. A Lieutenant-Governor shall be elected at the same time and place, and in the same manner, as the Governor, and his term of office and his qualifications shall be the same. He shall be President of the Senate, but shall only have a casting vote therein. [Amendment adopted November 8, 1898.]

Lieutenant-Governor may become Governor, when.

SEC. 16. In case of the impeachment of the Governor, or his removal from office, death, inability to discharge the powers and duties of his office, resignation, or absence from the State, the powers and duties of the office shall devolve upon the Lieutenant-Governor for the residue of the term, or until the disability shall cease. And should the Lieutenant-Governor be impeached, displaced, resign, die, or become incapable of performing the duties of his office, or be absent from the State, the President pro tempore of the Senate shall act as Governor until the vacancy in the office of Governor shall be filled at the next general election when members of the Legislature shall be chosen, or until such disability of the Lieutenant-Governor shall cease. In case of a vacancy in the office of Governor for any of the reasons above named, and neither the Lieutenant-Governor nor the President pro tempore of the Senate succeed to the powers and duties of Governor, then the powers and duties of such office shall devolve upon the Speaker of the Assembly, until the office of Governor shall be filled at such general election. [Amendment adopted November 8, 1898.]

State executive officers.

SEC. 17. A Secretary of State, a Controller, a Treasurer, an Attorney-General, and a Surveyor-General shall be elected at the same time and places, and in the same manner, as the Governor and Lieutenant-Governor, and their terms of office shall be the same as that of the Governor.

Secretary of State—Duties.

SEC. 18. The Secretary of State shall keep a correct record of the official acts of the legislative and executive departments of the Government, and shall, when required, lay the same, and all matters relative thereto, before either branch of the Legislature, and shall perform such other duties as may be assigned him by law.

Compensation of executive officers.

SEC. 19. The Governor, Lieutenant-Governor, Secretary of State, Controller, Treasurer, Attorney-General, and Surveyor-General shall, at stated times during their continuance in office, receive for their services a compensation which shall not be increased or diminished during the term for which they shall have been elected, which compensation is hereby fixed for the following officers, as follows: Governor, ten thousand dollars per annum; Lieutenant-Governor, four thousand dollars, the Secretary of State, Controller, Treasurer, and Surveyor-General, five thousand dollars each per annum, and the Attorney-General, six thousand dollars per annum, such compensation to be in full for all services by them respectively rendered in any official capacity or employment whatsoever during their respective terms of office; provided, however, that the Legislature may, by law, diminish the compensation of any or all of such officers, but in no case shall have the power to increase the same above the sums hereby fixed by this Constitution. No salary shall be authorized by law for clerical service, in any office provided for in this article, exceeding eighteen hundred dollars per annum for each clerk employed. The Legislature may, in its discretion, abolish the office of Surveyor-General; and none of the officers hereinbefore named shall receive for their own use any fees or perquisites for the performance of any official duty. [Amendment adopted November 3, 1908.]

Governor not eligible to United States Senate.

SEC. 20. The Governor shall not, during his term of office, be elected a Senator to the Senate of the United States.

ARTICLE VI.

JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT.

Judicial power—How vested.

SECTION 1. The judicial power of the State shall be vested in the Senate, sitting as a court of impeachment, in a Supreme Court, District Courts of Appeal, Superior Courts, Justices of the Peace, and such inferior courts as the Legislature may establish in any incorporated city or town, or city and county. [Amendment adopted November 8, 1904.]

Supreme Court—How constituted.

SEC. 2. The Supreme Court shall consist of a Chief Justice and six Associate Justices. The court may sit in departments and in bank, and shall always be open for the transaction of business. There shall be two departments, denominated, respectively, Department One and Department Two. The Chief Justice shall assign three of the Associate Justices to each department, and such assignment may be changed by him from time to time. The Associate Justices shall be competent to sit in either department, and may interchange with each other by agreement among themselves, or as ordered by the Chief Justice. Each of the departments shall have the power to hear and determine causes, and all questions arising therein, subject to the provisions hereinafter contained in relation to the court in bank. The presence of three justices shall be necessary to transact any business in either of the departments, except such as may be done at chambers, and the concurrence of three justices shall be necessary to pronounce a judgment. The Chief Justice shall apportion the business to the departments, and may, in his discretion, order any cause pending before the court to be heard and decided by the court in bank. The order may be made before or after judgment pronounced by a department; but where a cause has been allotted to one of the departments, and a judgment pronounced thereon, the order must be made within thirty days after such judgment, and concurred in by two Associate Justices, and if so made it shall have the effect to vacate and set aside the judgment. Any four justices may, either before or after judgment by a department, order a case to be heard in bank. If the order be not made within the time above limited, the judgment shall be final. No judgment by a department shall become final until the expiration of the period of thirty days aforesaid, unless approved by the Chief Justice, in writing, with the concurrence of two Associate Justices. The Chief Justice may convene the court in bank at any time, and shall be the presiding justice of the court when so convened. The concurrence of four justices present at the argument shall be necessary to pronounce a judgment in bank; but if four justices, so present, do not concur in a judgment, then all the justices qualified to sit in the cause shall hear the argument; but to render a judgment a concurrence of four judges shall be necessary. In the determination of causes, all decisions of the court, in bank or in departments, shall be given in writing, and the grounds of the decision shall be stated. The Chief Justice may sit in either department, and shall preside when so sitting, but the justices assigned to each department shall select one of their number as presiding justice. In case of the absence of the Chief Justice from the place at which the court is held, or his inability to act, the Associate Justices shall select one of their own number to perform the duties and exercise the powers of the Chief Justice during such absence or inability to act.

Justices of Supreme Court, election of.

SEC. 3. The Chief Justice and the Associate Justices shall be elected by the qualified electors of the State at large at the general State elections, at the time and places at which State officers are elected; and the term of office shall be twelve years from and after the first Monday after the first day of January next succeeding their election; provided, that the six Associate Justices elected at the first election shall, at their first meeting, so classify themselves, by lot, that two of them shall go out of office at the end of four years, two of them at the end of eight years, and two of them at the end of twelve years, and an entry of such classification shall be made in the minutes of the court in bank, signed by them, and a duplicate thereof shall be filed in the office of the Secretary of State. If a vacancy occur in the office of a justice, the Governor shall appoint a person to hold the office until the election and qualification of a justice to fill the vacancy, which election shall take place at the next succeeding general election, and the justice so elected shall hold the office for the remainder of the unexpired term. The first election of the justices shall be at the first general election after the adoption and ratification of this Constitution.

Jurisdiction of Supreme Court and District Courts of Appeal—Appellate Districts.

SEC. 4. The Supreme Court shall have appellate jurisdiction on appeal from the Superior Courts in all cases in equity, except such as arise in Justices' Courts; also, in all cases at law which involve the title or possession of real estate, or the legality of any tax, impost, assessment, toll, or municipal fine, or in which the demand, exclusive of interest, or the value of the property in controversy, amounts to two thousand dollars; also, in such probate matters as may be provided by law; also, on questions of law alone, in all criminal cases where judgment of death has been rendered; the said court shall also have appellate jurisdiction in all cases, matters, and proceedings pending before a District Court of Appeal which shall be ordered by the Supreme Court to be transferred to itself for hearing and decision, as hereinafter provided. The said court shall also have power to issue writs of mandamus, certiorari, prohibition, and habeas corpus, and all other writs necessary or proper to the complete exercise of its appellate jurisdiction. Each of the justices shall have power to issue writs of habeas corpus to any part of the State, upon petition by or on behalf of any person held in actual custody, and may make such writs returnable before himself or the Supreme Court, or before any District Court of Appeal, or before any judge thereof, or before any Superior Court in the State, or before any judge thereof.

The State is hereby divided into three appellate districts, in each of which there shall be a District Court of Appeal consisting of three justices. The first district shall embrace the following counties: San Francisco, Marin, Contra Costa, Alameda, San Mateo, Santa Clara, Fresno, Santa Cruz, Monterey, and San Benito.

The second district shall embrace the following counties: Tulare, Kings, San Luis Obispo, Kern, Inyo, Santa Barbara, Ventura, Los Angeles, San Bernardino, Orange, Riverside, and San Diego.

The third district shall embrace the following counties: Del Norte, Siskiyou, Modoc, Humboldt, Trinity, Shasta, Lassen, Tehama, Plumas, Mendocino, Lake, Colusa, Glenn, Butte, Sierra, Sutter, Yuba, Nevada, Sonoma, Napa, Yolo, Placer, Solano, Sacramento, El Dorado, San Joaquin, Amador, Calaveras, Stanislaus, Mariposa, Madera, Merced, Tuolumne, Alpine, and Mono.

The Supreme Court, by orders entered in its minutes, may from time to time remove one or more counties from one appellate district to another, but no county not contiguous to another county of a district shall be added to such district.

Said District Courts of Appeal shall hold their regular sessions respectively at San Francisco, Los Angeles, and Sacramento, and they shall always be open for the transaction of business.

The District Courts of Appeal shall have appellate jurisdiction on appeal from the Superior Courts in all cases at law in which the demand, exclusive of interest, or the value of the property in controversy, amounts to three hundred dollars, and does not amount to two thousand dollars; also, in all cases of forcible and unlawful entry and detainer (except such as arise in Justices' Courts), in proceedings in insolvency, and in actions to prevent or abate a nuisance; in proceedings of mandamus, certiorari, and prohibition, usurpation of office, contesting elections and eminent domain, and in such other special proceedings as may be provided by law (excepting cases in which appellate jurisdiction is given to the Supreme Court); also, on questions of law alone, in all criminal cases prosecuted by indictment or information in a court of record, excepting criminal cases where judgment of death has been rendered. The said courts shall also have appellate jurisdiction in all cases, matters, and proceedings pending before the Supreme Court which shall be ordered by the Supreme Court to be transferred to a District Court of Appeal for hearing and decision. The said courts shall also have power to issue writs of mandamus, certiorari, prohibition, and habeas corpus, and all other writs necessary or proper to the complete exercise of their appellate jurisdiction. Each of the justices thereof shall have power to issue writs of habeas corpus to any part of his appellate district upon petition by or on behalf of any person held in actual custody, and may make such writs returnable before himself or the District Court of Appeal of his district, or before any Superior Court within his district, or before any judge thereof.

The Supreme Court shall have power to order any cause pending before the Supreme Court to be heard and determined by a District Court of Appeal, and to order any cause pending before a District Court of Appeal to be heard and determined by the Supreme Court. The order last mentioned may be made before judgment has been pronounced by a District Court of Appeal, or within thirty days after such judgment shall have become final therein. The judgments of the District Courts of Appeal shall become final therein upon the expiration of thirty days after the same shall have been pronounced.

The Supreme Court shall have power to order causes pending before a District Court of Appeal for one district to be transferred to the District Court of Appeal of another district for hearing and decision.

The Justices of the District Courts of Appeal shall be elected by the qualified electors within their respective districts at the general state elections at the times and places at which Justices of the Supreme Court are elected. Their terms of office and salaries shall be the same as those of Justices of the Supreme Court, and their salaries shall be paid by the State. Upon the ratification by the people of this amendment the Governor shall appoint nine persons to serve as Justices of the District Courts of Appeal until the first Monday after the first day of January in the year 1907; provided, that not more than six of said persons shall be members of the same political party. At the election in the year 1906 nine of such justices shall be elected as above provided, and the justices of each District Court of Appeal shall so classify themselves by lot that one of them shall go out of office at the end of four years, one of them at the end of eight years, and one of them at the end of twelve years; an entry of such classification shall be made in the minutes of the court, signed by the three justices thereof, and a duplicate thereof filed in the office of the Secretary of State. If any vacancy occur in the office of a Justice of the District Courts of Appeal, the Governor shall appoint a person to hold office until the election and qualification of a justice to fill the vacancy; such election shall take place at the next succeeding general State election as aforesaid; the justice then elected shall hold the office for the unexpired term.

One of the justices of each of the District Courts of Appeal shall be the presiding justice thereof, and as such shall be appointed or elected as the case may be. The presence of three justices shall be necessary for the transaction of any business by such court, except such as may be done at chambers, and the concurrence of three justices shall be necessary to pronounce a judgment.

Whenever any Justice of the Supreme Court is for any reason disqualified or unable to act in a cause pending before it, the remaining justices may select one of the Justices of a District Court of Appeal to act pro tempore in the place of the justice so disqualified or unable to act.

Whenever any Justice of a District Court of Appeal is for any reason disqualified or unable to act in any cause pending before it, the Supreme Court may appoint a Justice of the District Court of Appeal of another district, or a Judge of a Superior Court who has not acted in the cause in the court below, to act pro tempore in the place of the justice so disqualified or unable to act.

No appeal taken to the Supreme Court or to a District Court of Appeal shall be dismissed for the reason only that the same was not taken to the proper court, but the cause shall be transferred to the proper court, upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as may be just, and shall be proceeded with therein as if regularly appealed thereto.

All statutes now in force allowing, providing for, or regulating appeals to the Supreme Court shall apply to appeals to the District Courts of Appeal so far as such statutes are not inconsistent with this article and until the Legislature shall otherwise provide.

The Supreme Court shall make and adopt rules not inconsistent with law for the government of the Supreme Court and of the District Courts of Appeal and of the officers thereof, and for regulating the practice in said courts. [Amendment adopted November 8, 1904.]

Jurisdiction of Superior Court.

SEC. 5. The Superior Court shall have original jurisdiction in all cases in equity, and in all cases at law which involve the title or possession of real property, or the legality of any tax, impost, assessment, toll, or municipal fine, and in all other cases in which the demand, exclusive of interest, or the value of the property in controversy, amounts to three hundred dollars, and in all criminal cases amounting to felony, and cases of misdemeanor not otherwise provided for; of actions of forcible entry and detainer; of proceedings in insolvency; of actions to prevent or abate a nuisance; of all matters of probate; of divorce and for annulment of marriage; and of all such special cases and proceedings as are not otherwise provided for. And said court shall have the power of naturalization, and to issue papers therefor. They shall have appellate jurisdiction in such cases arising in Justices' and other inferior courts in their respective counties as may be prescribed by law. They shall be always open (legal holidays and non-judicial days excepted), and their process shall extend to all parts of the State; provided, that all actions for the recovery of the possession of, quieting the title to, or for the enforcement of liens upon real estate, shall be commenced in the county in which the real estate, or any part thereof, affected by such action or actions, is situated. Said courts, and their judges, shall have power to issue writs of mandamus, certiorari, prohibition, quo warranto, and habeas corpus, on petition by or on behalf of any person in actual custody, in their respective counties. Injunctions and writs of prohibition may be issued and served on legal holidays and non-judicial days.

Superior courts—Number—Organization—Terms of office—Vacancies.

SEC. 6. There shall be in each of the organized counties, or cities and counties, of the State, a Superior Court, for each of which at least one judge shall be elected by the qualified electors of the county, or city and county, at the general State election; provided, that until otherwise ordered by the Legislature, only one judge shall be elected for the counties of Yuba and Sutter, and that in the City and County of San Francisco there shall be elected twelve Judges of the Superior Court, any one or more of whom may hold court. There may be as many sessions of said court, at the same time, as there are judges thereof. The said judges shall choose from their own number, a presiding judge, who may be removed at their pleasure. He shall distribute the business of the court among the judges thereof, and prescribe the order of business. The judgments, orders, and proceedings of any session of the Superior Court held by any one or more of the judges of said courts, respectively, shall be equally effectual as if all the judges of said respective courts presided at such session. In each of the counties of Sacramento, San Joaquin, Los Angeles, Sonoma, Santa Clara, and Alameda, there shall be elected two such judges. The term of office of Judges of the Superior Courts shall be six years from and after the first Monday of January next succeeding their election; provided, that the twelve Judges of the Superior Court elected in the City and County of San Francisco, at the first election held under this Constitution, shall at their first meeting so classify themselves, by lot, that four of them shall go out of office at the end of two years, and four of them shall go out of office at the end of four years, and four of them shall go out of office at the end of six years, and an entry of such classification shall be made in the minutes of the court, signed by them, and a duplicate thereof filed in the office of the Secretary of State. The first election of Judges of the Superior Courts shall take place at the first general election held after the adoption and ratification of this Constitution. If a vacancy occur in the office of Judge of a Superior Court, the Governor shall appoint a person to hold the office until the election and qualification of a judge to fill the vacancy, which election shall take place at the next succeeding general election, and the judge so elected shall hold office for the remainder of the unexpired term.

Superior court sessions.

SEC. 7. In any county, or city and county, other than the City and County of San Francisco, in which there shall be more than one Judge of the Superior Court, the judges of such court may hold as many sessions of said court at the same time as there are judges thereof, and shall apportion the business among themselves as equally as may be.

Superior courts—Who may try causes.

SEC. 8. A Judge of any Superior Court may hold a Superior Court in any county, at the request of a Judge of the Superior Court thereof, and upon the request of the Governor it shall be his duty so to do. But a cause in the Superior Court may be tried by a judge pro tempore, who must be a member of the bar, agreed upon in writing by the parties litigant, or their attorneys of record, approved by the court, and sworn to try the cause.

Leave of absence can not be granted—Legislature may change number of Judges.

SEC. 9. The Legislature shall have no power to grant leave of absence to any judicial officer; and any such officer who shall absent himself from the State for more than sixty consecutive days shall be deemed to have forfeited his office. The Legislature of the State may, at any time, two thirds of the members of the Senate and two thirds of the members of the Assembly voting therefor, increase or diminish the number of Judges of the Superior Court in any county, or city and county, in the State; provided, that no such reduction shall affect any judge who has been elected.

Removal of judicial officers.

SEC. 10. Justices of the Supreme Court, and of the District Courts of Appeal, and Judges of the Superior Courts may be removed by concurrent resolution of both houses of the Legislature adopted by a two thirds vote of each house. All other judicial officers, except Justices of the Peace, may be removed by the Senate on the recommendation of the Governor; but no removal shall be made by virtue of this section unless the cause thereof be entered on the journal, nor unless the party complained of has been served with a copy of the complaint against him and shall have had an opportunity of being heard in his defense. On the question of removal the ayes and noes shall be entered on the journal. [Amendment adopted November 8, 1904.]

Justices of the Peace, number and powers.

SEC. 11. The Legislature shall determine the number of Justices of the Peace to be elected in townships, incorporated cities and towns, or cities and counties, and shall fix by law the powers, duties, and responsibilities of Justices of the Peace; provided, such powers shall not, in any case, trench upon the jurisdiction of the several courts of record, except that said justices shall have concurrent jurisdiction with the Superior Courts in cases of forcible entry and detainer, where the rental value does not exceed twenty-five dollars per month, and where the whole amount of damages claimed does not exceed two hundred dollars, and in cases to enforce and foreclose liens on personal property when neither the amount of liens nor the value of the property amounts to three hundred dollars.

Courts of record.

SEC. 12. The Supreme Court, the District Courts of Appeal, the Superior Courts, and such other courts as the Legislature shall prescribe, shall be courts of record. [Amendment adopted November 8, 1904.]

Jurisdiction of inferior courts.

SEC. 13. The Legislature shall fix by law the jurisdiction of any inferior courts which may be established in pursuance of section one of this article, and shall fix by law the powers, duties, and responsibilities of the judges thereof.

Clerks of courts—Court commissioners.

SEC. 14. The Legislature shall provide for the election of a Clerk of the Supreme Court, and shall fix by law his duties and compensation, which compensation shall not be increased or diminished during the term for which he shall have been elected. The County Clerks shall be ex officio clerks of the courts of record in and for their respective counties, or cities and counties. The Legislature may also provide for the appointment, by the several Superior Courts, of one or more commissioners in their respective counties, or cities and counties, with authority to perform chamber business of the Judges of the Superior Courts, to take depositions, and perform such other business connected with the administration of justice as may be prescribed by law.

Fees.

SEC. 15. No judicial officer, except Justices of the Peace and Court Commissioners, shall receive to his own use any fees or perquisites of office.

Publication of opinions of the Supreme Court.

SEC. 16. The Legislature shall provide for the speedy publication of such opinions of the Supreme Court and of the District Courts of Appeal as the Supreme Court may deem expedient, and all opinions shall be free for publication by any person. [Amendment adopted November 8, 1904.]

Salaries of Justices of the Supreme Court and District Courts of Appeal and of Judges of the Superior Courts.

SEC. 17. The Justices of the Supreme Court and of the District Courts of Appeal, and the Judges of the Superior Courts, shall severally, at stated times during their continuance in office, receive for their service such compensation as is or shall be provided by law. The salaries of the Judges of the Superior Court, in all counties having but one judge, and in all counties in which the terms of the Judges of the Superior Court expire at the same time, shall not hereafter be increased or diminished after their election, nor during the term for which they shall have been elected. Upon the adoption of this amendment the salaries then established by law shall be paid uniformly to the justices and judges then in office. The salaries of the Justices of the Supreme Court and of the District Courts of Appeal shall be paid by the State. One half of the salary of each Superior Court Judge shall be paid by the State; and the other half thereof shall be paid by the county for which he is elected. On and after the first day of January, A. D. one thousand nine hundred and seven, the Justices of the Supreme Court shall each receive an annual salary of eight thousand dollars, and the justices of the several District Courts of Appeal shall each receive an annual salary of seven thousand dollars; the said salaries to be payable monthly. [Amendment adopted November 6, 1906.]

Certain Justices and Judges not eligible to other than judicial offices—When.

SEC. 18. The Justices of the Supreme Court, and of the District Courts of Appeal, and the Judges of the Superior Courts shall be ineligible to any other office or public employment than a judicial office or employment during the term for which they shall have been elected. [Amendment adopted November 8, 1904.]

Charge to juries.

SEC. 19. Judges shall not charge juries with respect to matters of fact, but may state the testimony and declare the law.

Style of process.

SEC. 20. The style of process shall be "The People of the State of California," and all prosecutions shall be conducted in their name and by their authority.

Supreme Court reporter.

SEC. 21. The Supreme Court may appoint a reporter and not more than three assistant reporters of the decisions of the Supreme Court and of the District Courts of Appeal. Each of the District Courts of Appeal shall appoint its own clerk. All the officers herein mentioned shall hold office and be removable at the pleasure of the courts by which they are severally appointed, and they shall receive such compensation as shall be prescribed by law, and discharge such duties as shall be prescribed by law, or by the rules or orders of the courts by which they are severally appointed. [Amendment adopted November 8, 1904.]

Judges not to practice law.

SEC. 22. No judge of a court of record shall practice law in any court of this State during his continuance in office.

Qualification of judges.

SEC. 23. No one shall be eligible to the office of a Justice of the Supreme Court, or of a District Court of Appeal, or of a Judge of a Superior Court, unless he shall have been admitted to practice before the Supreme Court of the State. [Amendment adopted November 8, 1904.]

Condition of receiving salary.

SEC. 24. No Judge of the Supreme Court, nor of a District Court of Appeal, nor of a Superior Court, shall draw or receive any monthly salary unless he shall make and subscribe an affidavit before an officer entitled to administer oaths, that no cause in his court remains pending and undecided, that has been submitted for decision for a period of ninety days. In the determination of causes all decisions of the Supreme Court and of the District Courts of Appeal shall be given in writing, and the grounds of the decision shall be stated. When the Justices of a District Court of Appeal are unable to concur in a judgment, they shall give their several opinions in writing and cause copies thereof to be forwarded to the Supreme Court. [Amendment adopted November 8, 1904.]

Supreme Court Commission abolished.

SEC. 25. The present Supreme Court Commission shall be abolished at the expiration of its present term of office, and no Supreme Court Commission shall be created or provided for after January 1st, A. D. 1905. [New section; adopted November 8, 1904.]

ARTICLE VII.PARDONING POWER.*Vested in Governor.

SECTION 1. The Governor shall have the power to grant reprieves, pardons, and commutations of sentence, after conviction, for all offenses except treason and cases of impeachment, upon such conditions, and with such restrictions and limitations, as he may think proper, subject to such regulations as may be provided by law relative to the manner of applying for pardons. Upon conviction for treason, the Governor shall have power to suspend the execution of the sentence until the case shall be reported to the Legislature at its next meeting, when the Legislature shall either pardon, direct the execution of the sentence, or grant a further reprieve. The Governor shall communicate to the Legislature, at the beginning of every session, every case of reprieve or pardon granted, stating the name of the convict, the crime for which he was convicted, the sentence, its date, the date of the pardon or reprieve, and the reasons for granting the same. Neither the Governor nor the Legislature shall have power to grant pardons, or commutations of sentence, in any case where the convict has been twice convicted of a felony, unless upon the written recommendation of a majority of the Judges of the Supreme Court.

ARTICLE VIII.MILITIA.*Organization of.

SECTION 1. The Legislature shall provide, by law, for organizing and disciplining the militia, in such manner as it may deem expedient, not incompatible with the Constitution and laws of the United States. Officers of the militia shall be elected or appointed in such manner as the Legislature shall, from time to time, direct, and shall be commissioned by the Governor. The Governor shall have power to call forth the militia to execute the laws of the State, to suppress insurrections, and repel invasions.

Flag of State militia.

SEC. 2. All military organizations provided for by this Constitution, or any law of this State, and receiving State support, shall, while under arms, either for ceremony or duty, carry no device, banner, or flag of any state or nation, except that of the United States or the State of California.

ARTICLE IX.

EDUCATION.

Encouragement of education.

SECTION 1. A general diffusion of knowledge and intelligence being essential to the preservation of the rights and liberties of the people, the Legislature shall encourage by all suitable means the promotion of intellectual, scientific, moral, and agricultural improvement.

Superintendent of Public Instruction.

SEC. 2. A Superintendent of Public Instruction shall, at each gubernatorial election after the adoption of this Constitution, be elected by the qualified electors of the State. He shall receive a salary equal to that of the Secretary of State, and shall enter upon the duties of his office on the first Monday after the first day of January next succeeding his election.

County Superintendent of Schools.

SEC. 3. A Superintendent of Schools for each county shall be elected by the qualified electors thereof at each gubernatorial election; provided, that the Legislature may authorize two or more counties to unite and elect one Superintendent for the counties so uniting.

State school fund.

SEC. 4. The proceeds of all lands that have been or may be granted by the United States to this State for the support of common schools, which may be, or may have been, sold or disposed of, and the five hundred thousand acres of land granted to the new states under an Act of Congress distributing the proceeds of the public lands among the several states of the Union, approved A. D. one thousand eight hundred and forty-one, and all estates of deceased persons who may have died without leaving a will or heir, and also such per cent as may be granted, or may have been granted, by Congress on the sale of lands in this State, shall be and remain a perpetual fund, the interest of which, together with all the rents of the unsold lands, and such other means as the Legislature may provide, shall be inviolably appropriated to the support of common schools throughout the State.

Common schools, system of.

SEC. 5. The Legislature shall provide for a system of common schools, by which a free school shall be kept up and supported in each district at least six months in every year, after the first year in which a school has been established.

Public school system, and tax.

SEC. 6. The public school system shall include day and evening elementary schools, and such day and evening secondary schools, normal schools, and technical schools as may be established by the Legislature, or by municipal or district authority. The entire revenue derived from the State school fund and from the general State school tax shall be applied exclusively to the support of day and evening elementary schools; but the Legislature may authorize and cause to be levied a special State school tax for the support of day and evening secondary schools and technical schools, or either of such schools, included in the public school system, and all revenue derived from such special tax shall be applied exclusively to the support of the schools for which such special tax shall be levied. [Amendment adopted November 3, 1908.]

State Board of Education—Text-books—County Boards of Education.

SEC. 7. The Governor, the Superintendent of Public Instruction, the President of the University of California, and the Professor of Pedagogy therein, and the Principals of the State Normal Schools shall constitute the State Board of Education, and shall compile, or cause to be compiled, and adopt, a uniform series of text-books for use in the common schools throughout the State. The State Board may cause such text-books, when adopted, to be printed and published by the Superintendent of State Printing, at the State Printing Office, and, when so printed and published, to be distributed and sold at the cost price of printing, publishing, and distributing the same. The text-books so adopted shall continue in use not less than four years; and said State Board shall perform such other duties as may be prescribed by law. The Legislature shall provide for a Board of Education in each county in the State. The County Superintendents and the County Boards of Education shall have control of the examination of teachers and the granting of teachers' certificates within their respective jurisdictions. [Amendment adopted November 6, 1894.]

Sectarian schools—Appropriating money for, prohibited.

SEC. 8. No public money shall ever be appropriated for the support of any sectarian or denominational school, or any school not under the exclusive control of the officers of the public schools; nor shall any sectarian or denominational doctrine be taught, or instruction thereon be permitted, directly or indirectly, in any of the common schools of this State.

University of California.

SEC. 9. The University of California shall constitute a public trust, and its organization and government shall be perpetually continued in the form and character prescribed by the organic act creating the same, passed March twenty-third, eighteen hundred and sixty-eight (and the several acts amendatory thereof), subject only to such legislative control as may be necessary to insure compliance with the terms of its endowments and the proper investment and security of its funds. It shall be entirely independent of all political or sectarian influence, and kept free therefrom in the appointment of its regents, and in the administration of its affairs; provided, that all the moneys derived from the sale of the public lands donated to this State by act of Congress, approved July second, eighteen hundred and sixty-two (and the several acts amendatory thereof), shall be invested as provided by said acts of Congress, and the interest of said moneys shall be inviolably appropriated to the endowment, support, and maintenance of at least one college of agriculture, where the leading objects shall be (without excluding other scientific and classical studies, and including military tactics) to teach such branches of learning as are related to scientific and practical agriculture and the mechanic arts, in accordance with the requirements and conditions of said acts of Congress; and the Legislature shall provide that if, through neglect, misappropriation, or any other contingency, any portion of the funds so set apart shall be diminished or lost, the State shall replace such portion so lost or misappropriated, so that the principal thereof shall remain forever undiminished. No person shall be debarred admission to any of the collegiate departments of the University on account of sex.

Leland Stanford Junior University.

SEC. 10. The trusts and estates created for the founding, endowment, and maintenance of the Leland Stanford Junior University, under and in accordance with "An act to advance learning," etc., approved March ninth, eighteen hundred and eighty-five, by the endowment grant executed by Leland Stanford and Jane Lathrop Stanford on the eleventh day of November, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-five, and recorded in liber eighty-three of deeds, at page twenty-three et seq., records of Santa Clara County, and by the amendments of such grant, and by gifts, grants, bequests, and devises supplementary thereto, and by confirmatory grants, are permitted, approved, and confirmed. The board of trustees of the Leland Stanford Junior University, as such, or in the name of the institution, or by other intelligible designation of the trustees or of the institution, may receive property, real or personal, and wherever situated, by gift, grant, devise, or bequest, for the benefit of the institution, or of any department thereof, and such property, unless otherwise provided, shall be held by the trustees of the Leland Stanford Junior University upon the trusts provided for in the grant founding the university, and amendments thereof, and grants, bequests, and devises supplementary thereto. The Legislature, by special act, may grant to the trustees of the Leland Stanford Junior University corporate powers and privileges, but it shall not thereby alter their tenure, or limit their powers or obligations as trustees. All property now or hereafter held in trust for the founding, maintenance, or benefit of the Leland Stanford Junior University, or of any department thereof, may be exempted by special act from State taxation, and all personal property so held, the Palo Alto farm as described in the endowment grant to the trustees of the university, and all other real property so held and used by the university for educational purposes exclusively, may be similarly exempted from county and municipal taxation; provided, that residents of California shall be charged no fees for tuition unless such fees be authorized by act of Legislature. [New section; adopted November 6, 1900.]

California School of Mechanical Arts.

SEC. 11. All property now or hereafter belonging to "The California School of Mechanical Arts," an institution founded and endowed by the late James Lick to educate males and females in the practical arts of life, and incorporated under the laws of the State of California, November twenty-third, eighteen hundred and eighty-five, having its school buildings located in the City and County of San Francisco, shall be exempt from taxation. The trustees of said institution must annually report their proceedings and financial accounts to the Governor. The Legislature may modify, suspend, and revive at will the exemption from taxation herein given. [New section; adopted November 6, 1900.]

California Academy of Sciences.

SEC. 12. All property now or hereafter belonging to the "California Academy of Sciences," an institution for the advancement of science and maintenance of a free museum, and chiefly endowed by the late James Lick, and incorporated under the laws of the State of California, January sixteenth, eighteen hundred and seventy-one, having its buildings located in the City and County of San Francisco, shall be exempt from taxation. The trustees of said institution must annually report their proceedings and financial accounts to the Governor. The Legislature may modify, suspend, and revive at will the exemption from taxation herein given. [New section; adopted November 8, 1904.]

Cogswell Polytechnical College.

SEC. 13. All property now or hereafter belonging to the Cogswell Polytechnical College, an institution for the advancement of learning, incorporated under the laws of the State of California, and having its buildings located in the City and County of San Francisco, shall be exempt from taxation. The trustees of said institution must annually report their proceedings and financial accounts to the Governor. The Legislature may modify, suspend, and revive at will the exemption from taxation herein given. [New section, adopted November 6, 1906.]

ARTICLE X.

STATE INSTITUTIONS AND PUBLIC BUILDINGS.

Prison Directors, appointment and term of office.

SECTION 1. There shall be a State Board of Prison Directors, to consist of five persons, to be appointed by the Governor, with the advice and consent of the Senate, who shall hold office for ten years, except that the first appointed shall, in such manner as the Legislature may direct, be so classified that the term of one person so appointed shall expire at the end of each two years during the first ten years, and vacancies occurring shall be filled in like manner. The appointee to a vacancy occurring before the expiration of a term shall hold office only for the unexpired term of his predecessor. The Governor shall have the power to remove either of the directors for misconduct, incompetency, or neglect of duty, after an opportunity to be heard upon written charges.

Powers and duties.

SEC. 2. The board of directors shall have the charge and superintendence of the State prisons, and shall possess such powers and perform such duties, in respect to other penal and reformatory institutions of the State, as the Legislature may prescribe.

Prison officers.

SEC. 3. The board shall appoint the warden and clerk, and determine the other necessary officers of the prisons. The board shall have power to remove the wardens and clerks for misconduct, incompetency, or neglect of duty. All other officers and employés of the prisons shall be appointed by the warden thereof, and be removed at his pleasure.

Compensation of Prison Directors.

SEC. 4. The members of the board shall receive no compensation, other than reasonable traveling and other expenses incurred while engaged in the performance of official duties, to be audited as the Legislature may direct.

Powers and duties of board of directors and officers.

SEC. 5. The Legislature shall pass such laws as may be necessary to further define and regulate the powers and duties of the board, wardens, and clerks, and to carry into effect the provisions of this article.

Convict labor.

SEC. 6. After the first day of January, eighteen hundred and eighty-two, the labor of convicts shall not be let out by contract to any person, co-partnership, company, or corporation, and the Legislature shall, by law, provide for the working of convicts for the benefit of the State.

ARTICLE XI.COUNTIES, CITIES, AND TOWNS.*Existing counties recognized.

SECTION 1. The several counties, as they now exist, are hereby recognized as legal subdivisions of this State.

County seat—Removal of.

SEC. 2. No county seat shall be removed unless two thirds of the qualified electors of the county, voting on the proposition at a general election, shall vote in favor of such removal. A proposition of removal shall not be submitted in the same county more than once in four years.

New counties.

SEC. 3. The Legislature, by general and uniform laws, may provide for the formation of new counties; provided, however, that no new county shall be established which shall reduce any county to a population of less than eight thousand; nor shall a new county be formed containing a less population than five thousand; nor shall any line thereof pass within five miles of the county seat of any county proposed to be divided. Every county which shall be enlarged or created from territory taken from any other county or counties, shall be liable for a just proportion of the existing debts and liabilities of the county or counties from which such territory shall be taken. [Amendment adopted November 6, 1894.]

County government and township organization.

SEC. 4. The Legislature shall establish a system of county governments, which shall be uniform throughout the State; and by general laws shall provide for township organization, under which any county may organize whenever a majority of the qualified electors of such county, voting at a general election, shall so determine; and whenever a county shall adopt township organization, the assessment and collection of the revenue shall be made, and the business of such county and the local affairs of the several townships therein shall be managed and transacted, in the manner prescribed by such general laws.

County and township officers, juries, and compensation.

SEC. 5. The Legislature, by general and uniform laws, shall provide for the election or appointment, in the several counties, of Boards of Supervisors, Sheriffs, County Clerks, District Attorneys, and such other county, township, and municipal officers as public convenience may require, and shall prescribe their duties and fix their terms of office. It shall regulate the compensation of all such officers, in proportion to duties, and may also establish fees to be charged and collected by such officers for services performed in their respective offices, in the manner and for the uses provided by law, and for this purpose may classify the counties by population; and it shall provide for the strict accountability of county and township officers for all fees which may be collected by them, and for all public and municipal moneys which may be paid to them, or officially come into their possession. It may regulate the compensation of grand and trial jurors in all courts within the classes of counties herein permitted to be made; such compensation, however, shall not, in any class, exceed the sum of three dollars per day and mileage. [Amendment adopted November 3, 1908.]

Municipal corporations.

SEC. 6. Corporations for municipal purposes shall not be created by special laws; but the Legislature, by general laws, shall provide for the incorporation, organization, and classification, in proportion to population, of cities and towns, which laws may be altered, amended or repealed. Cities and towns heretofore organized or incorporated may become organized under such general laws whenever a majority of the electors voting at a general election shall so determine, and shall organize in conformity therewith; and cities and towns heretofore or hereafter organized, and all charters thereof framed or adopted by authority of this Constitution, except in municipal affairs, shall be subject to and controlled by general laws. [Amendment adopted November 3, 1896.]

Consolidation of city and county governments.

SEC. 7. City and county governments may be merged and consolidated into one municipal government, with one set of officers, and may be incorporated under general laws providing for the incorporation and organization of corporations for municipal purposes. The provisions of this Constitution applicable to cities, and also those applicable to counties, so far as not inconsistent or prohibited to cities, shall be applicable to such consolidated government. [Amendment adopted November 6, 1894.]

Charters of cities and amendments thereto.

SEC. 8. Any city containing a population of more than three thousand five hundred inhabitants may frame a charter for its own government, consistent with and subject to the Constitution, (or, having framed such a charter, may frame a new one), by causing a board of fifteen freeholders, who shall have been for at least five years qualified electors thereof, to be elected by the qualified voters of said city at any general or special election, whose duty it shall be, within ninety days after such election, to prepare and propose a charter for such city, which shall be signed in duplicate by the members of such board, or a majority of them, and returned, one copy to the Mayor thereof, or other chief executive officer of such city, and the other to the Recorder of the county. Such proposed charter shall then be published in two daily newspapers of general circulation in such city, for at least twenty days, and the first publication shall be made within twenty days after the completion of the charter; provided, that in cities containing a population of not more than ten thousand inhabitants, such proposed charter shall be published in one such daily newspaper; and within thirty days after such publication it shall be submitted to the qualified electors of said city at a general or special election, and if a majority of such qualified electors voting thereon shall ratify the same, it shall thereafter be submitted to the Legislature for its approval or rejection as a whole, without power of alteration or amendment. Such approval may be made by concurrent resolution, and if approved by a majority vote of the members elected to each house, it shall become the charter of such city, or, if such city be consolidated with a county, then of such city and county, and shall become the organic law thereof, and supersede any existing charter (whether framed under the provisions of this section of the Constitution or not), and all amendments thereof, and all laws inconsistent with such charter. A copy of such charter, certified by the Mayor, or chief executive officer, and authenticated by the seal of such city, setting forth the submission of such charter to the electors, and its ratification by them, shall, after the approval of such charter by the Legislature, be made in duplicate, and deposited, one in the office of the Secretary of State, and the other, after being recorded in said Recorder's office, shall be deposited in the archives of the city, and thereafter all courts shall take judicial notice of said charter. The charter, so ratified, may be amended at intervals of not less than two years by proposals therefor, submitted by the legislative authority of the city to the qualified electors thereof at a general or special election, held at least forty days after the publication of such proposals for twenty days in a daily newspaper of general circulation in such city, and ratified by a majority of the electors voting thereon, and approved by the Legislature as herein provided for the approval of the charter. Whenever fifteen per cent of the qualified voters of the city shall petition the legislative authority thereof to submit any proposed amendment or amendments to said charter to the qualified voters thereof for approval, the legislative authority thereof must submit the same. In submitting any such charter, or amendments thereto, any alternative article or proposition may be presented for the choice of the voters, and may be voted on separately without prejudice to others. [Amendment adopted November 6, 1906.]

Charters of cities, what may provide.

SEC. 8½. It shall be competent, in all charters framed under the authority given by section eight of article eleven of this Constitution, to provide, in addition to those provisions allowable by this Constitution and by the laws of the State, as follows:

1. For the constitution, regulation, government, and jurisdiction of Police Courts, and for the manner in which, the times at which, and the terms for which the judges of such courts shall be elected or appointed, and for the compensation of said judges and of their clerks and attachés.

2. For the manner in which, the times at which, and the terms for which the members of boards of education shall be elected or appointed, and the number which shall constitute any one of such boards.

3. For the manner in which, the times at which, and the terms for which the members of the boards of police commissioners shall be elected or appointed; and for the constitution, regulation, compensation, and government of such boards and of the municipal police force.

4. For the manner in which, the times at which, and the terms for which the members of all boards of election shall be elected or appointed, and for the constitution, regulation, compensation, and government of such boards, and of their clerks and attachés; and for all expenses incident to the holding of any election.

Where a city and county government has been merged and consolidated into one municipal government, it shall also be competent in any charter framed under said section eight of said article eleven, to provide for the manner in which, the times at which, and the terms for which the several county officers shall be elected or appointed, for their compensation, and for the number of deputies that each shall have, and for the compensation payable to each of such deputies. [New section; adopted November 3, 1896.]

Compensation and term of officers not to be increased, when.

SEC. 9. The compensation of any county, city, town, or municipal officer shall not be increased after his election or during his term of office; nor shall the term of any such officer be extended beyond the period for which he is elected or appointed.

Not to be released from taxes.

SEC. 10. No county, city, town, or other public or municipal corporation, nor the inhabitants thereof, nor the property therein, shall be released or discharged from its or their proportionate share of taxes to be levied for State purposes, nor shall commutation for such taxes be authorized in any form whatsoever.

Local laws.

SEC. 11. Any county, city, town, or township may make and enforce within its limits all such local, police, sanitary, and other regulations as are not in conflict with general laws.

Legislature not to impose taxes on.

SEC. 12. The Legislature shall have no power to impose taxes upon counties, cities, towns, or other public or municipal corporations, or upon the inhabitants or property thereof, for county, city, town, or other municipal purposes, but may, by general laws, vest in the corporate authorities thereof the power to assess and collect taxes for such purposes.

Municipal power not granted by Legislature.

SEC. 13. The Legislature shall not delegate to any special commission, private corporation, company, association, or individual, any power to make, control, appropriate, supervise, or in any way interfere with any county, city, town, or municipal improvement, money, property, or effects, whether held in trust or otherwise, or to levy taxes or assessments, or perform any municipal functions whatever.

State, county, and municipal bonds.

SEC. 13½. Nothing in this Constitution contained shall be construed as prohibiting the State or any county, city and county, city, town, municipality, or other public corporation, issuing bonds under the laws of the State, to make said bonds payable at any place within the United States designated in said bonds. [New section; adopted November 6, 1906.]

Local inspection officers.

SEC. 14. No State office shall be continued or created in any county, city, town, or other municipality, for the inspection, measurement, or graduation of any merchandise, manufacture, or commodity; but such county, city, town, or municipality may, when authorized by general law, appoint such officers.

Private property not to be sold for corporate debt.

SEC. 15. Private property shall not be taken or sold for the payment of the corporate debt of any political or municipal corporation.

Moneys to be immediately deposited with Treasurer.

SEC. 16. All moneys, assessments, and taxes belonging to or collected for the use of any county, city, town, or other public or municipal corporation, coming into the hands of any officer thereof, shall immediately be deposited with the Treasurer, or other legal depository, to the credit of such city, town, or other corporation, respectively, for the benefit of the funds to which they respectively belong.

Deposit of moneys belonging to State, county or municipality.

SEC. 16½. All moneys belonging to the State, or to any county or municipality within this State, may be deposited in any national bank or banks within this State, or in any bank or banks organized under the laws of this State, in such manner and under such conditions as may be provided by law; provided, that such bank or banks in which such moneys are deposited shall furnish as security for such deposits, bonds of the United States, or of this State or of any county, municipality or school district within this State, to be approved by the officer or officers designated by law, to an amount in value of at least ten per cent in excess of the amount of such deposit; and provided, that such bank or banks shall pay a reasonable rate of interest, not less than two per cent per annum on the daily balances therein deposited; and provided, that no deposit shall at any one time exceed fifty per cent of the paid-up capital stock of such depository bank or banks; and provided further, that no officer shall deposit at one time more than twenty per cent of such public moneys available for deposit in any bank while there are other qualified banks requesting such deposits. [New section; adopted November 6, 1906.]

Public funds not to be used for private profit.

SEC. 17. The making of profit out of county, city, town, or other public money, or using the same for any purpose not authorized by law, by any officer having the possession or control thereof, shall be a felony, and shall be prosecuted and punished as prescribed by law.

Annual debt not to exceed annual income—Exceptions.

SEC. 18. No county, city, town, township, board of education, or school districts, shall incur any indebtedness or liability in any manner or for any purpose exceeding in any year the income and revenue provided for such year, without the assent of two thirds of the qualified electors thereof, voting at an election to be held for that purpose, nor unless before or at the time of incurring such indebtedness provision shall be made for the collection of an annual tax sufficient to pay the interest on such indebtedness as it falls due, and also provision to constitute a sinking fund for the payment of the principal thereof on or before maturity, which shall not exceed forty years from the time of contracting the same; provided, however, that the City and County of San Francisco may at any time pay the unpaid claims, with interest thereon at the rate of five per cent per annum, for materials furnished to and work done for said city and county during the forty-first, forty-second, forty-third, forty-fourth, and fiftieth fiscal years, and for unpaid teacher's salaries for the fiftieth fiscal year, out of the income and revenue of any succeeding year or years, the amount to be paid in full of said claims not to exceed in the aggregate the sum of five hundred thousand dollars, and that no statute of limitations shall apply in any manner to these claims; and provided further, that the City of Vallejo, of Solano County, may pay its existing indebtedness incurred in the construction of its waterworks whenever two thirds of the electors thereof voting at an election held for that purpose shall so decide, and that no statute of limitations shall apply in any manner. Any indebtedness or liability incurred contrary to this provision, with the exceptions hereinbefore recited, shall be void. [Amendment adopted November 6, 1900.]

Section 18 amended by adding the following, adopted November 6, 1906: The City and County of San Francisco, the City of San José and the Town of Santa Clara may make provision for a sinking fund, to pay the principal of any indebtedness incurred, or to be hereafter incurred, by it, to commence at a time after the incurring of such indebtedness of not more than a period of one fourth of the time of maturity of such indebtedness, which shall not exceed seventy-five years from the time of contracting the same. Any indebtedness incurred contrary to any provision of this section shall be void.

Use of streets for gas and water pipes.

SEC. 19. In any city where there are no public works owned and controlled by the municipality for supplying the same with water or artificial light, any individual, or any company duly incorporated for such purpose under and by authority of the laws of this State, shall, under the direction of the Superintendent of Streets, or other officer in control thereof, and under such general regulations as the municipality may prescribe for damages and indemnity for damages, have the privilege of using the public streets and thoroughfares thereof, and of laying down pipes and conduits therein, and connections therewith, so far as may be necessary for introducing into and supplying such city and its inhabitants either with gaslight or other illuminating light, or with fresh water for domestic and all other purposes, upon the condition that the municipal government shall have the right to regulate the charges thereof. [Amendment adopted November 4, 1884.]

ARTICLE XII.

CORPORATIONS.

Corporations, how formed.

SECTION 1. Corporations may be formed under general laws, but shall not be created by special act. All laws now in force in this State concerning corporations, and all laws that may be hereafter passed pursuant to this section, may be altered from time to time or repealed.

Corporations, dues from.

SEC. 2. Dues from corporations shall be secured by such individual liability of the corporators and other means as may be prescribed by law.

Corporation stockholders and directors, liability of.

SEC. 3. Each stockholder of a corporation, or joint-stock association, shall be individually and personally liable for such proportion of all its debts and liabilities contracted or incurred, during the time he was a stockholder, as the amount of stock or shares owned by him bears to the whole of the subscribed capital stock, or shares of the corporation or association. The directors or trustees of corporations and joint-stock associations shall be jointly and severally liable to the creditors and stockholders for all moneys embezzled or misappropriated by the officers of such corporation or joint-stock association, during the term of office of such director or trustee.

Nothing in the preceding paragraph of this section shall be held to apply to any exposition company organized to promote and carry on any international exposition or world's fair within the State of California, and the liability of stockholders in any such exposition company shall be and the same is hereby limited to an amount not exceeding the par value of the stock of said corporation subscribed for by such stockholders. [Amendment adopted November 3, 1908.]

Corporations, what they include.

SEC. 4. The term corporations, as used in this article, shall be construed to include all associations and joint-stock companies having any of the powers or privileges of corporations not possessed by individuals or partnerships, and all corporations shall have the right to sue and be subject to be sued, in all courts, in like cases as natural persons.

Banking corporations.

SEC. 5. The Legislature shall have no power to pass any act granting any charter for banking purposes, but corporations or associations may be formed for such purposes under general laws. No corporation, association, or individual shall issue or put in circulation, as money, anything but the lawful money of the United States.

Existing charters, invalid in certain cases.

SEC. 6. All existing charters, grants, franchises, special or exclusive privileges, under which an actual and bona fide organization shall not have taken place, and business been commenced in good faith, at the time of the adoption of this Constitution, shall thereafter have no validity.

Franchises or charters not to be extended by Legislature—Extension of corporate existence.

SEC. 7. The Legislature shall not extend any franchise or charter, nor remit the forfeiture of any franchise or charter of any quasi-public corporation now existing or which shall hereafter exist under the laws of this State. The term of existence of any other corporation now or hereafter existing under the laws of this State, may be extended, at any time prior to the expiration of its corporate existence, for a period not exceeding fifty years from the date of such extension, by the vote or written consent of stockholders representing two thirds of its capital stock or of two thirds of the members thereof. A certificate of such vote or consent shall be signed and sworn to by the president and secretary, and by a majority of the directors of the corporation and filed and certified in the manner and upon payment of fees required by law for filing and certifying articles of incorporation, and thereupon the term of the corporation shall be extended for the period specified in such certificate, and such corporation shall thereafter pay all annual or other fees required by law to be paid by corporations. [Amendment adopted November 3, 1908.]

Corporate property subject to eminent domain.

SEC. 8. The exercise of the right of eminent domain shall never be so abridged or construed as to prevent the Legislature from taking the property and franchises of incorporated companies and subjecting them to public use the same as the property of individuals; and the exercise of the police power of the State shall never be so abridged or construed as to permit corporations to conduct their business in such manner as to infringe the rights of individuals or the general well-being of the State.

Limitation on business of corporations.

SEC. 9. No corporation shall engage in any business other than that expressly authorized in its charter or the law under which it may have been or may hereafter be organized; nor shall it hold for a longer period than five years any real estate, except such as may be necessary for carrying on its business.

Liabilities not released by transfer of franchise.

SEC. 10. The Legislature shall not pass any laws permitting the leasing or alienation of any franchise, so as to relieve the franchise or property held thereunder from the liabilities of the lessor or grantor, lessee or grantee, contracted or incurred in the operation, use, or enjoyment of such franchise, or any of its privileges.

Issuance of stock.

SEC. 11. No corporation shall issue stock or bonds, except for money paid, labor done, or property actually received, and all fictitious increase of stock or indebtedness shall be void. The stock and bonded indebtedness of corporations shall not be increased, except in pursuance of general law, nor without the consent of the persons holding the larger amount in value of the stock, at a meeting called for that purpose, giving sixty days' public notice, as may be provided by law.

Elections for directors.

SEC. 12. In all elections for directors or managers of corporations every stockholder shall have the right to vote, in person or by proxy, the number of shares of stock owned by him, for as many persons as there are directors or managers to be elected, or to cumulate said shares and give one candidate as many votes as the number of directors multiplied by the number of his shares of stock shall equal, or to distribute them, on the same principle, among as many candidates as he shall think fit; and such directors or managers shall not be elected in any other manner, except that members of coöperative societies formed for agricultural, mercantile, and manufacturing purposes may vote on all questions affecting such societies in manner prescribed by law.

State credit not to be loaned.

SEC. 13. The State shall not, in any manner, loan its credit, nor shall it subscribe to or be interested in the stock of any company, association, or corporation.

Corporations must maintain a place of business.

SEC. 14. Every corporation other than religious, educational, or benevolent, organized or doing business in this State, shall have and maintain an office or place in this State for the transaction of its business, where transfers of stock shall be made, and in which shall be kept, for inspection by every person having an interest therein, and legislative committees, books in which shall be recorded the amount of capital stock subscribed, and by whom; the names of the owners of its stock, and the amounts owned by them, respectively; the amount of stock paid in, and by whom; the transfers of stock; the amount of its assets and liabilities, and the names and places of residence of its officers.

Foreign corporations.

SEC. 15. No corporation organized outside the limits of this State shall be allowed to transact business within this State on more favorable conditions than are prescribed by law to similar corporations organized under the laws of this State.

Corporations may be sued, where.

SEC. 16. A corporation or association may be sued in the county where the contract is made or is to be performed, or where the obligation or liability arises or the breach occurs; or in the county where the principal place of business of such corporation is situated, subject to the power of the court to change the place of trial, as in other cases.

Common carriers.

SEC. 17. All railroad, canal, and other transportation companies are declared to be common carriers, and subject to legislative control. Any association or corporation, organized for the purpose under the laws of this State, shall have the right to connect at the State line with railroads of other States. Every railroad company shall have the right with its road to intersect, connect with, or cross any other railroad, and shall receive and transport each the other's passengers, tonnage, and cars, without delay or discrimination.

Limit on interest of an officer or agent.

SEC. 18. No president, director, officer, agent, or employé of any railroad or canal company shall be interested, directly or indirectly, in the furnishing of material or supplies to such company, nor in the business of transportation as a common carrier of freight or passengers over the works owned, leased, controlled, or worked by such company, except such interest in the business of transportation as lawfully flows from the ownership of stock therein.

Public officers not to receive passes.

SEC. 19. No railroad or other transportation company shall grant free passes, or passes or tickets at a discount, to any person holding any office of honor, trust, or profit in this State; and the acceptance of any such pass or ticket by a member of the Legislature, or any public officer, other than Railroad Commissioner, shall work a forfeiture of his office.

Earnings not to be shared—Rates not to be increased.

SEC. 20. No railroad company or other common carrier shall combine or make any contract with the owners of any vessel that leaves port or makes port in this State, or with any common carrier, by which combination or contract the earnings of one doing the carrying are to be shared by the other not doing the carrying. And whenever a railroad corporation shall, for the purpose of competing with any other common carrier, lower its rates for transportation of passengers or freight from one point to another, such reduced rates shall not be again raised or increased from such standard without the consent of the governmental authority in which shall be vested the power to regulate fares and freights.

Discrimination forbidden.

SEC. 21. No discrimination in charges or facilities for transportation shall be made by any railroad or other transportation company between places or persons, or in the facilities for the transportation of the same classes of freight or passengers within this State, or coming from or going to any other State. Persons and property transported over any railroad, or by any other transportation company or individual, shall be delivered at any station, landing, or port, at charges not exceeding the charges for the transportation of persons and property of the same class, in the same direction, to any more distant station, port, or landing. Excursion and commutation tickets may be issued at special rates.

Railroad Commissioners—Number, election, term, qualifications, powers and duties, how removed from office.

SEC. 22. The State shall be divided into three districts as nearly equal in population as practicable, in each of which one Railroad Commissioner shall be elected by the qualified electors thereof at the regular gubernatorial elections, whose salary shall be fixed by law, and whose term of office shall be four years, commencing on the first Monday after the first day of January next succeeding their election. Said Commissioners shall be qualified electors of this State and of the district from which they are elected, and shall not be interested in any railroad corporation, or other transportation company, as stockholder, creditor, agent, attorney, or employé; and the act of a majority of said Commissioners shall be deemed the act of said Commission. Said Commissioners shall have the power, and it shall be their duty, to establish rates of charges for the transportation of passengers and freight by railroad or other transportation companies, and publish the same from time to time, with such changes as they may make; to examine the books, records, and papers of all railroad and other transportation companies, and for this purpose they shall have power to issue subpoenas and all other necessary process; to hear and determine complaints against railroad and other transportation companies, to send for persons and papers, to administer oaths, take testimony, and punish for contempt of their orders and processes, in the same manner and to the same extent as courts of record, and enforce their decisions and correct abuses through the medium of the courts. Said Commissioners shall prescribe a uniform system of accounts to be kept by all such corporations and companies. Any railroad corporation or transportation company which shall fail or refuse to conform to such rates as shall be established by such Commissioners, or shall charge rates in excess thereof, or shall fail to keep their accounts in accordance with the system prescribed by the Commission, shall be fined not exceeding twenty thousand dollars for each offense; and every officer, agent, or employé of any such corporation or company, who shall demand or receive rates in excess thereof, or who shall in any manner violate the provisions of this section, shall be fined not exceeding five thousand dollars, or be imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding one year. In all controversies, civil or criminal, the rates of fares and freights established by said Commission shall be deemed conclusively just and reasonable, and in any action against such corporation or company for damages sustained by charging excessive rates, the plaintiff, in addition to the actual damage, may, in the discretion of the judge or jury, recover exemplary damages. Said Commission shall report to the Governor, annually, their proceedings, and such other facts as may be deemed important. Nothing in this section shall prevent individuals from maintaining actions against any of such companies. The Legislature may, in addition to any penalties herein prescribed, enforce this article by forfeiture of charter or otherwise, and may confer such further powers on the Commissioners as shall be necessary, to enable them to perform the duties enjoined on them in this and the foregoing section. The Legislature shall have power, by a two thirds vote of all the members elected to each house, to remove any one or more of said Commissioners from office, for dereliction of duty, or corruption, or incompetency; and whenever, from any cause, a vacancy in office shall occur in said Commission, the Governor shall fill the same by the appointment of a qualified person thereto, who shall hold office for the residue of the unexpired term, and until his successor shall have been elected and qualified.

Railroad districts.

SEC. 23. Until the Legislature shall district the State, the following shall be the railroad districts: The First District shall be composed of the counties of Alpine, Amador, Butte, Calaveras, Colusa, Del Norte, El Dorado, Humboldt, Lake, Lassen, Mendocino, Modoc, Napa, Nevada, Placer, Plumas, Sacramento, Shasta, Sierra, Siskiyou, Solano, Sonoma, Sutter, Tehama, Trinity, Yolo, and Yuba, from which one Railroad Commissioner shall be elected. The Second District shall be composed of the counties of Marin, San Francisco, and San Mateo, from which one Railroad Commissioner shall be elected. The Third District shall be composed of the counties of Alameda, Contra Costa, Fresno, Inyo, Kern, Los Angeles, Mariposa, Merced, Mono, Monterey, San Benito, San Bernardino, San Diego, San Joaquin, San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara, Santa Clara, Santa Cruz, Stanislaus, Tulare, Tuolumne, and Ventura, from which one Railroad Commissioner shall be elected.

Legislature to enforce this article.

SEC. 24. The Legislature shall pass all laws necessary for the enforcement of the provisions of this article.

ARTICLE XIII.

REVENUE AND TAXATION.

Property to be taxed according to value—Exemptions.

SECTION 1. All property in the State, not exempt under the laws of the United States, shall be taxed in proportion to its value, to be ascertained as provided by law. The word "property," as used in this article and section, is hereby declared to include moneys, credits, bonds, stocks, dues, franchises, and all other matters and things, real, personal and mixed, capable of private ownership; provided, that property used for free public libraries and free museums, growing crops, property used exclusively for public schools, and such as may belong to the United States, this State, or to any county or municipal corporation within this State, shall be exempt from taxation. The Legislature may provide, except in case of credits secured by mortgage or trust deed, for a deduction from credits of debts due to bona fide residents of this State. [Amendment adopted November 6, 1894.]

Churches exempt from taxation.

SEC. 1½. All buildings, and so much of the real property on which they are situated as may be required for the convenient use and occupation of said buildings, when the same are used solely and exclusively for religious worship, shall be free from taxation; provided, that no building so used which may be rented for religious purposes and rent received by the owner therefor, shall be exempt from taxation. [New section; adopted November 6, 1900.]

State, county, city and district bonds exempt from taxation.

SEC. 1 $\frac{3}{4}$. All bonds hereafter issued by the State of California, or by any county, city and county, municipal corporation, or district (including school, reclamation, and irrigation districts) within said State, shall be free and exempt from taxation. [New section; adopted November 4, 1902.]

Assessment of land—Improvements to be separately assessed.

SEC. 2. Land, and the improvements thereon, shall be separately assessed. Cultivated and uncultivated land, of the same quality, and similarly situated, shall be assessed at the same value.

Assessment of tracts of land.

SEC. 3. Every tract of land containing more than six hundred and forty acres, and which has been sectionized by the United States Government, shall be assessed, for the purposes of taxation, by sections or fractions of sections. The Legislature shall provide by law for the assessment, in small tracts, of all lands not sectionized by the United States Government.

Taxation of mortgages and securities.

SEC. 4. A mortgage, deed of trust, contract, or other obligation by which a debt is secured, shall, for the purpose of assessment and taxation, be deemed and treated as an interest in the property affected thereby. Except as to railroad and other quasi-public corporations, in case of debt so secured, the value of the property affected by such mortgage, deed of trust, contract, or obligation, less the value of such security shall be assessed and taxed to the owner of the property, and the value of such security shall be assessed and taxed to the owner thereof, in the county, city, or district in which the property affected thereby is situate. The taxes so levied shall be a lien upon the property and security, and may be paid by either party to such security; if paid by the owner of the security, the tax so levied upon the property affected thereby shall become a part of the debt so secured; if the owner of the property shall pay the tax so levied on such security, it shall constitute a payment thereon, and to the extent of such payment, a full discharge thereof; provided, that if any such security or indebtedness shall be paid by any such debtor or debtors, after assessment and before the tax levy, the amount of such levy may likewise be retained by such debtor or debtors, and shall be computed according to the tax levy for the preceding year.

Contract to pay tax on borrowed money, void.

SEC. 5. [Repealed November 6, 1906.]

Power of taxation not to be impaired.

SEC. 6. The power of taxation shall never be surrendered or suspended by any grant or contract to which the State shall be a party.

Payment of taxes by installments.

SEC. 7. The Legislature shall have the power to provide by law for the payment of all taxes on real property by installments.

Taxpayer to make statement to County Assessor.

SEC. 8. The Legislature shall by law require each taxpayer in this State to make and deliver to the County Assessor, annually, a statement, under oath, setting forth specifically all the real and personal property owned by such taxpayer, or in his possession, or under his control, at twelve o'clock meridian on the first Monday of March.

State and County Boards of Equalization.

SEC. 9. A State Board of Equalization, consisting of one member from each congressional district in this State, as the same existed in eighteen hundred and seventy-nine, shall be elected by the qualified electors of their respective districts, at the general election to be held in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-six, and at each gubernatorial election thereafter, whose term of office shall be for four years; whose duty it shall be to equalize the valuation of the taxable property in the several counties of the State for the purposes of taxation. The Controller of State shall be ex officio a member of the board. The Boards of Supervisors of the several counties of the State shall constitute Boards of Equalization for their respective counties, whose duty it shall be to equalize the valuation of the taxable property in the county for the purpose of taxation; provided, such State and County Boards of Equalization are hereby authorized and empowered, under such rules of notice as the County Boards may prescribe as to county assessments, and under such rules of notice as the State Board may prescribe as to the action of the State Board, to increase or lower the entire assessment roll, or any assessment contained therein, so as to equalize the assessment of the property contained in said assessment roll, and make the assessment conform to the true value in money of the property contained in said roll; provided, that no Board of Equalization shall raise any mortgage, deed of trust, contract or other obligation by which a debt is secured, money, or solvent credits, above its face value. The present State Board of Equalization shall continue in office until their successors, as herein provided for, shall be elected and shall qualify. The Legislature shall have power to redistrict the State into four districts, as nearly equal in population as practical, and to provide for the elections of members of said Board of Equalization. [Amendment adopted November 4, 1884.]

Property, where and by whom assessed.

SEC. 10. All property, except as hereinafter in this section provided, shall be assessed in the county, city and county, town, township, or district in which it is situated, in the manner prescribed by law. The franchise, roadway, roadbed, rails, and rolling stock of all railroads operated in more than one county in this State shall be assessed by the State Board of Equalization at their actual value, and the same shall be apportioned to the counties, cities and counties, cities, towns, townships, and districts in which such railroads are located, in proportion to the number of miles of railway laid in such counties, cities and counties, cities, towns, townships, and districts.

Personal property exempt from taxation.

SEC. 10½. The personal property of every householder to the amount of one hundred dollars, the articles to be selected by each householder, shall be exempt from taxation. [New section; adopted November 8, 1904.]

Income taxes.

SEC. 11. Income taxes may be assessed to and collected from persons, corporations, joint-stock associations, or companies resident or doing business in this State, or any one or more of them, in such cases and amounts, and in such manner, as shall be prescribed by law.

Poll tax.

SEC. 12. The Legislature shall provide for the levy and collection of an annual poll tax, of not less than two dollars, on every male inhabitant of this State over twenty-one and under sixty years of age, except paupers, idiots, insane persons, and Indians not taxed. Said tax shall be paid into the State school fund.

Young trees and vines exempt from taxation.

SEC. 12¾. Fruit and nut-bearing trees under the age of four years from the time of planting in orchard form, and grapevines under the age of three years from the time of planting in vineyard form, shall be exempt from taxation, and nothing in this article shall be construed as subjecting such trees and grapevines to taxation. [New section; adopted November 6, 1894.]

Legislature to pass laws to enforce taxation.

SEC. 13. The Legislature shall pass all laws necessary to carry out the provisions of this article.

ARTICLE XIV.

WATER AND WATER RIGHTS.

Subject to control of State.

SECTION 1. The use of all water now appropriated, or that may hereafter be appropriated, for sale, rental, or distribution, is hereby declared to be a public use, and subject to the regulation and control of the State, in the manner to be prescribed by law; provided, that the rates or compensation to be collected by any person, company, or corporation in this State for the use of water supplied to any city and county, or city, or town, or the inhabitants thereof, shall be fixed, annually, by the Board of Supervisors, or City and County, or City, or Town Council, or other governing body of such city and county, or city, or town, by ordinance or otherwise, in the manner that other ordinances or legislative acts or resolutions are passed by such body, and shall continue in force for one year and no longer. Such ordinances or resolutions shall be passed in the month of February of each year, and take effect on the first day of July thereafter. Any board or body failing to pass the necessary ordinances or resolutions fixing water rates, where necessary, within such time, shall be subject to peremptory process to compel action, at the suit of any party interested, and shall be liable to such further processes and penalties as the Legislature may prescribe. Any person, company, or corporation collecting water rates in any city and county, or city, or town in this State, otherwise than as so established, shall forfeit the franchises and waterworks of such person, company, or corporation to the city and county, or city, or town, where the same are collected, for the public use.

Right to collect rates is a franchise.

SEC. 2. The right to collect rates or compensation for the use of waters supplied to any county, city and county, or town, or the inhabitants thereof, is a franchise, and can not be exercised except by authority of and in the manner prescribed by law.

ARTICLE XV.

HARBOR FRONTAGE, ETC.

Right of the State to frontage.

SECTION 1. The right of eminent domain is hereby declared to exist in the State to all frontages on the navigable waters of this State.

Access to navigable waters.

SEC. 2. No individual, partnership, or corporation, claiming or possessing the frontage of tidal lands of a harbor, bay, inlet, estuary, or other navigable water in this State, shall be permitted to exclude the right of way to such water whenever it is required for any public purpose, nor to destroy or obstruct the free navigation of such water; and the Legislature shall enact such laws as will give the most liberal construction to this provision, so that access to the navigable waters of this State shall be always attainable for the people thereof.

Tide lands.

SEC. 3. All tide lands within two miles of any incorporated city or town of this State, and fronting on the waters of any harbor, estuary, bay, or inlet, used for the purposes of navigation, shall be withheld from grant or sale to private persons, partnerships, or corporations.

ARTICLE XVI.

STATE INDEBTEDNESS.

Liability exceeding $300,000, how created.

SECTION 1. The Legislature shall not, in any manner, create any debt or debts, liability or liabilities, which shall, singly or in the aggregate with any previous debts or liabilities, exceed the sum of three hundred thousand dollars, except in case of war to repel invasion or suppress insurrection, unless the same shall be authorized by law for some single object or work to be distinctly specified therein, which law shall provide ways and means, exclusive of loans, for the payment of the interest of such debt or liability as it falls due, and also to pay and discharge the principal of such debt or liability within seventy-five years of the time of the contracting thereof, and shall be irrevocable until the principal and interest thereon shall be paid and discharged, and such law may make provision for a sinking fund to pay the principal of such debt or liability to commence at a time after the incurring of such debt or liability of not more than a period of one fourth of the time of maturity of such debt or liability; but no such law shall take effect until, at a general election, it shall have been submitted to the people and shall have received a majority of all the votes cast for and against it at such election; and all moneys raised by authority of such law shall be applied only to the specific object therein stated or to the payment of the debt thereby created, and such law shall be published in at least one newspaper in each county, or city and county, if one be published therein, throughout the State, for three months next preceding the election at which it is submitted to the people. The Legislature may, at any time after the approval of such law by the people, if no debt shall have been contracted in pursuance thereof, repeal the same. [Amendment adopted November 3, 1908.]

ARTICLE XVII.

LAND AND HOMESTEAD EXEMPTION.

Homestead exemption.

SECTION 1. The Legislature shall protect, by law, from forced sale, a certain portion of the homestead and other property of all heads of families.

Large land holdings discouraged.

SEC. 2. The holding of large tracts of land, uncultivated and unimproved, by individuals or corporations, is against the public interest, and should be discouraged by all means not inconsistent with the rights of private property.

State lands granted only to actual settlers.

SEC. 3. Lands belonging to this State, which are suitable for cultivation, shall be granted only to actual settlers, and in quantities not exceeding three hundred and twenty acres to each settler, under such conditions as shall be prescribed by law.

ARTICLE XVIII.

AMENDING AND REVISING THE CONSTITUTION.

Amendments, how made.

SECTION 1. Any amendment or amendments to this Constitution may be proposed in the Senate or Assembly, and if two thirds of all the members elected to each of the two houses shall vote in favor thereof, such proposed amendment or amendments shall be entered in their journals, with the yeas and nays taken thereon; and it shall be the duty of the Legislature to submit such proposed amendment or amendments to the people in such manner, and at such time, and after such publication as may be deemed expedient. Should more amendments than one be submitted at the same election, they shall be so prepared and distinguished, by numbers or otherwise, that each can be voted on separately. If the people shall approve and ratify such amendment or amendments, or any of them, by a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon, such amendment or amendments shall become a part of this Constitution.

Revision, convention for.

SEC. 2. Whenever two thirds of the members elected to each branch of the Legislature shall deem it necessary to revise this Constitution, they shall recommend to the electors to vote, at the next general election, for or against a convention for that purpose, and if a majority of the electors voting at such election on the proposition for a convention shall vote in favor thereof, the Legislature shall, at its next session, provide by law for calling the same. The convention shall consist of a number of delegates not to exceed that of both branches of the Legislature, who shall be chosen in the same manner, and have the same qualifications, as members of the Legislature. The delegates so elected shall meet within three months after their election, at such place as the Legislature may direct. At a special election to be provided for by law, the Constitution that may be agreed upon by such convention shall be submitted to the people for their ratification or rejection, in such manner as the convention may determine. The returns of such election shall, in such manner as the convention shall direct, be certified to the Executive of the State, who shall call to his assistance the Controller, Treasurer, and Secretary of State, and compare the returns so certified to him; and it shall be the duty of the Executive to declare, by his proclamation, such Constitution as may have been ratified by a majority of all the votes cast at such special election, to be the Constitution of the State of California.

ARTICLE XIX.

CHINESE.

Protection against undesirable aliens.

SECTION 1. The Legislature shall prescribe all necessary regulations for the protection of the State, and the counties, cities, and towns thereof, from the burdens and evils arising from the presence of aliens who are or may become vagrants, paupers, mendicants, criminals, or invalids afflicted with contagious or infectious diseases, and from aliens otherwise dangerous or detrimental to the well-being or peace of the State, and to impose conditions upon which such persons may reside in the State, and to provide the means and mode of their removal from the State, upon failure or refusal to comply with such conditions; provided, that nothing contained in this section shall be construed to impair or limit the power of the Legislature to pass such police laws or other regulations as it may deem necessary.

Corporations not to employ Chinese.

SEC. 2. No corporation now existing or hereafter formed under the laws of this State shall, after the adoption of this Constitution, employ, directly or indirectly, in any capacity, any Chinese or Mongolian. The Legislature shall pass such laws as may be necessary to enforce this provision.

NOTE.—SEC. 2. The provisions of this section held to be in conflict with the U. S. Constitution, and therefore void. In re Parrott, 5 Pac. Coast Law Journal, p. 161.

No Chinese to be employed on public works.

SEC. 3. No Chinese shall be employed on any State, county, municipal, or other public work, except in punishment for crime.

Chinese immigration to be discouraged.

SEC. 4. The presence of foreigners ineligible to become citizens of the United States is declared to be dangerous to the well-being of the State, and the Legislature shall discourage their immigration by all the means within its power. Asiatic coolieism is a form of human slavery, and is forever prohibited in this State, and all contracts for coolie labor shall be void. All companies or corporations, whether formed in this country or any foreign country, for the importation of such labor, shall be subject to such penalties as the Legislature may prescribe. The Legislature shall delegate all necessary power to the incorporated cities and towns of this State for the removal of Chinese without the limits of such cities and towns, or for their location within prescribed portions of those limits, and it shall also provide the necessary legislation to prohibit the introduction into this State of Chinese after the adoption of this Constitution. This section shall be enforced by appropriate legislation.

ARTICLE XX.

MISCELLANEOUS SUBJECTS.

Capital of the State—How changed.

SECTION 1. The City of Sacramento is hereby declared to be the seat of government of this State, and shall so remain until changed by law; but no law changing the seat of government shall be valid or binding unless the same be approved and ratified by a majority of the qualified electors of the State voting therefor at a general State election, under such regulations and provisions as the Legislature, by a two-thirds vote of each house, may provide, submitting the question of change to the people.

Disqualification and disfranchisement for dueling.

SEC. 2. Any citizen of this State who shall, after the adoption of this Constitution, fight a duel with deadly weapons, or send or accept a challenge to fight a duel with deadly weapons, either within this State or out of it, or who shall act as second, or knowingly aid or assist in any manner those thus offending, shall not be allowed to hold any office of profit, or to enjoy the right of suffrage under this Constitution.

Oath of office.

SEC. 3. Members of the Legislature, and all officers, executive and judicial, except such inferior officers as may be by law exempted, shall, before they enter upon the duties of their respective offices, take and subscribe the following oath or affirmation:

"I do solemnly swear (or affirm, as the case may be) that I will support the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of the State of California, and that I will faithfully discharge the duties of the office of ——— according to the best of my ability."

And no other oath, declaration, or test shall be required as a qualification for any office or public trust.

Officers or commissioners, election or appointment of.

SEC. 4. All officers or commissioners whose election or appointment is not provided for by this Constitution, and all officers or commissioners whose offices or duties may hereafter be created by law, shall be elected by the people, or appointed, as the Legislature may direct.

Fiscal year.

SEC. 5. The fiscal year shall commence on the first day of July.

Suits against the State.

SEC. 6. Suits may be brought against the State in such manner and in such courts as shall be directed by law.

Marriage contracts.

SEC. 7. No contract of marriage, if otherwise duly made, shall be invalidated for want of conformity to the requirements of any religious sect.

Separate property of husband and wife.

SEC. 8. All property, real and personal, owned by either husband or wife, before marriage, and that acquired by either of them afterwards by gift, devise, or descent, shall be their separate property.

Perpetuities.

SEC. 9. No perpetuities shall be allowed except for eleemosynary purposes.

Disqualification for bribery.

SEC. 10. Every person shall be disqualified from holding any office of profit in this State who shall have been convicted of having given or offered a bribe to procure his election or appointment.

Purity in office-holding and in elections.

SEC. 11. Laws shall be made to exclude from office, serving on juries, and from the right of suffrage, persons convicted of bribery, perjury, forgery, malfeasance in office, or other high crimes. The privilege of free suffrage shall be supported by laws regulating elections, and prohibiting, under adequate penalties, all undue influence thereon from power, bribery, tumult, or other improper practice.

Residence, when absence does not affect.

SEC. 12. Absence from this State, on business of the State or of the United States, shall not affect the question of residence of any person.

Election by plurality.

SEC. 13. A plurality of the votes given at any election shall constitute a choice, where not otherwise directed in this Constitution.

State Board of Health.

SEC. 14. The Legislature shall provide, by law, for the maintenance and efficiency of a State Board of Health.

Mechanics' lien.

SEC. 15. Mechanics, materialmen, artisans, and laborers of every class, shall have a lien upon the property upon which they have bestowed labor or furnished material, for the value of such labor done and material furnished; and the Legislature shall provide, by law, for the speedy and efficient enforcement of such liens.

Term of offices, when not fixed by Constitution.

SEC. 16. When the term of any officer or commissioner is not provided for in this Constitution, the term of such officer or commissioner may be declared by law; and, if not so declared, such officer or commissioner shall hold his position as such officer or commissioner during the pleasure of the authority making the appointment; but in no case shall such term exceed four years; provided, however, that in the case of any officer or employé of any municipality governed under a legally adopted charter, the provisions of such charter with reference to the tenure of office or the dismissal from office of any such officer or employé shall control. [Amendment adopted November 6, 1906.]

Hours of labor on public works.

SEC. 17. The time of service of all laborers or workmen or mechanics employed upon any public works of the State of California, or of any county, city and county, city, town, district, township, or any other political subdivision thereof, whether said work is done by contract or otherwise, shall be limited and restricted to eight hours in any one calendar day, except in cases of extraordinary emergency caused by fire, flood, or danger to life and property, or except to work upon public, military, or naval works or defenses in time of war, and the Legislature shall provide by law that a stipulation to this effect shall be incorporated in all contracts for public work, and prescribe proper penalties for the speedy and efficient enforcement of said law. [Amendment adopted November 4, 1902.]

Sex does not disqualify for business pursuits.

SEC. 18. No person shall, on account of sex, be disqualified from entering upon or pursuing any lawful business, vocation, or profession.

Expenses of constitutional convention.

SEC. 19. Nothing in this Constitution shall prevent the Legislature from providing, by law, for the payment of the expenses of the convention framing this Constitution, including the per diem of the delegates for the full term thereof.

Elections, when held—Terms of office.

SEC. 20. Elections of the officers provided for by this Constitution, except at the election in the year eighteen hundred and seventy-nine, shall be held on the even numbered years next before the expiration of their respective terms. The terms of such officers shall commence on the first Monday after the first day of January next following their election.

ARTICLE XXI.BOUNDARY.*Boundary of State.

SECTION 1. The boundary of the State of California shall be as follows: Commencing at the point of intersection of the forty-second degree of north latitude with the one hundred and twentieth degree of longitude west from Greenwich, and running south on the line of said one hundred and twentieth degree of west longitude until it intersects the thirty-ninth degree of north latitude; thence running in a straight line, in a southeasterly direction, to the River Colorado, at a point where it intersects the thirty-fifth degree of north latitude; thence down the middle of the channel of said river to the boundary line between the United States and Mexico, as established by the treaty of May thirtieth, one thousand eight hundred and forty-eight; thence running west and along said boundary line to the Pacific Ocean, and extending therein three English miles; thence running in a northwesterly direction and following the direction of the Pacific coast to the forty-second degree of north latitude; thence on the line of said forty-second degree of north latitude to the place of beginning. Also, including all the islands, harbors, and bays along and adjacent to the coast.

ARTICLE XXII.

SCHEDULE.

That no inconvenience may arise from the alterations and amendments in the Constitution of this State, and to carry the same into complete effect, it is hereby ordained and declared:

Present laws in force.

SECTION 1. That all laws in force at the adoption of this Constitution, not inconsistent therewith, shall remain in full force and effect until altered or repealed by the Legislature; and all rights, actions, prosecutions, claims, and contracts of the State, counties, individuals, or bodies corporate, not inconsistent therewith, shall continue to be as valid as if this Constitution had not been adopted. The provisions of all laws which are inconsistent with this Constitution shall cease upon the adoption thereof, except that all laws which are inconsistent with such provisions of this Constitution as require legislation to enforce them shall remain in full force until the first day of July, eighteen hundred and eighty, unless sooner altered or repealed by the Legislature.

Existing obligations and actions unaffected.

SEC. 2. That all recognizances, obligations, and all other instruments entered into or executed before the adoption of this Constitution, to this State, or to any subdivision thereof, or any municipality therein, and all fines, taxes, penalties, and forfeitures due or owing to this State, or any subdivision or municipality thereof, and all writs, prosecutions, actions, and causes of action, except as herein otherwise provided, shall continue and remain unaffected by the adoption of this Constitution. All indictments or informations which shall have been found, or may hereafter be found, for any crime or offense committed before this Constitution takes effect, may be proceeded upon as if no change had taken place, except as otherwise provided in this Constitution.

Certain existing courts abolished.

SEC. 3. All courts now existing, save Justices' and Police Courts, are hereby abolished; and all records, books, papers, and proceedings from such courts, as are abolished by this Constitution, shall be transferred, on the first day of January, eighteen hundred and eighty, to the Courts provided for in this Constitution; and the courts to which the same are thus transferred shall have the same power and jurisdiction over them as if they had been in the first instance commenced, filed, or lodged therein.

Printing of Constitution and proclamation of election therefor.

SEC. 4. The Superintendent of Printing of the State of California shall, at least thirty days before the first Wednesday in May, A. D. eighteen hundred and seventy-nine, cause to be printed at the State Printing Office, in pamphlet form, simply stitched, as many copies of this Constitution as there are registered voters in this State, and mail one copy thereof to the post office address of each registered voter; provided, any copies not called for ten days after reaching their delivery office, shall be subject to general distribution by the several postmasters of the State. The Governor shall issue his proclamation, giving notice of the election for the adoption or rejection of this Constitution, at least thirty days before the said first Wednesday of May, eighteen hundred and seventy-nine, and the Boards of Supervisors of the several counties shall cause said proclamation to be made public in their respective counties, and general notice of said election to be given at least fifteen days next before said election.

Ballots for voting on Constitution.

SEC. 5. The Superintendent of Printing of the State of California shall, at least twenty days before said election, cause to be printed and delivered to the Clerk of each county in this State five times the number of properly prepared ballots for said election that there are voters in said respective counties, with the words printed thereon: "For the New Constitution." He shall likewise cause to be so printed and delivered to said Clerks five times the number of properly prepared ballots for said election that there are voters in said respective counties with the words printed thereon: "Against the New Constitution." The Secretary of State is hereby authorized and required to furnish the Superintendent of State Printing a sufficient quantity of legal ballot paper, now on hand, to carry out the provisions of this section.

County Clerks to provide poll books, etc.

SEC. 6. The Clerks of the several counties in the State shall, at least five days before said election, cause to be delivered to the inspectors of election, at each election precinct or polling place in their respective counties, suitable registers, poll books, forms of return, and an equal number of the aforesaid ballots, which number, in the aggregate, must be ten times greater than the number of voters in the said election precincts or polling places. The returns of the number of votes cast at the presidential election in the year eighteen hundred and seventy-six shall serve as a basis of calculation for this and the preceding section; provided, that the duties in this and the preceding section imposed upon the Clerks of the respective counties shall, in the City and County of San Francisco, be performed by the Registrar of Voters for said city and county.

Who entitled to vote.

SEC. 7. Every citizen of the United States, entitled by law to vote for members of the Assembly in this State, shall be entitled to vote for the adoption or rejection of this Constitution.

Returns, how canvassed.

SEC. 8. The officers of the several counties of this State, whose duty it is, under the law, to receive and canvass the returns from the several precincts of their respective counties, as well as of the City and County of San Francisco, shall meet at the usual places of meeting for such purposes on the first Monday after said election. If, at the time of meeting, the returns from each precinct in the county in which the polls were opened have been received, the board must then and there proceed to canvass the returns; but if all the returns have not been received, the canvass must be postponed from time to time until all the returns are received, or until the second Monday after said election, when they shall proceed to make out returns of the votes cast for and against the new Constitution; and the proceedings of said board shall be the same as those prescribed for like boards in the case of an election for Governor. Upon the completion of said canvass and returns, the said boards shall immediately certify the same in the usual form, to the Governor of the State of California.

Computation of returns and proclamation thereof.

SEC. 9. The Governor of the State of California shall, as soon as the returns of said election shall be received by him, or within thirty days after said election, in the presence and with the assistance of the Controller, Treasurer, and Secretary of State, open and compute all the returns received of votes cast for and against the new Constitution. If, by such examination and computation, it is ascertained that a majority of the whole number of votes cast at such election is in favor of such new Constitution, the Executive of this State shall, by his proclamation, declare such new Constitution to be the Constitution of the State of California, and that it shall take effect and be in force on the days hereinafter specified.

Terms of officers first elected.

SEC. 10. In order that future elections in this State shall conform to the requirements of this Constitution, the terms of all officers elected at the first election under the same shall be, respectively, one year shorter than the terms as fixed by law or by this Constitution; and the successors of all such officers shall be elected at the last election before the expiration of the terms as in this section provided. The first officers chosen after the adoption of this Constitution shall be elected at the time and in the manner now provided by law. Judicial officers and the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall be elected at the time and in the manner that State officers are elected.

Laws relating to judicial system.

SEC. 11. All laws relative to the present judicial system of the State shall be applicable to the judicial system created by this Constitution until changed by legislation.

Constitution, when to take effect.

SEC. 12. This Constitution shall take effect and be in force on and after the fourth day of July, eighteen hundred and seventy-nine, at twelve o'clock meridian, so far as the same relates to the election of all officers, the commencement of their terms of office, and the meeting of the Legislature. In all other respects, and for all other purposes, this Constitution shall take effect on the first day of January, eighteen hundred and eighty, at twelve o'clock meridian.

J. P. HOGE, President.

Attest: EDWIN F. SMITH, Secretary.

California State Library.—At the first session of the California State Legislature John S. Bradford, a member of the Assembly from the Sonoma District, introduced a bill entitled "An act defining the duties of State Librarian and prescribing rules for the government of the State Library." This bill was passed by the Assembly and Senate and was signed by Governor Peter H. Burnett April 9, 1850. In 1903, greatly increased powers were granted to the trustees, resulting in a great extension of the work of the library, and the application of such methods as are approved and employed in the best equipped libraries of the country.

The total number of accessioned volumes in the library is 150,000, and in addition there are 14,468 volumes in the traveling libraries and 1,160 volumes of embossed books for the use of the blind.

The Law Department is fully equipped with statutes, reports, digests, encyclopedias, and text-books, and is entirely free to the public for reference use. State officers are entitled to borrow books, and private individuals are accorded the same privilege upon presentation of an order signed by a Superior or higher judge.

The Sociological Department has for its object a close correlation of the library with the public life of the State. Information is furnished on all subjects connected with the administration of public affairs to officials, both State and local, as well as to all others interested. A collection of public documents of all kinds, pamphlets and fugitive publications, is being gathered and made available by means of indexes, notes, etc. Special attention is paid to the needs of legislators and legislative committees.

The Reference and Loan Department aims to make accessible the valuable material contained in the library. Information is furnished to any one who requests it either in person or by letter. Books are loaned to any resident of the State who applies through a local library, or other educational institution, a State traveling library, a registered study club, or a Superior Judge. In localities where none of these methods are available, books are loaned direct upon receipt of a $5.00 deposit, which will be returned when books are no longer wanted.

The work of the Catalog Department is proceeding along two parallel lines: the cataloging of the regular additions of new books and the recataloging of all the books acquired by the library previous to 1904.

The California Historical Department has an excellent collection of books on the history and description, resources and industries of the State, as well as the works of California authors in all departments of literature. There are biographical sketches and very full lists of names of California authors, artists, pioneers, and early settlers. The department also contains over 3,000 bound volumes of newspapers, including a complete file of California papers from 1849 to the present time.

A newspaper index has been compiled covering nearly the entire period from 1846 to date, so that the information on California affairs contained in the papers is made easily available.

The Extension Department is subdivided into the Traveling Libraries Division, Study Club Division, Public Libraries Division, and Books for the Blind Division.

Traveling libraries are made up of 50 volumes each and are sent to any community without a public library on the application of five resident taxpayers. There is no charge for the use of the libraries, and the transportation both ways is paid by the State Library. A library may be kept three months and by special permission may be retained an additional three months.

Study Club libraries are loaned to any registered study club on the application of two resident taxpayers. These libraries are sent out to encourage the foundation and maintenance of clubs for systematic study. There are no registration fees, and transportation charges are paid by the State Library. A study club library may be kept three months, and by special permission the time may be extended.

Embossed books in four different types are sent to any blind resident of California upon application, and collections of from ten to twenty-five books will be loaned to any public library that can vouch for at least five borrowers, on application of its trustees and upon agreement to loan the books free to any blind applicant. There are 344 blind borrowers, and the total number of books is 1,160.

The Public Libraries Division is for the purpose of encouraging the establishment of public libraries throughout the State. Two library organizers are kept in the field to assist in establishing libraries, to visit those already established, and to give advice and assistance to public libraries in regard to library methods, buildings, etc. The annual reports of all libraries in the State are kept on file in this division, and a collection of plans and views of California library buildings is available for consultation.

A Documents Department has recently been established, for the purpose of completing and caring for the Library's collection of documents and also as a means of distributing State publications to public libraries, as provided for by an act of the Legislature of 1909.

Nathaniel Ellery, appointed by the Governor, by and with the consent of the Senate, May 11, 1907; term, four years. Consulting River Board, appointed by the Governor, by and with the consent of the Senate; term, at pleasure of appointive power. Other appointments are made by the State Engineer; term, at pleasure of appointive power. Appointments by State Engineer must be confirmed by the Advisory Board.

The department exercises a general supervision over all constructive work carried on at every State institution except the University of California. In addition to the office force, inspectors are kept in the field wherever work is in progress. Inspectors are appointed by the State Engineer and their salaries are determined by the Advisory Board.

Members of the Advisory Board and of the Consulting River Board are allowed their necessary traveling expenses.

The act creating the Department of Engineering abolished the following departments in State government: Commissioner of Public Works; Department of Highways; Auditing Board to the Commissioner of Public Works; Débris Commissioner, and Lake Tahoe Wagon Road Commissioner.

 Office, State Capitol.

The object of forestry is to secure the highest permanent returns from forest lands, both in useful material and in water for irrigation. Its aim is to preserve existing forests by wise use, to replace them where they have been destroyed, and to establish them where they never existed. All such matters, in so far as they are within the jurisdiction of the State, are in charge of the State Board of Forestry acting through the State Forester.

The first condition of forest management is that the forests shall not be subject to destruction by fire. The organization of a system of forest protection is, therefore, one of the most important duties of the Board.

A firewarden force of about 650 men, distributed throughout the forested area of the State, forms the basis of the system. Most of these men give their service to the State without compensation. Certain of them, however, are employed by counties for patrol work, and the number includes most of the United States forest rangers who receive appointment as State firewardens for the sake of the extra powers conferred by the State laws. The firewardens direct the fighting of such fires as occur in their districts, enforce the forest laws, issue permits to burn brush during the dry season and assist in educating the people of the State regarding the use of fire in times and places of especial danger.

At the request of private owners the State Forester examines timber lands and sites for forest planting and makes recommendations regarding their proper management. The field expenses incurred in such examinations are required by law to be paid by the applicant.

Bulletins and circulars on forest subjects are published by the State Board of Forestry and distributed to the public. This educational work is supplemented by lectures given before associations of various sorts by the State Forester and his assistants.

California Redwood Park, administered by the State Board of Forestry, consists of approximately 3,800 acres, mainly of virgin redwood. The park is crossed by numerous streams which are bordered by ferns, mosses, and water-plants. On Waddell Creek, near the center of the basin-shaped park, are located the warden's headquarters and the rustic buildings constructed for the accommodation of visitors. The headquarters are connected with Boulder Creek by a telephone line and by a daily stage which carries mail during the summer months. From the warden's headquarters

NEW YORK

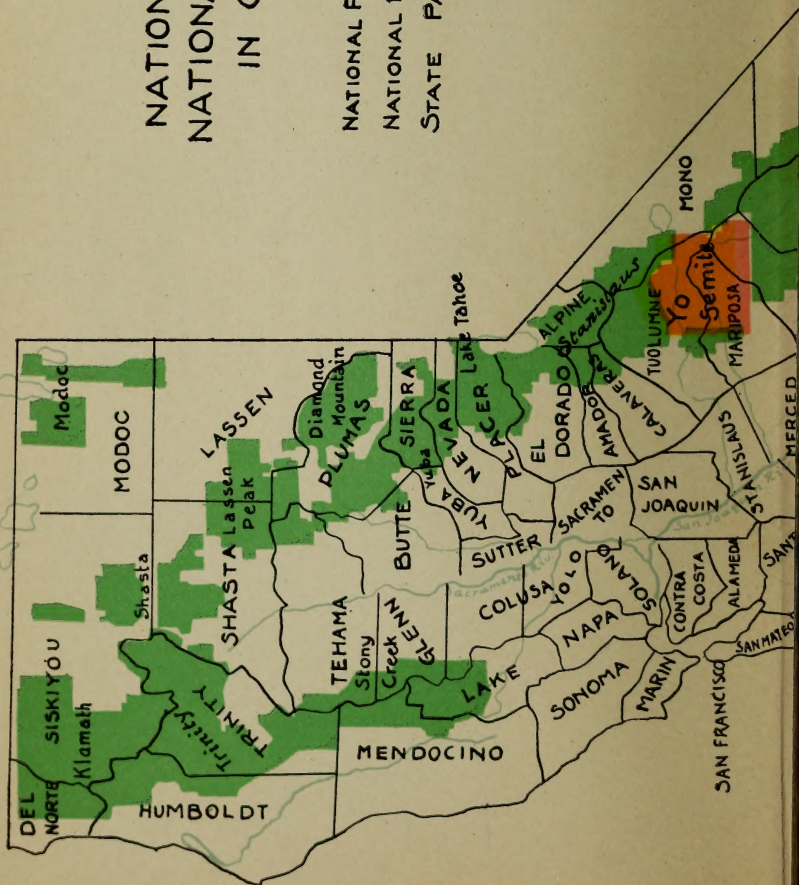

IN SENATE

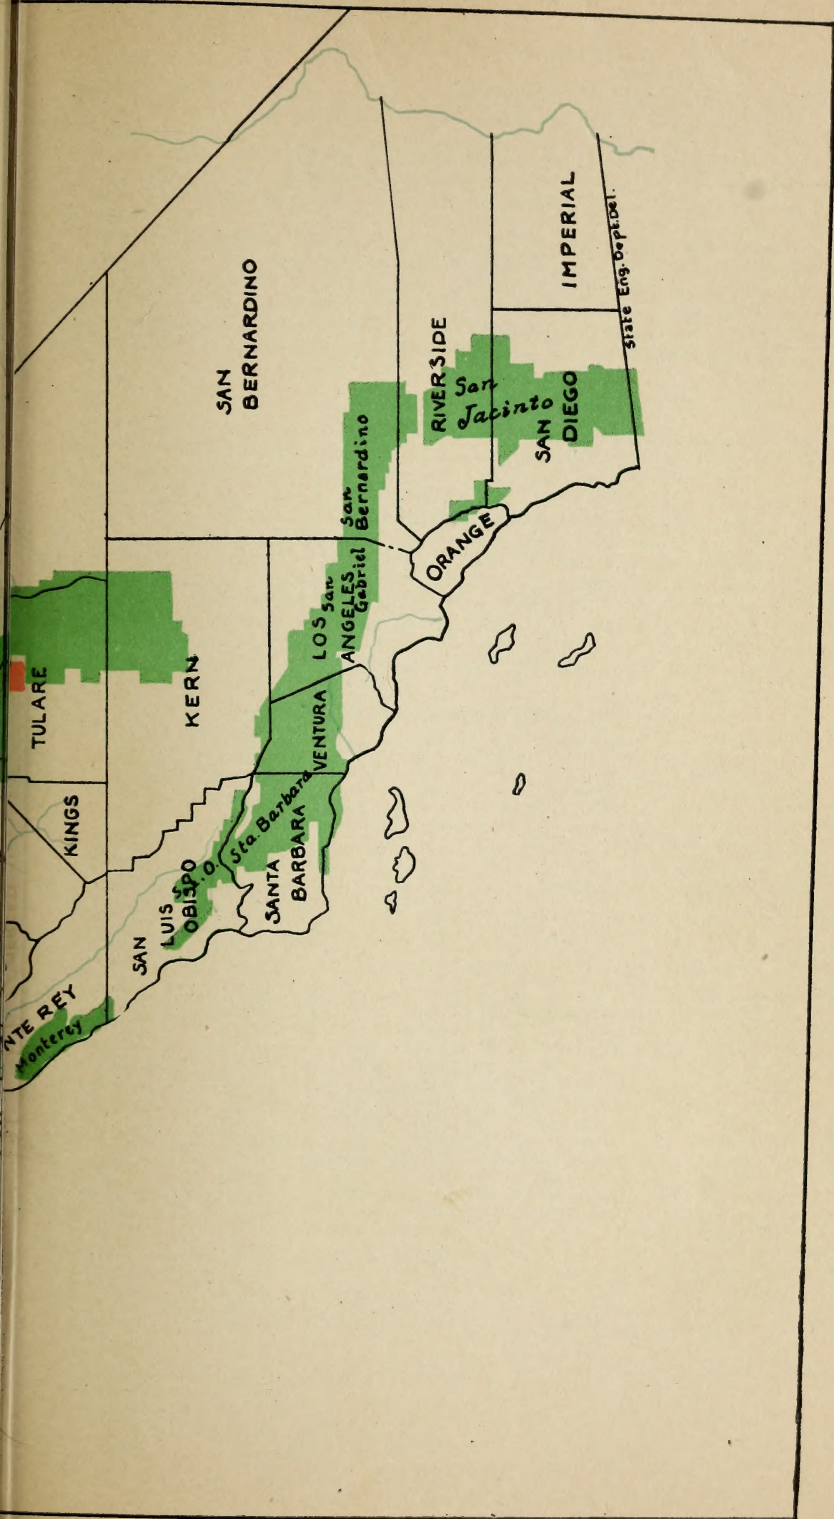

JANUARY 18, 1892

REPORT

NATIONAL FORESTS and NATIONAL and STATE PARKS IN CALIFORNIA.

- NATIONAL FORESTS
- NATIONAL PARKS
- STATE PARKS

numerous trails and walks lead to the many points of interest. An illustrative book-let descriptive of the Park can be obtained free by application to the State Forester, Sacramento, Calif.

Of California Redwood Park, United States Senator Perkins has said: "I have traveled through the forests of Mariposa and I have driven through the wonderful forests of southern Germany, yet I have never seen the equal of California Redwood Park."

David Starr Jordan, President of Stanford University, has said: "California Redwood Park is a leaf from the greatest of virgin forests, a sample of the redwoods as they have been for ten thousand years, and one which may be preserved for all time. Besides this, it is a botanical garden where the wax myrtle, the California nutmeg-tree, the California whortleberry, the clintonia, the oxalis, and all the other plants which follow the redwoods may be likewise saved for our descendants."

The National Forests of California.

The National Forests of California are under the administration of the Forest Service of the United States Department of Agriculture. The area of these forests in this State is 27,968,510 acres, greater than in any other State.

The object of the administration of the National Forests is to use them in such a way that they will yield all their resources to the fullest extent without exhausting them, for the benefit primarily of the homebuilder. The controlling policy is serving the public while conserving the forests. The California Forests, with those of western Nevada, constitute an administrative district, the headquarters of which are located in the First National Bank Building, San Francisco. This arrangement not only guarantees dispatch in business, but secures more complete harmony between the administrative forces of the forests and the many who use them. The personnel of this office and the list of the National Forests and local administrative officers follow:

F. E. Olmsted.....District Forester.
Office, First National Bank Building, San Francisco.
Coert DuBois.....Assistant District Forester.
H. P. Dechant.....District Law Officer.
Roy Headley.....Chief of Operation.
R. F. Hammatt.....Assistant Chief of Operation.
G. M. Homans.....Chief of Silviculture.
T. D. Woodbury.....Assistant Chief of Silviculture.
John H. Hatton.....Chief of Grazing.
M. B. Elliott.....Assistant Chief of Grazing.

Forestry and Irrigation.

How to Use the National Forests.

Each National Forest is administered directly by a Supervisor, who maintains headquarters in or near his forest. His assistants are called Rangers or Guards, depending on whether they are permanent or temporary employees.

To secure the use of land within a National Forest as sites for stores, hotels, residences, and other similar purposes, or for the construction of wagon roads, trails, tramroads, canals, reservoirs, telephone, and power lines, etc., consult the Supervisor or nearest Ranger. Do not use any National Forest land without first securing a permit from the Supervisor.

Timber and wood are given free to settlers, farmers, prospectors, and others for domestic use, and to school and road districts. It must be purchased for any commercial use.

In purchasing, if not more than $50 worth of material is wanted, apply to the nearest Ranger; if more than $50 worth is required, apply to the Supervisor.

To secure a permit to graze live stock in a National Forest apply to the Supervisor. Every year before the grazing season opens, notice is given of the date on which all applications must be in. The Supervisor will furnish all information regarding fees and other details.

No stock may be grazed within a National Forest without a permit, except the few heard in actual use by campers, prospectors, and travelers.

Prospecting and mining may be followed within a National Forest exactly as elsewhere. Timber and wood on a patented claim may be cut and disposed of in any way desired. On a valid unpatented claim, timber and wood may be cut and used for purposes connected with the actual development of the claim, free of charge and without a permit. It may not be cut, however, for purposes of sale nor for purposes not connected nor consistent with the actual development of the claim.

Homesteading in the National Forests is governed by the act of July 11, 1906. After selecting a homestead consonant with the terms of this act, describe it accurately by section, township, and range, or if not surveyed, by natural objects, such as streams, etc., and consult the Supervisor regarding further methods of procedure. Do not squat on land before it is listed for entry, nor ask to have valuable timber lands listed. The law refers only to lands chiefly valuable for cultivation.

In all cases where users of the National Forests have differences with the local forest officers which they can not settle satisfactorily, they should appeal to the District Forester, Forest Service, San Francisco.

The place where gold was discovered by James W. Marshall, January 24, 1848.

(The monument is situated on the slope overlooking this spot, with outstretched hand pointing to it.)

NOTE.—The exact date is somewhat in dispute as to the discovery of gold by James W. Marshall, at Sutter's Mill, near Coloma, on the South Fork of the American River, in El Dorado County. Theo. H. Hittell, in his History of California, Volume II, gives it as the 19th of January, 1848; Hubert Howe Bancroft, another historian, recites that according to Marshall's statement his discovery was made between the 18th and 20th of the month, and that the 19th has generally been accepted as the date, but that Marshall admitted some confusion as to the exact time, and Bancroft by means of other records fixes the date as Monday, the 24th of the month. This latter date has been accepted by the Century Dictionary and Atlas in its edition of 1907.

Accounts are given of other discoveries previous to this date. Joseph Aram, of New York State, and Sarah A. Aram, his wife, of Vermont, were members of a party of emigrants which in the latter part of September, 1846, pitched camp near the mouth of a little stream which emptied into the South Fork of the Yuba River where it was crossed by the old overland trail, near where now exists the boundary line between Nevada and Placer counties. It is related that Mrs. Aram, in scooping out with her hands an improvised washtub in the bed of this little brook, noticed several little yellow pieces in the fine gravel, which were examined by the party and pronounced to be gold. On the same day, however, news reached the party of the breaking out of the Mexican war, and they pushed on with all possible haste to the shelter of Sutter's Fort without stopping to make any further investigation of their discovery. In the summer of 1848, after Marshall's discovery, Mr. Aram returned to the old camping place only to find the ground already covered by miners. Aram was a member of the first Constitutional Convention, 1849, and a member of the Assembly at the first session of the legislature. He died at San Jose March 30, 1898. A son, Eugene Aram, born at Monterey January 26, 1848, and said to be the first white child born in California of native-born American parents, was a State Senator from Sutter, Yolo and Yuba counties during the 31st and 32d legislative sessions, and is now an attorney practicing in Sacramento.

General Fremont claimed that some of his men found gold previous to Marshall's discovery, and it is told that placer mining had been carried on by Mexicans in different parts of the State long previous to the advent of American settlers.

To James W. Marshall, however, is given the official and historical credit for the discovery of gold in California, and he is recognized as the first discoverer, for it was he who first made it public and it was his announcement which started westward the stream of goldseekers which poured into California and brought about an era in the history of the State.

Sutter's Fort was built at Sacramento in August, 1839, by Captain John A. Sutter. The fort is situated in the center of two blocks of land bounded by K and L. Twenty-sixth and Twenty-eighth streets, which were, in 1891, donated to the State of California by the Native Sons of the Golden West, a corporation. In 1907 the Legislature appropriated $8,000.00 for the purpose of purchasing a strip of land along the south side of L street, between Twenty-sixth and Twenty-eighth streets, for the purpose of providing more suitable boundaries, and the Legislature of 1909 appropriated $7,000.00 for additional improvements and $4,000.00 for street work.

Office, State Agricultural Building, Sacramento.

The State Agricultural Society.

By J. A. FILCHER, Secretary.

The State Agricultural Society of California was founded in 1854. The Legislature that year passed an act for its incorporation, and named the officers for the first year, as follows: President, F. W. Macondray of San Francisco; Vice-Presidents, E. S. Beard of Alameda, J. K. Rose of San Francisco, D. W. C. Thompson of Sonoma, H. C. Malone of Santa Clara, W. H. Thompson of San Francisco, and C. H. Hutchison of Sacramento; Corresponding Secretary, J. L. L. F. Warren of San Francisco; Recording Secretary, C. V. Gillespie of San Francisco; Treasurer, David Chambers of San Francisco. These officers in June following organized as a Board of Directors and fixed October 4th in San Francisco as the date and place for the opening of the State Fair in California. The act creating the incorporation carried an appropriation from the State of $5,000 a year for five years to be expended in premiums and for nothing else.

The annual fair held by the State Society for some years had no regular abiding place, but was moved from point to point according to inducements offered by different communities. In 1855 the State Fair was held at Sacramento, commencing September 25th. It may be interesting to the present generation of Sacramentans to know that at this first State Fair in that city the industrial exhibits were displayed in the Court House at Seventh and I streets, which was then in use as the State Capitol, while the stock show was held at the Louisiana race track. In 1856 the State Fair was held at San Jose; in 1857 at Stockton; in 1858 at Marysville, and in 1859 it went back again to Sacramento.

It is recorded that a great contest arose over locating the fair for 1860. Many localities were represented, and after a fight lasting four days, Sacramento finally won out for the second consecutive State Fair. At the annual meeting of the directors held in January, 1861, an amendment to the constitution of the Society was adopted in these words: "The Society shall hold an annual fair at the city of Sacramento." This fixed the location, and the State Fair has been held in Sacramento annually ever since.

To aid the fair of 1859 the citizens of Sacramento voted a tax of one quarter of one per cent on the property of the city. From the proceeds of this tax and money contributed by the citizens the ground was purchased and a brick building erected at the corner of Sixth and M streets, to be used as a pavilion by the State Agricultural Society. Subsequently, when Sacramento was selected as the permanent location of the State Fair, citizens donated ground for a half-mile track, and still later, by purchase, additional ground was secured by the Society and the half-mile track enlarged to one of a mile.

Thus it will be seen how the State Fair came to be a double department institution—in other words, how it happened that its attractions were divided, the industrial exhibits being in one place and the races and live stock attractions elsewhere. If the Society had not already been provided with a pavilion at Sixth and M streets there is hardly any doubt but when the fair was finally located permanently in Sacramento arrangements would have been made to secure grounds to accommodate all buildings and all departments of the fair in one enclosure and thus have saved the disadvantages and drawbacks that have resulted from the separate departments and more or less hampered the progress of the Society for nearly fifty years.

In 1883, when the necessity for more exhibition room was pressing and the Legislature appropriated $40,000, to be added to a like sum from the city of Sacramento, less what the old pavilion might bring at sale, for the erection of a new and larger pavilion in Capitol Park, would have been a good time to arrange for putting all the fair within one enclosure, but the logic and advisability of such an arrangement was not so apparent then as it became later.

Two departments required two sets of officers and ticket sellers and gate keepers and two admission tickets from visitors. This was bad in itself, but not so much of a drawback as the effort to get up two separate shows, one at the pavilion and one at the park, and make each sufficiently attractive to justify separate admissions. Then again, such an arrangement was not satisfactory to exhibitors. Many people visited the park and races who did not visit the pavilion, and vice versa, and by this means the exhibitors in both departments were denied the privilege of showing their displays to all visitors to the fair.

By 1904 the city of Sacramento had grown around the original park site, and, as it was deemed rather small for all purposes of the Society, the directors decided to dispose of the same and secure a larger tract outside the city limits. This decision was carried out early in 1905, and resulted in securing 80 acres of what was then known as the Lansing tract, located on the upper Stockton road, and about three miles from the center of the city. There was realized for the old park $60,500 more than the cost of the new site, and yet at that time the obligations of the Society had become so great that it consumed all this surplus and an additional amount of $85,000 appropriated by the Legislature in 1905 to meet its debts and put the new grounds in shape for the succeeding fair. Many of the first improvements were of a temporary character, particularly the sheep and swine sheds, the grandstand, and, indeed, all except the horse barns and one of the cattle barns. In 1908 a new poultry house and one additional permanent cattle barn were erected, and excepting these and the buildings added in 1909, the temporary structures built in 1905 have had to suffice.

With grounds acquired suitable for all purposes, and a growing appreciation of the fact that the Society was hampered by a condition which required it to divide its fairs in two, an appropriation of $50,000 was asked for and passed by the Legislature of 1907 for the wrecking of the pavilion in Capitol Park and the construction of two new exhibition buildings, one to be known as Agricultural Pavilion and the other as Manufacturers' Pavilion, at the new park. This was the first step in the long-needed reform of locating the fair all in one enclosure. The State Engineer, however, calculated that the $50,000 would not wreck the old pavilion and erect two such buildings as the Society ought to have, and accordingly the money was allowed to remain in the State treasury until the meeting of the succeeding Legislature in the hope of increasing the appropriation to an amount that would not only secure two creditable permanent buildings for the purposes named, but at the same time enable the Society to make certain other improvements necessary to meet the growing demands for more exhibition space and a better equipment generally. The Legislature of 1909 added $20,000 to the $50,000 already appropriated for the Agricultural and Manufacturers' pavilions, and appropriated in addition $30,000 for a new Machinery Hall, $10,000 for a pumping plant, water tower and a water piping system, and $10,000 for leveling the infield, improving roads and walks, planting the grounds and painting the poultry house and barns previously constructed. This money was expended under the direction of the State Engineer, and in spite of some obstacles, the improvements provided for were far enough advanced to be utilized for the fair of 1909, which opened on the 28th of August. This was the first State Fair in the history of California to be held all in one enclosure, and its success proved the wisdom of the change. There were some drawbacks due to poor transportation and other facilities, which will be mainly remedied before the holding of another fair, but in spite of these the fair was a success, was in many respects one of the best ever held in the State, and in the matter of pleasing the patrons, both exhibitors and visitors, has had no equal so far as there is any record.

The new arrangement insures more exhibitors and more visitors, which, of course, means still better fairs; but to meet the growing demand more equipment is necessary. Tents to accommodate the overflow exhibits had to be erected in 1909; more tents will be necessary in 1910; but in view of the facts that the State Fair is now established on a rational basis, that gambling and other objectionable features have been eliminated, that it is now moving in the right direction, and that the people are pleased with the new arrangement, it is confidently believed by the directors and officials of the Society that future legislators, the representatives of the people, will respond to any reasonable demand for additional equipment and such support generally as will make the California Agricultural Society, as it ought to be, and as State pride would have it, one of the leading institutions of the kind in America.

Salaries of field men are paid out of appropriation for support of Commission.

The State Insectary was erected by the State during the summer of 1908 at a cost of $8,000, and was formally dedicated by the delegates to the State Fruit Growers' Convention on December 2, 1908. It is 60 feet in width by 56 feet in depth, outside measurements, and contains seven rooms especially fitted for the propagation of beneficial insects, a museum, laboratory, two office rooms and a workroom, all equipped with heating and especially devised ventilating apparatus. An inside court, 40 feet in width by 35 feet in depth, is used for the purpose of propagating plants and trees and is quite a feature of the institution. The entire building, with its equipment, is unique and typical of California, and is considered by such an authority as the United States Government Entomologist as the most complete institution of its kind in the world.

The interest which this institution with its possibilities has aroused among leading entomologists everywhere is manifested by the fact that during the first year of its existence the governments of France, Spain, South Africa, Japan, and Formosa sent their specialists to study its arrangements and to solicit a copy of its working plans. It is conducted for the purpose of collecting, propagating, and distributing beneficial insects in sufficiently large numbers to be of commercial value, and thus enable all cultivators of the soil in California to produce larger crops of cleaner quality with less cost. The records of the results attained during the past season show clearly that it bids fair to eventually completely fulfill its purpose.

As an adjunct to the primary purpose of the work being done, a museum has been equipped, containing an exhibit of insect pests and plant diseases incidental to the varied phases of horticulture in California. As an educational feature, the success of this department has been very gratifying, brought about mainly through the enlightenment of county horticultural officers as well as a multitude of crop growers who have visited the Insectary and become acquainted with their insect friends and enemies.

The Hygienic and Pure Food and Drug Laboratories are located at the State University, Berkeley.

POLICY OF THE STATE BOARD OF HEALTH.

By WM. F. SNOW, M.D., Secretary.

The State Board of Health has certain regular administrative duties specified by law.

The collection and filing of the original certificates of all deaths, births, marriages; the issuing of all certified copies of these certificates; the collection of morbidity statistics, constitute the routine vital statistics work of the Board.

The enforcement of the pure food and drug laws is carried on through a special inspection and laboratory service, and the office of the Board's attorney.

The Board maintains, also, a Bacteriological laboratory for the aid of county and town health officers in their quarantine and public health protection work.

With reference to the general health laws of the State, the Board pursues a policy of aiding the local health officer in his executive work. It assumes control of situations only at the request of a local Board of Health, or when it is convinced that local officers are incompetent, or when a given situation assumes serious intercounty proportions. Trained inspectors are sent into the field with laboratory and other facilities for epidemiological work whenever a local health officer needs assistance in tracing the source of an epidemic or in preparing a report on insanitary conditions.

The Board believes one of its most useful duties is the popularizing of accurate knowledge concerning the prevention of disease. Under the Governor's direction many plans for carrying out a policy of educational work have proved effective, the "sanitation car" being the most widely known of these plans.

It has been, also, the policy to keep in close touch with the United States Public Health and Marine Hospital Service, which, by request, is in active coöperation with the State Board of Health in the control of bubonic plague, as this is a matter of importance to the entire nation.

NATIONAL GUARD OF CALIFORNIA.

The National Guard of California, as at present constituted, consists of two companies of signal corps, nine companies of coast artillery, thirty-six companies of infantry, three troops of cavalry, and eight divisions of the Naval Militia. The coast artillery is organized into a coast artillery corps, and the infantry into three regiments of twelve companies each. The infantry is organized into one brigade. The total strength of the land forces is 236 commissioned officers and 2,848 enlisted men and of the Naval Militia 43 commissioned officers and 544 enlisted men—a total of 279 commissioned officers and 3,392 enlisted men. Returns from brigade commanders for the year 1909 show the number of militia enrolled to be 309,546. Total appropriations by the State for the two years ending June 30, 1909, $357,100; for regular maintenance of the National Guard for two years ending June 30, 1911, $386,660; active service, emergency fund, $100,000; armories, $520,000.

COMMISSION ON REVENUE AND TAXATION.

J. B. Curtin, of Sonora.....Commissioner
Carl C. Plehn, of Berkeley.....Secretary

The Commission on Revenue and Taxation was constituted by virtue of an act approved March 20, 1905, entitled "An act authorizing the Governor to appoint an expert in taxation and public finance, to sit as a member of a commission to be composed of himself and a general committee of the Senate and Assembly of the thirty-sixth session of the Legislature of the State of California, of which commission the Governor shall be ex officio a member and chairman, to investigate the system of revenue and taxation in force in this State, and to recommend a plan for the revision and reform thereof; to provide for the creation of said commission, and to define its powers, and making an appropriation therefor," being chapter 324 of the Statutes of California of the thirty-sixth session (Stats. 1905, p. 390); also by virtue of a concurrent resolution of the Senate and Assembly (Stats. 1905, p. 1067) under which there were appointed Senators J. B. Curtin of Sonora and M. L. Ward of San Diego, and Assemblymen H. S. G. McCartney of Los Angeles and E. F. Treadwell of San Francisco. On March 20, 1905, the Governor appointed, as Expert on Taxation and Public Finance, Carl C. Plehn, Associate Professor of Finance, Department of Economics, University of California.

The Commission rendered a Preliminary Report in August, 1906, and a Final Report in December, 1906. The constitutional amendment recommended in the report was proposed to the people by the Legislature in its thirty-seventh session by a resolution adopted March 9, 1907. (Senate Constitutional Amendment No. 1; Stats. 1907, p. 1353.) The proposed amendment was defeated at the general election held November 3, 1908.

The Commission was continued by the act of March 13, 1907 (Stats. 1907, p. 245), entitled "An act appropriating money to carry on the work provided for in the act" of 1905, and was further continued by an act approved March 25, 1909; Stats. 1909, p. 779.

By the act of 1909 the Commission was reduced so as to provide for the appointment of but one Commissioner instead of four and an appropriation of five thousand dollars was made to carry on the work. State Senator J. B. Curtin of Sonora was appointed by the Governor on June 8, 1909, and is now the only Commissioner. As embodying the result of the work of the Commission, Senate Constitutional Amendment number one was proposed by the Legislature of 1909, and will be voted upon at the election November 8, 1910.

W. Altmont Gates, of Berkeley, Secretary. Salary, $2,400.

Office of Board, 1025 Merchants' Exchange, San Francisco.

Under the act creating the Board the members are to so classify themselves by lot that two members go out of office in four years, two in eight years, and two in twelve years. Although the Board did so classify itself, the Constitution provides, in article XX, section 16, that in no case shall a term of office exceed four years, unless provided for in the Constitution. Owing to the provision of the act making a term in contravention with the provisions of the Constitution, the members hold office at the pleasure of the Governor. UNIVERSITY FARM AND SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE, DAVIS, CALIFORNIA.

(Under the supervision of the Department of Agriculture of the State University, Professor Edward J. Wickson, Dean and Director.)

The Legislature of 1905 made an appropriation of $150,000 for the purchase and equipment of a farm for the use of the College of Agriculture of the University of California. The act created a commission for the selection and purchase of the farm. In the summer of 1906 a tract of land, consisting of 780 acres on the north bank of Putah Creek at Davis, Yolo County, was selected. Approximately $103,000 was spent for the farm; the remaining portion was expended on buildings and other permanent improvements. An additional appropriation of $132,000 was made by the Legislature of 1907 for the further equipment and beginning of instruction. The farm was opened for instruction in October, 1908, with five separate short courses for farmers.

Main entrance, University Farm at Davis.

The school of agriculture, consisting of a three-years course for boys who have finished the common schools, was opened January, 1909. The school continues for seven or eight months of each year, and the short courses are given during October and November of each year. In addition to this, provision is made for students in the College of Agriculture at Berkeley to take part of their work on the farm.

Drying Fruit.

Climatic conditions in California are particularly favorable to the production of choice naturally evaporated fruits. The coast valleys, as well as the great interior valleys, participate in this industry.

STATE NORMAL SCHOOLS OF CALIFORNIA.

Joint Board of Trustees.

Section 1492 of the Political Code provides as follows:

Sec. 1492. There shall be a joint board of state normal school trustees, to be composed of the Governor, the Superintendent of Public Instruction, the presidents of the different state normal schools, the chairman and two other members of each normal school board. The two members besides the chairman of each local board shall be selected by the respective local boards for every joint meeting. Said joint board shall meet on the second Friday of April in each year, alternately at the different state normal schools. The first meeting after the passage of this act shall be at San Diego, the second meeting at San Francisco, the third at San José, the fourth at Chico, and the fifth at Los Angeles. Thereafter the places of meeting shall be in the order mentioned above. Special meetings may be called at any time and at any place by the Governor for the transaction of any urgent business affecting the welfare of any or all of the state normal schools, when in his judgment it is necessary. The Governor shall be ex officio chairman of said joint board of normal school trustees.

The powers and duties of said joint board of normal school trustees are as follows:

1. To prescribe and enforce a uniform series of text-books for use in state normal schools; the state series of text-books shall be used when published, in the grades and classes for which they are adapted.

2. To prescribe and enforce a uniform course of study, which shall include manual training; domestic science; agriculture; physiology and hygiene, and the methods of distinguishing such physical defects as tend to retard the physical and mental development of the child; and shall determine the time and standard for graduation from the state normal schools.

3. To prescribe a uniform standard of admission for students entering the normal schools, and for transfer of pupils from one normal school to another; provided, that a student for good cause may, upon recommendation of the president of the school from which he seeks to be transferred, enter any other normal school and without examination be admitted to classes corresponding to those in the school which he has left.

4. To sit as a board of arbitration in matters concerning the management of each state normal school that may need adjustment.

5. The joint board shall also have the power to pass any general regulations that may be applied to all the state normal schools, thus affecting their well being.

6. Members in attending the meetings of the joint board shall receive mileage while in actual attendance upon the meeting, the same to be paid out of any appropriation made by the Legislature for that purpose.

7. The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall be the secretary of the joint board. The secretary shall keep a full record of all proceedings of the joint meetings of the trustees, and shall notify the secretary of each board of trustees of any changes made in the course of study, or the text-books to be adopted. [Amended March 10, 1909; Stats. 1909, page 248.]

McGonigle Cottages.

Constructed for tubercular patients, Southern California State Hospital.

Gardens, Southern California State Hospital.

One of the numerous walks in the grounds of the institution. The variety of climatic conditions can be appreciated by comparing the tropical luxuriance of this spot with the snow-capped mountain back of the Administration Building as depicted on page 184.

Jute Mill at San Quentin.

Established March 4, 1881

Following is a statement of the receipts and expenditures from beginning, and a statement of assets, including plant and equipment:

|--|----------------|
| Receipts ----- | $4,998,095 35 |
| Expenditures, including moneys paid for raw jute and freight on raw jute ----- | 4,378,496 93 |
| Profit ----- | $619,598 42 |
| Value of jute mill factory and equipment----- | $469,315 13 |
| Value of stock on hand as per inventory June 30, 1909----- | 258,973 24 |
| | $728,288 37 |
| Add excess of available assets over liabilities July 1, 1909----- | 80,219 34 |
| Total assets of all kinds----- | $808,507 71 |
| Cash in revolving fund July 1, 1909----- | 53,205 66 |

State Prison and Power House, Folsom, Sacramento County.

The receipts and expenditures given above contain additions to values stated in previous reports, some of which reports were based on estimates; and are therefore not absolutely correct. Owing to these estimates in place of exact figures, and in absence of complete records for years long past, an absolutely correct statement of receipts and expenditures for the entire period of the jute plant's existence can not be made.

The values given above for plant, equipment, etc., are accurate figures taken from book accounts.

AREA OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA.

According to the reports of Commissioner of the General Land Office Fred Dennett, submitted to the Secretary of the Interior, California has an area of 158,297 square miles or 101,310,080 acres, of which 156,092 square miles or 99,898,880 acres are land surface and 2,205 square miles or 1,411,200 acres are water surface. The coast line on the Pacific Ocean is 1,200 miles in length. California ranks second in size among the States. In addition to these water areas, claim is made to jurisdiction over all Pacific waters lying within three English miles of the coast.

United States military reservations in the State aggregate 2,483.75 acres.

The following description of California is by Prof. E. W. Hilgard of the University of California:

The State of California lies between the parallels of 32° 30' and 42° north latitude, thus stretching through nine and a half degrees of latitude, corresponding to the distance on the Atlantic coast between Edisto Inlet, South Carolina, and Cape Cod, Massachusetts. Its northern third lies between 120° and 124° 26' west longitude, thus stretching through nine and a half degrees of latitude, corresponding to southeastward, with a westerly convexity, toward San Diego Bay. Between the extreme northwest and southeast corners the direct distance is 775 miles. The maximum width (between Point Concepcion and the north end of the Amargosa range in Nevada) is 235 miles, and the minimum width (between the Golden Gate and the southern end of Lake Tahoe) is 148 miles.

THE STATE FLOWER.

The Golden Poppy—Eschscholtzia Californica—The Flame Flower—La Amapola—Copa de Oro (Cup of Gold).

By PRENTISS MASLIN.

In 1815 Otto Von Kotzebue, the son of a popular German dramatist, sailed in the good ship "Rurick" on a voyage of discovery and exploration around the world, under the patronage of Count Romanzoff of Russia. This was a scientific expedition, and carried with it Louis Charles Adelaide de Chamisso as naturalist and Johann Frederick Eschscholtz as surgeon. The voyage lasted three years, from 1815 to 1818, and de Chamisso was the first naturalist to picture and describe the Golden Poppy of California, and, in honor of his friend, gave it the name of Eschscholtzia for him, and Californica for its birthplace.

Dr. Eschscholtz was born in Dorpat, Germany, in 1793, and died in 1831. He made a second voyage with Von Kotzebue in 1823, and wrote a description of over two thousand animals, which was published in 1830 with Kotzebue's narrative of his explorations.

De Chamisso was a poet and naturalist. He was born in Champagne, in France, in 1781; and emigrated as a boy to Berlin; he was a page to the Queen of Prussia, and served in the Prussian army. In 1808 he forsook the profession of arms, and applied himself to natural sciences, in which he greatly distinguished himself, becoming the most noted naturalist of Europe of his time. He published several books on natural history, among them being the "Description of a Voyage around the World," and in 1820 published drawings and a description of the Eschscholtzia. (It is but just to mention the fact that Professor Luis Née, the botanist of Malaspina's expedition, which visited California in 1791, published a description of the Poppy in Madrid, Spain, in the same year, 1820.) De Chamisso was a member of the Academy of Sciences in Berlin, and died in 1838.

The Golden Poppy, as it is commonly called, has anything but an agreeable perfume, but its wonderful coloring, and its incomparable, satin-like sheen, have been the wonder, delight and admiration of all lovers of nature. Growing, as it does, throughout the length and breadth of the State, and hardly elsewhere, it is peculiarly typical of California, and in 1903, under an act of the Legislature, was made the State flower. No great poem has been written about this flower, and probably none ever will be, because it appeals to the artistic sense rather than to the poetic. It blooms in the greatest profusion from February until May, though specimens of the flower can be had in the lower valleys of California almost any day in the year. In the flood tide of its season, when this matchless flower raises itself above the feathery green foliage of the plant, which is tipped with a deep, bronze red, it covers acres upon acres of the plains and mesas, and presents a sight which once seen is never forgotten.

The California Poppy is a brazen, garish flower. It shuns the woodland, and, unsheltered, fairly revels in the warm sunlight. It possesses none of the modesty of the violet, the sweetness of the lily, nor the beauty of the rose, but standing alone and unique, it compels our admiration because of its wonderful coloring and sheen, which refuse to be transferred by the limner's art to board or canvas. It wins its place by its transcendent beauty, and lovers of nature, having once reveled therein, the memory of it lives a lifetime.

The Indians of the northern Sacramento Valley used the Poppy leaves for a food, boiling it as a green, while the Spanish Californians and Indians of the southern part of the State used the oil derived from the plant as a hair-dressing. In art, the oil expressed from the seeds of the Poppy is extensively used, while it also has a valued place in the pharmacopœia.

The Poppy resists efforts toward its domestication and cultivation, and even grows sparsely in cultivated fields. It needs the wild, unbroken land to bloom in all its regal beauty. Most flowers are connected with legends or have their distinctive place in folk-lore, and many efforts have been made to weave around this flower Indian traditions and legends, few of which, however, bear the impress of authenticity. The best and most authentic legend connected with this flower purports to be told in a verse or chant of the Indians of southern California of the time when there was a great drought and vegetation died, and pestilence and famine came upon the land, and intense cold existed, until all the Indians perished save two, Manona (man) and his young squaw Mahala (woman). In dire distress, they left the land of their forefathers and journeyed south in search of relief from their destitution, and of a land where vegetation grew and where they could exist; offering up, each night and morn, their devout prayers to the great Spirit of the Red Man. These prayers were heard, and the Great Spirit sent the "Fire Flower" to drive away the evil spirit of the cold and frost, and to fill the land with warmth and plenty. If this legend is authentic, the California Poppy is doubly typical of the great State of California, with its perpetual sunshine and its glorious climate, and "where the poorest live in abundance."

"Thy satin vesture richer is than looms
Of Orient weave for raiment of her kings;
Not dyes of olden Tyre, not precious things
Regathered from the long-forgotten tombs
Of buried empires, not the Iris plumes
That wave upon the tropic's myriad wings,
Not all proud Sheba's queenly offerings,
Could match the golden marvel of thy blooms."

—Ina D. Coolbrith.

O Golden Poppy, Eschscholtzia, Flame Flower, La Amapola, Copa de Oro! You are all one and the same. Born under cloudless sky; child of the summer sun and earth's unminted gold; inimitable; sans story, sans art, sans poetry, sans perfume, sans all, save thy golden glory—we love you!

The accompanying illustration, representing the evolution of the Golden Poppy, from bud to full flower, was drawn by Miss Arlie B. Stone, of San Francisco.

ESTIMATES OF POPULATION OF COUNTIES OF CALIFORNIA.

By Dr. W. F. SNOW, Secretary State Board of Health.

The population of California in 1909 has been estimated conservatively by the Census Bureau method by adding to the population in 1900 nine tenths of the increase between 1890 and 1900, except that for the few counties showing decreases between the last Federal censuses, the population in 1900 has been taken for 1909.

The estimates for the fifty-eight counties are as follows:

Estimated Population of California, by Counties, June 1, 1909.

One of the most varied panoramas in the world. From the summit of this mountain one can look down into nine counties bordering on the bay of San Francisco, and westward far out over the Pacific Ocean.

DERIVATION AND DEFINITION OF THE NAMES OF THE SEVERAL COUNTIES OF CALIFORNIA.

REPORT OF GENERAL MARIANO G. VALLEJO TO THE FIRST LEGISLATIVE SESSION.

IN SENATE, April 16, 1850.

To the Senate of the State of California:

The Select Committee, appointed by your honorable body in the latter part of January last, "to report to the Senate the derivation and definition of the names of the several counties of the State," as established by the bill, entitled "An act subdividing the State into counties, and establishing the seats of justice therein," would respectfully report:

That at the time of the appointment of the committee the said bill had passed one branch of the Legislature only, nor did the same receive the approval of the Governor until the 18th day of February last. Upon the same day, however, another bill was introduced into the Senate, amendatory of no less than twelve sections of said act; and shortly afterwards, another amendatory bill to the same act was introduced into the lower branch of the Legislature. By the provisions of these two amendatory bills, a number of new counties were created, the names of others changed, and the original bill materially altered in many particulars. As it was intended that the report of the committee thus appointed should contain the derivation and definition of the names of the counties as created by law, they could not perfect their labors until these amendatory bills had been finally acted upon, and the names of the various counties and their respective boundaries definitely settled. The last mentioned bill was not approved until the 5th instant, and, consequently, but very little time has been allowed to your committee to finish their labors and to prepare this report.

Your committee must also state that they have labored under great disadvantages in preparing their report, from the absence of all books of reference on the subject committed to them. A resolution was adopted in your honorable body, directing the Secretary to procure certain works on the early history of California, and which, could they have been procured, would materially have assisted your committee in the discharge of their duties. But the Secretary was unable to obtain them, and your committee have been compelled to depend almost entirely upon recollection and upon oral information in the preparation of the following report.

Your committee would also ask the indulgence of the Senate for having introduced under the name of some of the counties anecdotes and incidents of a personal character not properly belonging to "the derivation and definition" of the names of those counties. But the circumstances mentioned have become so well known in those counties, and some of them are so intimately connected with the family history of the compiler of this report, that they have been permitted to find a place therein.

With these remarks, your committee would most respectfully submit the following report.

M. G. VALLEJO, Chairman.

REPORT OF SELECT COMMITTEE.

San Diego.—This county (St. James) derives its name from its present chief town, named after the harbor, which is only three miles distant therefrom. This excellent harbor was discovered and so named by Sebastian Vizcaino, admiral of the Spanish royal squadron, in the year 1603; and in 1768 His Catholic Majesty, by royal decree, determined upon its exploration and settlement. José Galvez, Royal Commissioner (Visitador General) of New Spain, was consequently intrusted with the undertaking; and for the purpose of successfully carrying it through, two expeditions were fitted out—one by land, the other by water; the latter was carried out in the "San Carlos," "Principe," and "San José," commanded by Vicente Villa, two of which vessels having reached their destination respectively on the 11th of April and on the 1st of May, 1769, whilst the fate of the third ("San José") still remains unknown. The land expedition was divided into two parts, the first being commanded by Fernando Rivera y Moncada, and the second by Captain Gaspar de Portola, Governor of the Province. The first division reached its destination on the 14th of May of said year 1769, and there found the two above-mentioned vessels at anchor. On the 1st of July the second division also arrived safely; and on the 16th of the same month and year, the land having been taken possession of with the accustomed formalities in the name of His Catholic Majesty, the establishment of the mission of San Diego was at once started under the direction of the Reverend Father Junipero Serra—this being the first civilized settlement founded in the extensive and beautiful country known as Upper California.

San Diego presents an arid appearance, but it possesses nevertheless a pleasant and luxurious climate, with a clear, blue sky, enhanced by the sublime view of the Pacific Ocean.

There are no building materials or timber in its vicinity, but its water is of the best that is known in the country. It abounds in copper mines, while it produces the best olives and Indian pears; and although its vineyards have not increased in number, yet the fruit they bear is certainly of the best quality which California yields.

Notwithstanding the departure of many families from San Diego, no part of the country maintains so high a claim for the amiable and sociable qualities of the fairer portion of its inhabitants. Here, indeed, the grace of person and amiability of disposition of the fair sex have attracted the young men of the north, and caused many of them to be led captive to the altar of Hymen, thus contributing to their moral subjection to the fair Dieguinas in the latter's native place, to whom the writer can not but tender a tribute of admiration and respect.

Los Angeles.—This county derives its name from the city of Los Angeles, which was founded in the latter part of the year 1781, by order of the Viceroy of New Spain, Bailio Frey Antonio Bucareli y Ursua, and is situated on the right bank of the "Porciúncula" river, which copiously waters the highly fertile plains whereon the city stands. Invited by the genial climate, the inhabitants have converted a large portion of this plain into a delightful garden, which is covered with all sorts of native fruit trees, but especially the vine, which is cultivated with care and extraordinary success.

This beautiful and extensive valley, famous for its excellent wines and liquors, contains within its limits the ex-missions of San Juan Capistrano, San Gabriel, and San Fernando, which, to within the last few years, constituted the best and richest establishments of the kind. In 1832, including the environs, they numbered very nearly half a million head of cattle.

From the reasons above mentioned, as well as from its extent and natural advantages, the county of Los Angeles is destined to become the most populous of any in the south, and doubtless many men of business, both public and mercantile, tired of their avocations, will retire there to enjoy a life of angels.

The white population of the county is from 12,000 to 15,000.

Santa Barbara.—There being a distance of more than five hundred miles between the military posts of San Diego and Monterey, and the missions of San Antonio, San Luis Obispo, San Buenaventura, San Gabriel, and San Juan Capistrano being situated in this intervening space, the Governor deemed it advisable, for the protection of these missions, to establish another post or "presidio" at some suitable point somewhere in their vicinity; with this object in view, and with the requisite troops, and accompanied by the Reverend Presiding Father Junipero Serra, he bent his steps toward these missions, until reaching a valley of delightful view and rich verdancy, in April, 1782, where the troops were stationed, and the new "presidio" called "Santa Barbara," which is the oldest and principal town of that immediate section of country. Hence the name of the county.

San Luis Obispo.—This county takes its name from its principal town, which is the so-called mission, founded on the 1st of September, 1772, by the Reverend Fathers Junipero Serra and José Cavaller, in the fertile and beautiful hollow named "Bears' Glen," by the troops of Monterey on the same day and year, from having there killed a number of bears, which, being cut up and dried, supplied them with meat for months. There is not in California a settlement that was more willingly and benignly received by the aborigines than the mission of San Luis Obispo; indeed, there was no reason for any other reception on the part of the Indians, since they were generously treated by the whites, and received from them the beneficial effects of their calling and the desirable extermination of dangerous wild beasts.

The following circumstance, which happened during the first months of the foundation of San Luis Obispo, is insignificant in itself, but the writer can not but dwell upon it for a moment with the most tender feelings of the heart:

As a matter of course, at that period few families had as yet migrated to this country, and the female sex was an oasis in the desert. The writer's father was one of the many who immigrated here in bachelorship, and while sojourning in San Luis Obispo he unexpectedly met with a lady who was in travail, and about to bring a new being into the world; and as there was no one, save her husband, to assist her, he acted as holder (tenedor). The lady was safely delivered of a girl, whereupon the holder (then a young man) solicited of the parents the hand of their child, and a formal agreement ensued between the parties, conditioned that if at mature age the girl should willingly consent to the union, the ceremony would be duly performed. Time rolled by, and year after year transpired, until the muchacha had reached her fourteenth year, when the marriage took place, and the offspring of that union has now the honor to present his readers with this short biographical sketch.

Monterey.—This name is composed of the words monte and rey, and literally means "king of forests." The harbor of Monterey was discovered in 1603, by Admiral Sebastian Vizcaino, and so named in honor of Count Monterey, as well as from the neighboring forest of massive pines and other trees.

On being informed of this discovery, the King of Spain, at the instance of the Marquis of Croix, Viceroy of Mexico, and José Galvez, Most Illustrious Royal Commissioner, ordered a second naval expedition to act in concert with a land expedition, with a view to taking possession of the harbor. The latter expedition, commanded by Captain Rivera y Moncada, reached its destination on the 23d of May; the former, commanded by Captain Juan Perez, on the 31st of May, 1770, when the banner of Spain was unfurled in token of possession.

Monterey has always been the residence of the superior authorities as the capital of Upper California. Since its foundation, fourteen duly appointed Governors of Upper California have discharged the duties of that office, viz.: Fages, Borica, Arrilaga, Arguillo 1st, Sola, Arguillo 2d, Echeandia, Victoria, Figueroa, Chico, Carillo, Alvarado, Micheltorena, and Pico.

The forest of Monterey, viewed from the bay, presents the most picturesque appearance imaginable. The surrounding hills of the city, crowned with tall pines and clothed in perpetual verdure, excite in the stranger a feeling at once of surprise and sympathy for the place. The native, as well as the foreign residents, are in constant admiration of it—at least such is the feeling of the writer, whenever he has the honor of being there—his native place. On occasions like those, how fondly he recollects all the scenes of his childhood! Those of Monterey, born since the year 1807, to you this sincere sentiment of gratitude is addressed! The city of Monterey contains from 1,500 to 2,000 inhabitants.

In October, 1842, the American colors were hoisted there by Commodore Jones; it is said through pretended mistake—but he lowered them at the end of forty-eight hours. On the 7th of July, 1846, they were again unfolded to the breeze of Monterey by Commodore Sloat, and if the act was then done also through a convenient mistake, is a question of “quien sabe.”

Santa Cruz.—The name of this county signifies “holy cross.” The word “cross,” mystically speaking, is derived from the gibbet, which the Greeks, Romans, and other nations used to erect in that form, for the purpose of executing guilty slaves or persons of low condition. After the crucifixion of Christ the cross was sanctified, and has, since that period, been the distinguishing sign of the Christian religion.

The county of Santa Cruz is probably the richest in the State, as regards timber and irrigated soil. The mission of Santa Cruz, from which the county derives its name, was secularized in 1834, and has now a growing population. It is situated at the north of the bay of Monterey, and possesses an anchorage. Three vessels of ordinary size have been launched there.

San Francisco.—The name of this county is famous throughout the Catholic world as being that of the creator of the religious order of Franciscans in Europe and America, in whose name the mission of San Francisco de Asis (Dolores) was established in the year 1776, under the immediate superintendence of the Reverend Father Junipero de Serra. In the same year and in the name of His Catholic Majesty, the harbor of San Francisco was taken possession of, and a fort or a redoubt erected with the same name, which it still retains. The bay is also called San Francisco, and lately it was given to the town of Yerba Buena, by the municipal authorities of that place, doubtless so to harmonize the three places (distant one league from another, and forming a triangle), that they may amicably respond to the same name when the astounding activity and rapid growth of one will have united all three into an immense commercial city. In 1836 there were only two houses in San Francisco—one belonging to Captain Richardson, the other to J. P. Leese—and up to 1846 the place had made little progress. In 1848, however, it received so wonderful an impulse from the discovery of the gold mines in the Sierra Nevada that it can be said San Francisco is an enchanted or magical city, built by spirits such as are spoken of in the Arabian Nights.

The town now contains a fluctuating population of from 20,000 to 40,000 inhabitants, made up in the short space of two years. The bay is large enough to accommodate the naval and commercial fleets of the world; there are now on its broad, magnificent bosom, five hundred vessels, and more than two thousand other craft, steamboats, scows, etc., actually engaged in all the ramifications of trade. San Francisco possesses theaters and good substantial wharves; it is the starting point of navigation to the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers and their tributaries, which embrace an extent of two hundred leagues; it is the present seat of the Supreme Court of California, and the residence of the Collector of Customs, wherein more than two millions of dollars have been collected within two years.

Santa Clara.—According to the Roman Book of Martyrs or Martyrology, as Hortalana, the pious mother of Santa Clara, was once kneeling before a crucifix, praying earnestly that, being with child, she might be happily delivered, she heard a voice whispering, “Fear not, woman, thou wilt safely bring forth”; whereupon a brilliant light suddenly illumined the place, and the mother, inspired by the mysterious prediction, baptized her child Clara, which is the feminine of clear or bright. Clara was afterwards sanctified on account of her many eminent virtues, and accordingly venerated by the Catholics in all Roman Catholic churches.

The mission of Santa Clara, from which the county derives its name, was founded on the 12th day of January, 1777. The county is fertile, and abounds in timber and water, but particularly in quicksilver. Its inhabitants declare it to be most advantageously situated for a large and flourishing city. Its chief town is the pueblo of San José, the permanent seat of government until removed by law, as prescribed by the Constitution. Quien sabe?

Contra Costa.—This name signifies "opposite coast," and the county is so called from its situation opposite San Francisco, in an easterly direction. It is, undoubtedly, one of the most fertile counties in the State, possessing rich agricultural lands, which embrace an interior coast of thirty leagues, extending in the bays of Santa Clara, San Francisco, and San Pablo, the straits of Carquinez, the bay of Suisun, and the San Joaquin River; a circumstance which, united to its mild climate, will render it very important. The pueblo of Martinez is its chief town, and "New York of the Pacific," as well as other towns on the shores of the San Pablo and San Joaquin, will also very soon effectually contribute to its importance.

"Mount Diablo," which occupies a conspicuous place in modern maps, is in the center of this county. It was intended so to call the county, but both branches of the Legislature, after warm debates on the subject (the representatives of the county opposing the proposed name), resolved upon the less profane name of "Contra Costa." The following is the history of "Mount Diablo" (Mount Devil): In 1806 a military expedition from San Francisco marched against the tribe "Bolgonos," who were encamped at the foot of the mount; the Indians were prepared to receive the expedition, and a hot engagement ensued in the large hollow fronting the western side of the mount. As the victory was about to be decided in favor of the Indians, an unknown personage, decorated with the most extraordinary plumage, and making divers movements, suddenly appeared near the combatants. The Indians were victorious, and the incognito (Puy) departed toward the mount. The defeated soldiers, on ascertaining that the spirit went through the same ceremony daily and at all hours, named the mount "Diablo," in allusion to its mysterious inhabitant, that continued thus to make his strange appearance, until the tribe was subdued by the troops in command of Lieutenant Gabriel Moraga, in a second campaign of the same year. In the aboriginal tongue "Puy" signifies "evil spirit"; in Spanish it means "diablo," and doubtless it signifies "devil" in the Anglo-American language.

Marin.—This is the name of the great chief of the tribe Licatiut, and the other tribes that inhabited this county and that of Sonoma. In Spanish "Licatiut" signifies "Arauzon," a favorite root or vegetable of these Indians, of which they made plentiful supplies to be used on great festival occasions. It affords them nourishment in great abundance in the valley of "Petaluma," their usual encampment. In the year 1815 or 1816 a military expedition proceeded to explore the country north of the bay of San Francisco, and on returning by the Petaluma Valley an engagement ensued with Marin, in which he was made prisoner and conducted to the station of San Francisco, from which he escaped, and again reaching Petaluma, he united his scattered forces, and thenceforward dedicated his most strenuous efforts to harass the troops in their hostile incursions into that part of the country. He carried on hostilities until he was so closely pursued as to be compelled to take refuge in the Marin isles, situate at the mouth of the inlet San Rafael, so named from this circumstance. He there defended himself for some time, but was again taken captive to St. Francisco in 1824; whence being set at liberty, he retired to the mission of San Rafael, and there died in 1834.

Sonoma.—The name of this county is an Indian word, signifying "Valley of the Moon," by which the aborigines designated the valley wherein the town of that name is situated.

The tribe occupying this valley was called Chocuyen; but in 1824, on the arrival there of the first expedition for the purpose of establishing a mission, the name of "Sonoma" having been given to their chief by the paternal minister, José Altimira, the Chocuyenes then adopted the same, which they still retain. This, as well as the other tribes who occupied the tract which now composes the counties of Sonoma and Marin, were dependent on a great chief who bore the heathen name of Marin de Licatiut, as mentioned in the history of the county of that name.

Sonoma is the most beautiful and picturesque valley of Upper California; and from its topographical situation, fronting the bay of San Pablo, from its delightful climate, fertile soil, abundant timber of all kinds close by, and from its pure and sweet waters, it is destined very soon to become one of the most populous parts of that valuable section of country. There are hot springs in its vicinity, which, from their medicinal virtues, may in future rival those of Arkansas.

Sonoma is at present the residence of the commander-in-chief of the western division of the army in California and Oregon.

In the Pueblo de Sonoma, in fine, there occurred an incident which will render the town celebrated in the history of the country, to wit: On the 14th day of June (of perpetual memory) a certain personage ordered a certain flag to be there hoisted, on whose white surface was conspicuously to be seen a certain animal; after other certain personages had taken the place by surprise, they took a certain personage prisoner to a certain fort, on the eastern bank of a certain river, in which they locked him for two months; during which he was overtaken by a certain disease which prevails there yearly, and from which he was set at liberty very nearly on the point or on the eve of settling accounts with a third personage, whose emblematic figure throughout the world is that of a skeleton armed with a scythe in his right hand.

Solano.—This is the second name of the celebrated missionary Francisco Solano, and was also borne by the great chief of the tribes originally denominated "Suisunes," and scattered over the western side of the river Jesus Maria (now Sacramento). The residence of this chief was the valley of Suisun, which is bounded by the hill near Suscol. Before receiving the baptismal name of Solano, the chief was called "Sem-yeto," which signifies the "brave or fierce hand."

In 1817 a military expedition (under command of Lieutenant José Sanchez, and by order of the commandant of San Francisco, José Arguello) crossed the Straits of Carquinez (on rafts made of rushes, as there were no ferries or regular boats in those days), for the double purpose of exploring the country and reducing it to Christianity. On crossing the river they were attacked by the Suisun tribe, then headed by their chief, Malaca, who caused them considerable loss; the Indians fought bravely and to the utmost extreme, but they were in turn attacked with such force and perseverance as to oblige them to retreat to their rancheria; where, being still hotly pursued and believing their fate sealed, these unfortunate people, incited by their chief, set fire to their own rush-built huts and perished in the flames with their families. The soldiers endeavored to stay their desperate resolution, in order to save the women and children; but even these preferred this doom to that which awaited them from the hands of their enemies. Thus perished this chief, and thus was his hearth and the home of his people destroyed.

The town of Benicia, situate in this county, is rapidly increasing in size and importance, and will soon rival the other towns that encircle the bay of San Francisco. The American squadron is stationed here, and many trading vessels lie at anchor. Here is the only passage to the interior; consequently there is, perhaps, no point from which the active trade of the bay can be better observed. There is in front of the town a bank or promontory extending out one mile, which precludes the necessity of wharves.

Yolo.—A corruption of the Indian word "Yoloy," signifying a place abounding with rushes (tular), with which the Indians composed the term "Toloytoy," Rush-town (Pueblo del Tule), situated on the western shore of the river Sacramento. The tribe occupying this pueblo derived its name therefrom, and were the subjects of a great chief, who also ruled various other tribes with absolute sway. All these tribes were encamped on the western banks of the Sacramento and its tributaries. The Christian name of the chief was F. Solano, and his usual residence Sonoma. In 1835, Motti, captain of the Yolo tribe, rebelled against the superior chief, and being unsuccessfully pursued, Solano applied to the commandant of Sonoma for assistance, pursued the tribe once more, and reduced it to submission. The rebellious leader was ordered to Sonoma, where he remained until the tribe and chief returned to their former hearths in 1846.

Napa.—The name of the tribe who occupied the valley of the same name. The meaning of the name is not ascertained. Napa Valley is fertile and beautiful in the extreme, possesses a very mild climate, and abounds throughout with timber of all kinds. The county, at the extreme north, contains the highlands of Mayacmas, famous as being the encampment of the Napa tribe, one of the bravest in California. They greatly harassed the frontier posts, and were very numerous up to the year 1838, when they were mostly carried off by smallpox. Napa City, situated on the stream that crosses the valley, will soon be a flourishing town; it is fifteen miles distant from the entrance of Napa Bay. The creation of this county is attributable to the constant efforts of Captain J. Brackett, member of the Assembly from the district of Sonoma. The writer is impressed with the belief that the subdivision is premature and will affect the interests of the people.

Mendocino.—In the year 1535 Antonio de Mendoza, first Viceroy of New Spain, appointed by the Emperor, arrived at the City of Mexico, fourteen years after its conquest or surrender, and ordered a survey of the coast of California, wherein Cape Mendocino was discovered, and so called in honor of the Viceroy. Mendocino, from which the county derives its name, is the patronymic of Mendoza.

Sacramento.—Signifies Sacrament, or Lord's Supper. The streams known as Feather and Sacramento rivers were first respectively named by Captain Moraga "Sacramento" and "Jesus Maria"; but the latter now assumes the name of Sacramento, whilst the former is called Feather. Sacramento is the principal river in all that section of country, and gives name to the county. Several towns are springing up, but the chief one of the county is Sacramento City, situated on the eastern bank of the Sacramento. This rapidly growing and flourishing town, containing a permanent population of 12,000 inhabitants, has sprung up in the short space of a year. It contains, besides, multitudes of transient residents, constantly going to and from the "placers." Steamboats and numerous vessels of light and heavy draught are safely moored immediately abreast of the town.

El Dorado.—The far-famed fabulous region of genial clime and never-fading verdure, where gold and precious stones are as common as rocks and pebbles, where wines gently flow from fountains, where wheat spontaneously grows overtopped with tiny loaves of bread, and pigeons fly about already roasted, where nature has converted the rudest things into harmony of shape and appearance, and where, in fine, a creature of the genus mulier, full of sympathy and grace, trips about in natural loveliness, the most beautiful of God's creations. Francis Orellana, a companion of Pizarro, first spread the account of the supposed existence of this province in South America.

As it is universally known how and when the discovery was made that has caused the star of the west to spring up as if by magic, given it the appropriate epithet of "golden," and will eventually revolutionize the world, more than the passing remark that gold was first discovered in this county at Sutter's mill, is here deemed unnecessary. The county derives its name from this circumstance.

Sutter.—This county is named after Captain John Augustus Sutter, from Switzerland, and formerly a military officer under Charles X. He immigrated to this country in the latter part of the year 1839, for the purpose of forming a colony. With this object in view, he petitioned the Mexican government for a grant of land, which he obtained, subject to the regulations prescribed by law. He then fixed the site of the colony on the eastern side of the Sacramento River, between its tributaries, known as the American Fork and Cosumnes, and named it New Helvetia. To inspire confidence in his colonists, as well as to protect them against the sudden attacks of the aborigines, who were very numerous at that period, or against any surprise whatsoever from any other power, he built a fort and manned it with several pieces of artillery. The building is well known as Sutter's Fort. Captain Sutter is the oldest settler in the valley of the rushes (valle de los tulares), on the banks of the Sacramento. His known enterprise, openness, and urbanity of manners, and characteristic hospitality toward all who approached his colony, have commanded public respect and gained for him the personal regard of friends. The former and present inhabitants of California, ever remembering the name of Sutter, as now born by the county, will transmit it to future generations and thus immortalize it.

Yuba.—A corruption of the word uba, which, when pronounced in English, produces the sound Yuba. This pronunciation has been latterly so generally adopted that the original word is now obsolete.

Yuba River is the chief tributary of Feather River, and was called Uba by an exploring expedition in 1824, from the immense quantities of vines that shaded its banks and the neighborhood, overloaded with wild grapes (properly called "uvas silvestres" in Spanish). The county, which derives its name from the aforesaid river, was created by the present Legislature, in compliance with the wishes of the delegates from that portion of the State. It contains 10,000 inhabitants.

Butte.—This is purely a French word, signifying hill or mound of earth. The high hills or peaks situated in the valley of the Sacramento, and seen at a great distance, were so named by a detachment of hunters, headed by Michel La Frambeau, from the Hudson Bay Company at Columbia River, who visited this country in search of beaver in the year 1829. Nine years previous to this period they were denominated peaks (picachos) by Captain Luis A. Arguello, who headed an expedition to the Columbia River by order of the governor of the province. This county contains these peaks, and takes their name.

Colusa.—Is purely an Indian word, being the original name of a numerous tribe on the western side of the Sacramento River; its meaning is not ascertained. The so-called county is one of the new counties created by the first Legislature of the State.

Shasta.—Is the name of the tribe residing at the foot of the height or mountain, remarkable as being considerably higher than the range, and encircling the source of the Sacramento River. Upon the subdivision of the State into counties Mr. Walthall, member of the Assembly of the delegation from the district of Sacramento, proposed this name for the county, and it was adopted by the Legislature. The mountain has likewise been so named.

Trinidad.—Signifies trinity. The Roman Catholics annually celebrate a certain Sunday in honor of the Most Holy Trinity. This festival has been observed since the year 1260, when it was so regulated by the Council of Arlez.

Trinity Bay was so called from having been discovered on the anniversary of this festival, June 11, 1775, by the second naval exploring expedition, consisting of a frigate in command of Captain Bruno Ezeta, and a sloop commanded by Juan de la Quadra y Bodega. Hence the name of the county. The bay has been newly surveyed and found accessible. Since last January, rich gold "placeres" have been discovered there; and the surrounding fertile country, formerly known as New Albion, is now being settled.

Calaveras.—This word signifies skulls, and the so-called creek, which gives name to the county, derives its own name from the fact of an immense number of skulls having been found lying in its vicinity from time immemorial. According to the diary of Captain Moraga, who headed the first incursions made on the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers, and the Sierra Nevada, the chiefs of the tribes encamped on these rivers made war against the tribes of the Sierra, who came down to fish for salmon, with which those rivers abound. This was considered a trespass on rights acquired by occupation, and war was in consequence declared between the tribes of the valley and those of the Sierra, during which a sanguinary battle was fought near the creek Calaveras. The tribes of the valley were victorious, and more than three thousand killed on both sides remained on the field. Hence the name of the creek as given by Captain Moraga.

This is one of the counties abounding in gold mines, and has a population of about 15,000.

San Joaquin.—The meaning of this name has a very ancient origin in reference to the parentage of Mary, the mother of Christ. According to divine revelations, Joachim signifies "preparation of the Lord," and hence the belief that Joaquin, who in the course of time was admitted into the pale of sanctity, was the father of Mary. In 1813, commanding an exploring expedition to the valley of the rushes (valle de los tulares), Lieutenant Gabriel Moraga gave the appellation of San Joaquin to a rivulet which springs from the Sierra Nevada and empties into Lake Buena Vista. The river San Joaquin derives its name from the rivulet, and baptizes the county with the same.

Stockton (named in honor of Commodore Stockton) is a highly flourishing town and the seat of justice in the county. It contains about 2,500 inhabitants. Pleasantly situated on a slough of the San Joaquin River, on a plain, thinly overspread with oak and shrubbery, and within a day or two from some of the rich "placers," it is destined to become the city of the San Joaquin, notwithstanding the absolute lack of poetry in its name.

Tuolumne.—A corruption of the Indian word "talmalamne," which signifies cluster of stone wigwams. The county abounds in gold "placers." Throughout its rivers and hollows, throughout its valley and hills, gold, gold, and more gold is found.

Mr. Benjamin S. Lippincott, Senator from the district of San Joaquin, hailing from perhaps the richest county in the State in the precious metal, has exerted an influence in its creation. The county seems to be an integral portion of the "El Dorado," which has been for years so eagerly sought for by every lover of gold. Tuolumne City is just springing up, and it is believed will shortly be a sort of "Jauja," the golden city of the fabulous region where rivers of milk and of honey flowed, and farinaceous fruits grew spontaneously.

Mariposa.—The name of this county signifies butterfly. In the month of June, 1807—in one of their yearly excursions to the valley of the rushes (valle de los tulares) with a view to hunt elks—a party of Californians pitched their tents on a stream at the foot of the Sierra Nevada, and whilst there, myriads of butterflies, of the most gorgeous and variegated colors, clustered on the surrounding trees, and attracted their attention, from which circumstance they gave the stream the appellation of Mariposa. Hence Mariposa River, from which the county (also heavily laden with the precious metal) derives its poetical name.

ORIGIN AND MEANING OF THE NAMES OF THE COUNTIES OF CALIFORNIA.

By PRENTISS MASLIN.

Alameda County.—Created March 25, 1853. The Spanish word "Alameda" means "a public walk or promenade in the shade of trees." Literally, it comes from Alamo, the poplar or cottonwood tree, and it is from the derived meaning of the word, "a public walk," that this county obtained its name.

Alpine County.—Created March 16, 1864. This county derived its name from the English word "Alpine," meaning, "of, pertaining to, or connected with, the Alps." Its geographical position, lying as it does on the crest of the Sierra Nevada Mountains, made it particularly an alpine county, and hence its name.

Amador County.—Created May 11, 1854. The meaning of this word in Spanish is "lover of inanimate objects." This county most probably derived its name from either Sergeant Pedro Amador or from José Maria Amador, his son. Sergeant Pedro Amador was one of the prominent settlers of California. He was an adventurer and a soldier in the Spanish army, coming to California in 1771 and after serving in San Diego and Santa Barbara was transferred to San Francisco, and died in San José April 10, 1824, at the age of 82 years. His son, José Maria, was born in San Francisco on December 18, 1794, and was also a soldier and a renowned Indian fighter. He obtained a large grant from the Mexican government, and after the discovery of gold forsook pastoral pursuits and went to the Southern mines, where he greatly increased his fortune. He was living as late as 1883.

Butte County.—Created February 18, 1850. This is one of the original twenty-seven counties of the State of California, and derived its name from that wonderful topographical formation, now known as the Marysville or Sutter Buttes, which lie in Sutter County and which were named by Michel La Frambeau of the Hudson Bay Company, who visited the northern part of California as a voyageur and trapper in the year 1829. The word "butte" is purely a French word, and signifies "a small hill or mound of earth detached from any mountain range."

Calaveras County.—Created February 18, 1850. One of the original twenty-seven counties of California. The meaning of "Calaveras" is "skulls," and the county derived its name from Calaveras Creek, which was so named by Captain Moraga of the Mexican army, who headed the first exploring expedition of the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers and into the Sierra Nevada Mountains, from the fact that he found a large number of skulls lying along the banks of the creek. According to the diary of Captain Moraga, the history of this abundance of skulls is that the tribes who lived on the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers made a desperate war against the tribes of the Sierra, who annually came down to fish for salmon in these rivers. This was considered in the light of a trespass, inasmuch as the Sierra tribes refused to allow the valley tribes to go into the mountains to hunt deer and gather acorns. In a most sanguinary battle fought near this creek, the tribes of the valley were victorious, and more than three thousand Indians were killed. Hence, the name of the creek, from which the county subsequently derived its name.

Colusa County.—Created February 18, 1850. This is one of the original twenty-seven counties of the State of California. The name of this county in the original act of 1850 was spelled "Colusi," and oftentimes in newspapers was spelled "Coluse," and was the name of an Indian tribe living on the west side of the Sacramento River. The meaning of the word "Colusa" has never been determined.

ED. NOTE.—Hon. John P. Irish, former Naval Officer at San Francisco, writes as follows regarding the name of this county :

"Reading the derivation of the names of California counties, written by Mr. Prentiss Maslin, I note that he finds no meaning or translation of the Indian word 'Colusa,' the title of the tribe from which the county was named. The late General Will Green, who went there while the tribe was still a strong body and associated with them so much as to acquire a knowledge and quite free use of their language, told me that the word 'Colusa' means 'scratcher.' When a member of the tribe married, it was the privilege of the bride to begin the honeymoon by scratching her husband's face. The young women so uniformly availed themselves of this privilege that a newly married man was always known by the deep scratches upon his face inflicted by his wife. From this tribal custom the tribe was known as Colusa or the scratchers. General Green was always so correct in the knowledge he acquired and imparted as to such matters that I am very certain this is the exact and correct meaning of the word 'Colusa.'"

Contra Costa County.—Created February 18, 1850. One of the original twenty-seven counties of the State of California. This county originally included what is now known as Alameda County, and because of its relationship to San Francisco County, on the west side of San Francisco Bay, it was called Contra Costa, or "opposite coast," lying as it does on the opposite coast or eastern shore of San Francisco Bay.

Del Norte County.—Created March 2, 1857. The name of this county signifies "the north," and the county being situated in the extreme north (west) corner of the State of California, derived its name from its geographical position.

El Dorado County.—Created February 18, 1850. This is one of the original twenty-seven counties of the State of California. Francis Orellana, a companion of the adventurer Pizarro, wrote a fictitious account of a wonderful province in South America, of a fabulous region of genial clime and never-fading verdure, abounding in gold and precious stones, where wine gushed forth from never-ceasing springs, and wheat fields grew ready-baked loaves of bread, and birds already roasted flew among the trees, and nature was filled with harmony and sweetness. From this description, a gold-bearing belt was called El Dorado, as in later days it has been called Klondike. So when the discovery of gold by James W. Marshall at Coloma in January, 1848, became known to the world, California, and particularly that part where gold was discovered, was called "El Dorado," and it was from this fact that the county was given its name upon its creation.

Fresno County.—Created April 19, 1856. The word "Fresno" in Spanish signifies "ash tree," and it was because of the abundance of mountain ash in the mountains of this county that it received its name.

Glenn County.—Created March 11, 1891. This county was created out of the northern portion of Colusa County, and derived its name from Dr. Hugh J. Glenn, who, during his lifetime, was the largest wheat farmer in the State, and a man of great prominence in political and commercial life in California.

Humboldt County.—Created May 12, 1853. This county derived its name from Humboldt Bay which was named for Baron Alexander von Humboldt, the eminent scientist, by Captain Ottinger of the ship "Laura Virginia."

Imperial County.—Created August 15, 1907. It derived its name from the Imperial Valley, situated therein.

Inyo County.—Created March 22, 1866. This county derived its name from a tribe of Indians who inhabited that part of the Sierra Nevada Mountains. The meaning of this word has never been determined.

Kern County.—Created April 2, 1866. This county derived its name from the Kern River, which was named for the lieutenant by that name of General John C. Fremont's third expedition in 1845-47.

Kings County.—Created March 22, 1893. This county was created out of the western part of Tulare County, and derived its name from Kings River, which, according to history and tradition, was discovered in 1805 by an exploring expedition and named Rio de los Santos Reyes (the "river of the holy kings"), from which it obtained its present name.

Lake County.—Created May 20, 1861. This county derived its name because of the many charming lakes that are within its boundaries.

Lassen County.—Created April 1, 1864. The name of this county was derived from Mount Lassen, which was named for Peter Lassen, a native of Switzerland, one of General Fremont's guides and a famous trapper, frontiersman, and Indian fighter, who was killed by the Piutes at the base of this mountain in 1859.

Los Angeles County.—Created February 18, 1850. This county was one of the original twenty-seven counties of the State of California. The words "Los Angeles" literally mean "the angels," and are a contraction of the original name "Pueblo del Rio de Nuestra Señora La Reina de Los Angeles de Porciúncula" (the town of the river of Our Lady, Queen of the Angels). It will therefore be observed that Los Angeles was really named for the Virgin Mary, commonly called "Our Lady of the Angels" by the Spanish. On September 7, 1781, Governor Felipe de Neve issued orders from the San Gabriel Mission for the establishment of a pueblo on El Rio Nuestra Señora de Los Angeles and under the protection of Nuestra Señora La Reina de Los Angeles (Our Lady, Queen of the Angels), the mission by this name having been dedicated three days before, having practically the same title. This pueblo in time became known as the Ciudad de Los Angeles, "the City of the Angels," and it is from this that the county derived its patronymic.

Madera County.—Created March 11, 1893. "Madera" in Spanish signifies "timber," and the county derived its name from the town of Madera, situated within its limits, which town was originally surrounded by groves of trees.

Marin County.—Created February 18, 1850. This county is one of the original twenty-seven counties of the State of California, and derived its name from Chief Marin, of the Licatiut tribe of Indians who inhabited that section of California. In 1815, a military expedition of the Spanish proceeded to explore the country north of the bay of San Francisco. This action aroused the ire of the Licatiut tribe, and a desperate engagement was fought in the valley now known as the Petaluma Valley. Chief Marin led the forces of the Indians with wonderful strategy and bravery that called forth the admiration of his enemies. At the same time, his sub-chief Quentin gave battle to a second division of the Spanish army at the point which still bears his name, Punta de la Quentin. Chief Marin afterwards was christianized and baptized under the name of "Marinero," "the Mariner," by the padres, because of the fact of his intimate knowledge of the bay of San Francisco, on which he often acted as ferryman for the whites.

Mariposa County.—Created February 18, 1850. One of the original twenty-seven counties of the State of California. This county took its name from the Mariposa River. The meaning of "Mariposa" in the language of the Spanish is "butterfly." There is some doubt as to how this stream derived its name. According to one story, in June, 1807, a party of Californians from the San Joaquin Valley made one of their annual excursions into the Sierra Nevada Mountains for the purpose of hunting elk. Camping upon the banks of a river, they were charmed and delighted with the butterflies of most gorgeous and variegated colors that hovered around them in countless numbers, and because of this they gave to the stream the name "Mariposa." Another beautiful story, and probably more authentic, is that the first explorers in the mountains of that region beheld for the first time a beautiful lily growing everywhere, gay-colored, spotted, and in some respects resembling the wings of a butterfly. In their admiration, they gave to this dainty flower, the Calochortus, the name of Mariposa (butterfly) lily.

Mendocino County.—Created February 18, 1850. One of the original twenty-seven counties of the State of California. This county derived its name from Cape Mendocino, which was discovered and named by Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo in 1542, and named for Don Antonio de Mendoza, the first Viceroy of New Spain, or Mexico, appointed by the King of Spain in 1535.

Merced County.—Created April 19, 1855. This county derived its name from the Merced River, which was originally named by the Spanish "Rio de Nuestra Señora de la Merced," meaning "the river of Our Lady of Mercy."

Modoc County.—Created February 17, 1874. This county derived its name from a fierce tribe of Indians by that name, which means "the head of the river," and who lived at the headwaters of the Pitt River.

NOTE.—Gen. O. O. Howard, in an article in the St. Nicholas magazine for May, 1908, page 624, states that the Indian name of the tribe of which the name Modoc is a corruption is "Maklaks," and means "The People."

Mono County.—Created April 24, 1861. The name of this county is a Spanish word meaning "monkey," and was applied to an Indian tribe living in that section of the State.

Monterey County.—Created February 18, 1850. This county is one of the original twenty-seven counties of the State of California. It derived its name from the bay of Monterey. The word itself is composed of the Spanish words "monte" and "rey," and literally means "king of the forest." The bay was discovered by Sebastian Vizcaino in 1603, and named in honor of his friend and patron, Gaspar de Zuñiga, Count of Monterey and Viceroy of Mexico.

Napa County.—Created February 18, 1850. One of the original twenty-seven counties of the State of California. The word "Napa" means, in the language of a large and powerful tribe of Indians that lived in that section of California, "fish," because of the myriads of fish that inhabited the Napa River and other creeks of this section. This tribe of Indians were nearly exterminated by smallpox in 1838, and now the only evidence of their ever having existed is the name given to this county.

Nevada County.—Created April 25, 1851. The word "Nevada" in Spanish means "snowy." The county derived its name from the fact of the perpetual snow-capped mountains within its boundaries.

Orange County.—Created March 11, 1889. This county was given its name by the Legislature because of the orange groves for which it is justly famous.

Placer County.—Created April 25, 1851. "Placer" is probably a contraction of the words "plaza de oro," the place of gold, and means in Spanish "a place near a river where gold is found." The county derived its name from the numerous places therein where that method of extracting the gold from the earth, called placer mining, was practiced.

Plumas County.—Created March 18, 1854. The Spanish originally called one of the tributaries of the Sacramento River, Rio de las Plumas, or the "River of the Feathers." The Americans subsequently robbed this river of its beautiful name, by changing its euphonious Spanish title to the English equivalent, the Feather River, but the Legislature, in creating this county, gave thereto the name of "Plumas," because of the fact that all of the numerous branches of the Feather River have their origin in the mountains of this county.

Riverside County.—Created March 11, 1893. This county was created from San Diego and San Bernardino counties, and derived its name from the town of Riverside.

Sacramento County.—Created February 18, 1850. This county is one of the original twenty-seven counties of the State of California. "Sacramento" signifies "Sacrament, or Lord's Supper." Captain Moraga first gave the name "Jesus Maria" (Jesus Mary) to the main river, and the name "Sacramento" to a branch thereof. Later, the main river became known as the Sacramento, while the branch became known as El Rio de las Plumas, or Feather River.

San Benito County.—Created February 12, 1874. Crespi in his expedition in 1772 named a small river in honor of San Benedicto (Saint Benedict, "the Blessed"), the patron saint of the married, and it is from the contraction of the name of this beloved saint that this county took its name.

San Bernardino County.—Created April 26, 1853. Saint Bernard is the patron saint of mountain passes. The name "Bernardino" means "bold as a bear." The Spanish gave to the snow-capped peak in Southern California the name of San Bernardino in honor of the saint, and from this the county derived its name.

San Diego County.—Created February 18, 1850. One of the original twenty-seven counties of the State of California. On November 12, 1603, the day of San Diego de Alcala (Saint James of Alcala), Sebastian Vizcaino anchored his fleet in the bay of San Diego, and named the same in honor of the day, as well as in honor of his flagship, which name has since been retained, although Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo named this bay San Miguel on September 28, 1542, sixty-one years previous; and it is from this bay that the county derived its name.

San Francisco County.—Created February 18, 1850. This county is one of the original twenty-seven counties of the State of California. The sixth mission in California was established by Padre Junipero Serra October 9, 1776, and was named "Mision San Francisco de Asis a la Laguna de los Dolores." (Saint Francis of Assisi at the Lagoon of Sorrows), and to this mission San Francisco owes its name.

San Joaquin County.—Created February 18, 1850. This is one of the original twenty-seven counties of the State of California. The meaning of the name of this county has a very ancient origin and refers to the parentage of Mary, the mother of Christ. According to tradition, Joachim signifies "whom Jehovah hath appointed," and hence the belief that Joaquin, the Spanish spelling for Joachim, was the father of Mary. In 1813, Lieutenant Moraga, commanding an expedition in the lower great central valley of California, gave to a small rivulet, which springs from the Sierra Nevada Mountains and empties into Buena Vista Lake, the name of San Joaquin, and it is from this that the present river derived its name, which in turn baptized the county with the same.

San Luis Obispo County.—Created February 18, 1850. One of the original twenty-seven counties of the State of California. On September 1, 1772, the Mission San Luis Obispo (Saint Louis the Bishop) was established and was named for Saint Louis, the Bishop of Toulouse. He was the son of Charles of Anjou, King of Naples, and the county derived its name from this mission, founded by the padres, Junipero Serra and José Cavaller.

San Mateo County.—Created April 19, 1856. This county bears the Spanish name of Saint Matthew, "the gift of Jehovah."

Santa Barbara County.—Created February 18, 1850. This county is one of the original twenty-seven counties of the State of California. Saint Barbara is the patron saint of the sailors, and gives them special protection from deadly lightning and fires at sea. For this reason her name is frequently seen over the powder magazines on board of war vessels. Santa Barbara received this name from Sebastian Vizcaino, when he sailed over these waters on that Saint's Day, December 4, 1603; and when Padre Junipero Serra established a mission near this channel on December 4, 1786, he named it Santa Barbara, Virgen y Martir (Saint Barbara, Virgin and Martyr). It is from these two sources that the county derived its name.

Santa Clara County.—Created February 18, 1850. One of the original twenty-seven counties of the State of California. On January 12, 1777, Mission Santa Clara was established, and named for Saint Clara of Assisi, Italy, the first Franciscan nun and founder of the Order of Saint Clara. Her name "Clara" means "clear" or "bright," and according to the Roman Book of Martyrs, as Hortalana, the pious mother of this nun, was once kneeling before a crucifix, praying earnestly, that she might be happily delivered of her unborn babe, she heard a voice whispering, "Fear not, woman, thou wilt safely bring forth"; whereupon a brilliant light suddenly illumined the place, and the mother, inspired by the mysterious prediction, baptized her child Clara, which is the feminine of the word meaning clear or bright. Clara was afterwards sanctified on account of her many eminent virtues, and accordingly venerated by the Catholics in all Roman Catholic churches, and canonized under the name Saint Clara.

Santa Cruz County.—Created February 18, 1850. This is one of the original twenty-seven counties of the State of California. "Santa" is the Spanish feminine of "Saint" or "holy"; "Cruz" is the Spanish for "cross," and "Santa Cruz" signifies "holy cross," which emblem was to the devout explorers of California what it was to the Crusaders. Those who fell by the wayside had a rude cross erected over them to mark their last resting-place; if anything notable occurred in any of the expeditions, a cross was set up, and all that marked the site of the mission which was founded by Padres Lopez and Salazar on September 25, 1791, was the memorial cross erected to mark this site. From this the county derived its name.

Shasta County.—Created February 18, 1850. This county is one of the original twenty-seven counties of the State of California. The derivation of the name of the county, which was taken from the butte of that name, is in doubt. Some authorities claim the name "Shasta" to be derived from Shas-ti-ka, the name of a tribe of Indians that lived at the base of this mountain. The word "Shas-ti-ka" means "stone house or cave dwellers." Other authorities claim that the word "Shasta" is a corruption of the French word "chaste," and was first applied by explorers because of the wonderful whiteness or chastity of the eternal snow that caps the summit of this wonderful peak.

Sierra County.—Created April 16, 1852. "Sierra" is the Spanish word for "saw," and was applied to the chain of mountains, Sierra Nevada, meaning "snow saw," because of the jagged, serrated or saw-tooth peaks which form the sky line of this range of mountains, and the county that bears the name "Sierra" was so called because of the jagged peaks within its borders.

Siskiyou County.—Created March 22, 1852. The word Siskiyou has never been authentically determined. It has generally been assumed that this is the name of a tribe of Indians inhabiting this region, but there are several stories regarding its derivation and meaning. Senator Jacob R. Snyder of San Francisco, who advocated the formation of this county, in an argument delivered April 14, 1852, in the Senate of the State of California, stated that the French name "Six Callieux" was given to a ford on the Umpqua River at which place Michel La Frambeau, who led a party of Hudson Bay Company trappers, crossed in the year 1832. Six large stones or rocks lay in the river where they crossed, and they gave it the name of "Six Callieux" or "Six-stone Ford," and from this the mountain or butte derived its name, which was subsequently given to the county when created.

Solano County.—Created February 18, 1850. This county is one of the original twenty-seven counties of the State of California. "Solano" in Spanish means "east wind," and was the second name of the celebrated missionary Francisco Solano. When the chief of the powerful tribe of Suisunes Indians, which inhabited the west side of the River Jesus Maria, was christianized, he was by this missionary baptized Solano, and as his residence was in the valley of Suisun, the name Solano was given to this county.

Sonoma County.—Created February 18, 1850. This county is one of the original twenty-seven counties of the State of California. "Sonoma" is an Indian word meaning "valley of the moon," because of the resemblance of this valley to the shape of that orb. In 1824, when Padre José Actimira baptized the chief of the Cho-cuy-en Indians, he gave him the baptismal name of Sonoma, and from this source the county derived its name.

Stanislaus County.—Created April 1, 1854. Chief Estanislao, of a powerful tribe of Indians who lived on what is known now as the Stanislaus River, but by the Indians called the La-kish-um-na, was educated at the Mission San José. He became a renegade and incited his tribe against the Spaniards, but was defeated in 1826 in a fierce battle on this river, which was afterwards called Stanislaus for the defeated Indian chief. It is from this river that the county derived its name.

Sutter County.—Created February 18, 1850. This is one of the original twenty-seven counties of the State of California. Sutter County was named after General John Augustus Sutter, a native of Switzerland, and a soldier of fortune. He first arrived in San Francisco July 2, 1839, obtained a large grant from the Mexican government, and called his first settlement New Helvetia, which is now the city of Sacramento.

Tehama County.—Created April 9, 1856. "Tehama" is the name of a tribe of Indians which originally inhabited that part of the State which now bears its name. The meaning of the word has never been determined.

Trinity County.—Created February 18, 1850. This is one of the original twenty-seven counties of the State of California. This county derived its name from Trinidad Bay, which was discovered and named by Captain Bruno Ezeta on June 11, 1775, a date that happened to be Trinity Sunday. The Spanish charts of the bay were misleading, and Major Reading and others thought that the river he named Trinity emptied into this bay.

Tulare County.—Created April 20, 1852. Commandante Fages, while hunting for deserters in 1773, discovered a great lake surrounded by marshes and filled with rushes, which he named Los Tules (the tules, Scirpus lacustrus). In 1813, Captain Moraga on his exploring expedition passed through the valley of this lake, and named it "Valle de los Tules" (valley of the tules), from which this county takes its name.

Tuolumne County.—Created February 18, 1850. This county is one of the original twenty-seven counties of the State of California. "Tuolumne" is a corruption of the Indian word "Talmalamne," which signifies "stone houses or caves," the same as the word "Shasta," but in another language. This was the name of a large tribe of Indians who lived on both sides of the river now bearing that name, from which the county derived its patronymic.

Ventura County.—Created March 22, 1872. On March 30, 1782, Padres Junipero Serra and Cambon dedicated a mission at San Buenaventura to San Buenaventura, Doctor Serafico (St. Bonaventura, Serafic Doctor), which is the name under which Giovanni de Fidenza of Tuscany was canonized. Buenaventura is composed of two Spanish words, "Buena" meaning "good," and "Ventura" meaning "fortune"; hence the name signifies "good fortune." The county took its name from the latter Spanish word "Ventura." San Buenaventura has at all times been the name of the town, but this beautiful and euphonious name has been abbreviated by the United States Post Office Department to "Ventura."

Yolo County.—Created February 18, 1850. This is one of the original twenty-seven counties of the State of California. "Yolo" is a corruption of an Indian tribal name "Yo-loy," meaning "a place thick with rushes." This tribe was a branch of the Suisunes, and inhabited the marshes immediately west of Rio de Jesus Maria (now known as the Sacramento River).

Yuba County.—Created February 18, 1850. This is one of the original twenty-seven counties of the State of California. "Yuba" is a corruption of the Spanish word signifying "wild grape." A Spanish exploring expedition in 1824 found immense quantities of vines shading the banks of a river, which is the chief tributary of the Feather River. These vines were heavily laden with wild grapes (called Uvas silvestres in Spanish), and the river was therefore called the Uva or Uba, and by a corruption of the word "Uba" the river eventually became known by its present name, "Yuba," from which the county derived its name.

INCORPORATED CITIES AND TOWNS OF CALIFORNIA.

Incorporation of cities and towns in California was first effected by special acts of the Legislature, and a few municipalities are yet operating under a form of government so obtained.

Municipal corporations are now formed either by framing a charter for their own government under the provisions of sections 8 and 8½ of article XI, of the Constitution, or under an act of the Legislature entitled "An act to provide for the organization, incorporation, and government of municipal corporations," approved March 13, 1883, Stats. 1883, page 93, as amended Stats. 1885, pp. 127, 134; 1887, p. 12; 1889, pp. 371, 389; 1891, pp. 21, 28, 54, 55, 114, 233; 1893, p. 299; 1895, pp. 24, 159, 266; 1897, pp. 89, 175, 183, 196, 403; 1899, p. 98; 1901, pp. 12, 18, 70, 269, 293, 656; 1903, pp. 40, 93, 135, 336; 1905, pp. 16, 45, 72, 88, 408; 1907, p. 272; 1909, pp. 148, 420, 937.

On March 2, 1883, the Legislature passed an act entitled "An act to provide for the classification of municipal corporations": Stats. 1883, p. 24; amended Stats. 1897, pp. 218, 421; amended Stats. 1899, p. 141; amended Stats. 1901, p. 94. By this act classification was made according to population as follows:

First class, population of more than 200,000.

First and one half class, population of more than 100,000 and not exceeding 200,000.

Second class, population of more than 30,000 and not exceeding 100,000.

Third class, population of more than 15,000 and not exceeding 30,000.

Fourth class, population of more than 10,000 and not exceeding 15,000.

Fifth class, population of more than 3,000 and not exceeding 10,000.

Sixth class, population of not exceeding 3,000.

Section 2 of the act provides that the census taken under the direction of the Congress of the United States, in the year 1880, and every ten years thereafter, shall be the basis upon which the respective populations of said municipal corporations shall be determined, unless a direct enumeration of the inhabitants thereof be made by municipal authority, in which case such direct enumeration shall constitute such basis.

It is further provided that if a direct enumeration be taken by municipal authority, such municipality may reorganize as a municipality of another class if it shall appear upon such enumeration that such municipality is entitled by reason of its population to so reorganize, and upon a vote being taken thereon by the inhabitants thereof.

There is no provision in the general municipal incorporation act for the government of cities of the first and one half class.

While the municipal incorporation act provides for the government of cities of the first, second, third, and fourth classes, those provisions of the law are practically inoperative, for the reason that cities eligible, by reason of their population, for incorporation as cities of the first, first and one half, second, third, and fourth classes, as well as many cities in the fifth class, are operating under their own charters, under the provisions of section 8 of article XI of the Constitution, which provides that "Any city containing a population of more than 3,500 inhabitants may frame a charter for its own government," etc. Those municipalities which come actively under the operation of the law are cities and towns within the fifth and sixth classes.

The municipal incorporation act provides for elections to be held as follows in the various classes of cities:

First class—First Tuesday after first Monday in November in each even-numbered year.

Second class—Second Monday in March in each even-numbered year.

Third class—Second Tuesday in March in each even-numbered year.

Fourth class—First Tuesday after first Monday in November in each odd-numbered year.

Fifth class—Second Monday in April every four years beginning with 1903.

Sixth class—Second Monday in April in each even-numbered year.

The provisions in respect to the first, second, third, and fourth classes do not as a rule apply, for the reason before stated, that such cities are governed by their own charters, which fix the dates for holding of elections, as will appear in the data relating to such cities following.

Under their acts of incorporation city elections are held in Alviso on the first Monday in May of each year; in Gilroy on the first Monday in May of each even-numbered year; in Marysville, the third Monday in March of each even-numbered year; in Nevada City, the first Monday in May, and in Santa Clara, the first Monday in April of each year. These are the only towns or cities in the State now exercising municipal functions incorporated under general or special acts of the Legislature previous to the passage of the "Municipal Incorporation Law" of 1883, and which have not reorganized under that law or a freeholders' charter, but still retain their original form of incorporation.

Figures as to population are given as taken from the census returns of 1900, except in the cases of those cities or towns which were not in existence in that year or received no enumeration as such city or town, the population being taken by townships. Later figures are given in the case of some municipalities where a direct enumeration has been made by municipal authority, and also in some cases where estimates as to present population have been made by local officers. The Federal census of 1910 will establish the correct figures.

ESTIMATES OF POPULATION OF CITIES HAVING FREEHOLDERS' CHARTERS.

By DR. W. F. SNOW, Secretary State Board of Health.

The population for 1909 has been estimated conservatively by the Census Bureau method by adding to the population in 1900 nine tenths of the increase between 1890 and 1900. For the three principal cities arbitrary estimates have been made because of their exceptionally rapid growth, the estimate for San Francisco in 1909 being 475,000, for Los Angeles 250,000, and for Oakland 175,000, and on account of annexations variations from the standard method of the Census Bureau have also been made in estimates for Berkeley, Pasadena, and San Diego.

Estimates for the twenty-six cities having freeholders' charters are as follows:

| | | | |
|---------------------|---------|----------------------------------|-----------|
| Eureka | 9,550 | Stockton | 20,278 |
| Napa | 4,036 | Vallejo | 9,423 |

YOSEMITE VALLEY AND THE MARIPOSA BIG TREE GROVE.

Yosemite Valley, preëminently the wonder of this continent, was granted to the State of California by the United States by an act of Congress approved June 30, 1864, which grant also included the "Mariposa Big Tree Grove."

The surveys necessary to establish "the locus, extent, and limits" of the valley and the Mariposa Big Tree Grove were made in the autumn of 1864. These surveys were forwarded by the Surveyor General of California to Washington, and subsequently accepted by the Commissioner of the General Land Office; but before such grant could become the property of the State of California, it was necessary that it should be accepted by the State Legislature, which was done by an act approved April 2, 1866. By this act the property was to be under the control and management of the Governor, and eight other persons appointed by him on the 28th day of September, 1864, constituting the "Commissioners to Manage the Yosemite Valley and the Mariposa Big Tree Grove," whose terms of office should be four years.

Pursuant to an act of the Legislature of the State of California, approved March 3, 1905, the premises were receded and regranted to the United States, and accepted by the United States by House Resolution No. 118, adopted June 6, 1906, since which time they have been under the control of the Interior Department of the United States.

The Yosemite Valley is a natural gorge in the eastern portion of Mariposa County, in the heart of the Sierra Nevada Mountains, at an elevation of about 4,000 feet, and distant from San Francisco, in an air line due east, about 155 miles. At this point the Sierra range is about 70 miles wide, and the valley lies midway between the east and west bases. The level area, or floor, of the valley, containing 1,141 acres, of which 745 acres are meadow land, is about 7 miles in length, and from half a mile to a mile in width, sunk to a perpendicular depth of about 4,000 feet below the general level of the adjacent country. Through the center of the valley flows the Merced River.

The territory embraced by the Yosemite grant comprises the whole of the valley proper, and extends back from the edge of the precipice for an average distance of about one mile, covering in all an area of 36,111.14 acres, only a small portion of which can ever be made useful for any other purpose than that for which the act of Congress granting it to the State, devoted it, namely: a place for "public use and recreation." All of the land extending back from the edge of the bluffs forming the boundaries of the valley is high, much of it exceeding 8,000 feet, and either covered thickly with heavy timber or extremely rocky.

"To the Mariposa Battalion, commanded by Major Savage, must be given the honor of first entering the Yosemite Valley," says Dr. Bunnel, in his "Discovery of the Yosemite." He gives the date as March 21, 1851.

The first tourist party to visit the valley was organized by the late J. M. Hutchings and reached there the latter part of June, 1855. Upon his return to Mariposa, Mr. Hutchings wrote and published in the Gazette the first authentic description of the "Valley of the Grizzly Bear" (Yosemite).

"O words, how poor, and vain, and weak,
When of the masterpiece we speak,
Of emerald vale and starry peak—
Thy glorious, grand Yosemite."

—W. A. Croffut.

* The height of the Yosemite Falls is usually given in three sections, the Upper, Middle, and Lower, but the U. S. Geological Survey gives measurements of only the Upper and Lower Falls. The middle section between these sheer falls, composed of a series of cascades in a rocky gorge, making a drop in elevation of 675 feet, is not dignified as a fall, but is designated only as rapids or intermediate cascades. The U. S. survey therefore establishes the total descent of Yosemite Falls as 2,425 feet.

The Yosemite National Park is a vast mountain region surrounding the Yosemite and Hetch Hetchy valleys. The watershed of Yosemite Valley is about one third of the area of the National Park while that of the Hetch Hetchy comprises about two thirds, and this valley is a counterpart of the Yosemite Valley on a slightly smaller scale. The Park was first set apart by Congress in 1890 as a place for public resort and recreation. As originally constituted, it comprised some 42 townships, or about 1,500 square miles, but its area has been considerably reduced by succeeding acts of Congress, the territory taken therefrom being turned over into the national forests. As now outlined it is a very irregular, pear-shaped area, covering approximately some 32 townships, or about 1,150 square miles, lying partly in Mariposa, Tuolumne, Madera, and Mono counties, including the original Yosemite Valley Grant and the Mariposa Big Tree Grove, which latter is now also within the Yosemite National Park boundaries. It is now under the control of the United States Government, upon which is imposed the cost of maintaining it as a National Park. Practically all of it lies more than 5,000 feet above sea level, the Yosemite Valley and Hetch Hetchy Valley being the notable exceptions. From these levels it rises to the tops of the Sierra Nevadas, the crest or summit of which range reaches an average altitude of nearly 12,000 feet and forms the northeastern boundary line of the Park. The highest altitudes reached are Mount Lyell, 13,096 feet, Mount Dana, 13,050 feet, and Mount Conness, 12,556 feet, above the level of the sea.

MARIPOSA BIG TREE GROVE.

This mighty grove, one of Nature's greatest wonders, was discovered by Galen Clark, in April, 1857, but as early as 1849 the group known as the "Fresno Grove," now situated in Madera County, was discovered by Major Burney, then sheriff of Mariposa County. For twenty-four years Galen Clark was guardian of the Yosemite Valley and the Mariposa Grove. He was born at Shipton, Canada, March 28, 1814, and died at Oakland, California, March 24, 1910, at the age of 96 years, fifty-seven of which were lived in California.

The trees were called by the natives "Wah-wo-nah" (Indian for Big Trees). They were named "sequoia" by the learned botanist Endlicher in honor of "Sequoia," or "Sequoyah," the Indian name of "George Guess," the Cadmus of the Cherokees, who invented the alphabet which made the written language of that Nation and gave it a literature. Sequoia was born about 1770 and died in 1843.

The Sequoias of this group are divided into two groves, the upper and the lower, numbering in all about 621 individual trees. According to Galen Clark, the average height of the large sized trees is about 275 feet, though some few have been found to exceed 325 feet in height. Their average diameter at the ground is about 20 feet, though there are some which exceed 30 feet in diameter. Their altitude varies from 5,750 feet to 7,140 feet, and their age has been variously estimated at from 5,000 to 8,000 years. The grant containing the grove comprises 2,586.26 acres, and the name is due to its location in the county of Mariposa.

The act of the California Legislature (approved March 3, 1905, Stats. 1905, page 54) making the transfer reads as follows:

SECTION 1. The State of California does hereby recede and regrant unto the United States of America, the "Cleft" or "Gorge" in the granite peak of the Sierra Nevada Mountains, situated in the county of Mariposa, State of California, and the headwaters of the Merced River, and known as the Yosemite Valley, with its branches or spurs, granted unto the State of California in trust for public use, resort and recreation by the act of Congress entitled "An act authorizing a grant to the State of California of the Yosemite Valley and of the land embracing the 'Mariposa Big Tree Grove,'" approved June 30, 1864; and the State of California does hereby relinquish unto the United States of America and resign the trusts created and granted by the said act of Congress.

SEC. 2. The State of California does hereby recede and regrant unto the United States of America, the tracts embracing what is known as the "Mariposa Big Tree Grove," granted unto the State of California in trust for public use, resort and recreation by the act of Congress referred to in section 1 of this act; and the State of California does hereby relinquish unto the United States of America and resign the trusts created and granted by the said act of Congress.

SEC. 3. This act shall take effect from and after acceptance by the United States of America of the recessions and regrants herein made, thereby forever releasing the State of California from further cost of maintaining the said premises, the same to be held for all time by the United States of America for public use, resort and recreation, and imposing on the United States of America the cost of maintaining the same as a national park; provided, however, that the recession and regrant hereby made shall not affect vested rights and interests of third persons.

While the boundary lines of these two former State parks thus returned lie some ten miles distant from each other, yet they are now, together with the intervening country, both included in the outlines of the Yosemite National Park, of which the Mariposa Grove is the southern extremity.

There are ten groups of the Sequoia gigantea in California, namely: Calaveras, South Grove, Tuolumne, Merced, Mariposa, Fresno, Dinkey Creek, Kings River, New Kings River, and Kaweah or Tule; all being located at an elevation ranging from 5,000 to 8,000 feet. The Tuolumne Grove and the Merced Grove also lie within the Yosemite National Park, on the western boundary line.

The official administrative map of the Park, showing boundaries, contour, elevations, etc., compiled under the direction of George Otis Smith, Director of the U. S. Geological Survey, topography by R. B. Marshall and A. H. Sylvester, scale 1:125,000, date of issue, April, 1910, can be obtained at a cost of 25 cents per copy by application to the Department of the Interior, Washington, D. C. A special map of the Yosemite Valley, edition of June, 1909, scale 1:24,000, can also be obtained, at a cost of 10 cents per copy.

POLITICAL DIVISIONS OF CALIFORNIA.

APPORTIONMENT OF STATE INTO LEGISLATIVE, CONGRESSIONAL, EQUALIZATION, RAILROAD, AND JUDICIAL DISTRICTS.

[Sections from Political Code.]

SENATORIAL DISTRICTS.

Sec. 78. The State is divided into forty senatorial districts, which shall be designated and constituted as follows:

1. The counties of Del Norte, Humboldt, Trinity and Tehama shall constitute the first senatorial district.

2. The counties of Modoc, Lassen, Siskiyou and Shasta shall constitute the second senatorial district.

3. The counties of Plumas, Sierra, Nevada and Placer shall constitute the third senatorial district.

4. The counties of Mendocino, Glenn, Colusa and Lake shall constitute the fourth senatorial district.

5. The counties of Napa and Solano shall constitute the fifth senatorial district.

6. The counties of Butte, Yuba, Sutter and Yolo shall constitute the sixth senatorial district.

7. The county of Sacramento shall constitute the seventh senatorial district.

8. The county of Sonoma shall constitute the eighth senatorial district.

9. The counties of Marin and Contra Costa shall constitute the ninth senatorial district.

10. The counties of El Dorado, Amador, Calaveras, Alpine and Mono shall constitute the tenth senatorial district.

11. The county of San Joaquin shall constitute the eleventh senatorial district.

12. The counties of Tuolumne, Mariposa, Madera, Stanislaus and Merced shall constitute the twelfth senatorial district.

13. All that portion of the county of Alameda comprising the townships of Washington, Murray, and Eden shall constitute the thirteenth senatorial district.

14. All that portion of the county of Alameda comprising the township of Alameda, all that portion of Brooklyn township lying outside of the city of Oakland, and all that portion of Brooklyn township lying within the city of Oakland lying south of East Fourteenth street shall constitute the fourteenth senatorial district.

15. All that portion of Alameda county comprising all that portion of Brooklyn township not contained in the fourteenth senatorial district as set forth in this act, and all that further portion of the county of Alameda bounded as follows: Commencing at a point on the western boundary of Brooklyn township at a point where said boundary line is intersected by Thirteenth street, thence along the center of the following named streets: Thirteenth to Jefferson, Jefferson to Fifteenth, Fifteenth to Market, Market to San Pablo avenue, San Pablo avenue to Adeline, Adeline to Parker, Parker to Grant, Grant to the northerly boundary line of the city of Berkeley; thence easterly along said northerly boundary line of the city of Berkeley to the boundary line of the county of Alameda; thence easterly and southerly along said boundary line of the county of Alameda to a point where intersected by the westerly boundary line of Brooklyn township; thence southerly and westerly along said boundary line of Brooklyn township to the point of beginning shall constitute the fifteenth senatorial district.

16. All that portion of the county of Alameda bounded as follows: Commencing at a point on the westerly boundary line of Brooklyn township where intersected by Thirteenth street extended; thence along the center of the following streets: Thirteenth to Jefferson, Jefferson to Fifteenth, Fifteenth to Market, Market to San Pablo avenue, San Pablo avenue to Adeline, Adeline to Parker, Parker to Grant, Grant to the northerly boundary line of the city of Berkeley; thence easterly along said northerly boundary line of the city of Berkeley to the intersection of the northerly boundary line of the county of Alameda; thence northerly and westerly along said northerly boundary line of Alameda county to the intersection of the westerly boundary line of the county of Alameda; thence southerly along said westerly boundary line of Alameda county to the southerly boundary line of the city of Oakland, in Oakland creek; thence easterly along southerly boundary line of the city of Oakland, in said creek, to the point of intersection of the boundary line between the sixth and seventh wards of the city of Oakland; thence northerly along said line to the point of beginning shall constitute the sixteenth senatorial district.

17. All that portion of the city and county of San Francisco comprised within the boundaries of the twenty-eighth and twenty-ninth assembly districts, as fixed and described in this act, shall constitute the seventeenth senatorial district.

18. All that portion of the city and county of San Francisco comprised within the boundaries of the thirty-first and thirty-sixth assembly districts, as fixed and described in this chapter, shall constitute the eighteenth senatorial district.

19. All that portion of the city and county of San Francisco comprised within the boundaries of the thirty-second and thirty-fifth assembly districts, as fixed and described in this chapter, shall constitute the nineteenth senatorial district.

20. All that portion of the city and county of San Francisco comprised within the boundaries of the thirty-third and thirty-fourth assembly districts, as fixed and described in this chapter, shall constitute the twentieth senatorial district.

21. All that portion of the city and county of San Francisco comprised within the boundaries of the thirty-seventh and thirty-eighth assembly districts, as fixed and described in this chapter, shall constitute the twenty-first senatorial district.

22. All that portion of the city and county of San Francisco comprised within the boundaries of the thirty-ninth and fortieth assembly districts, as fixed and described in this chapter, shall constitute the twenty-second senatorial district.

23. All that portion of the city and county of San Francisco comprised within the boundaries of the thirtieth and forty-second assembly districts, as fixed and described in this chapter, shall constitute the twenty-third senatorial district.

24. All that portion of the city and county of San Francisco comprised within the boundaries of the forty-third and forty-fourth assembly districts, as fixed and described in this chapter, shall constitute the twenty-fourth senatorial district.

25. All that portion of the city and county of San Francisco comprised within the boundaries of the forty-first and forty-fifth assembly districts, as fixed and described in this chapter, shall constitute the twenty-fifth senatorial district.

26. The county of Fresno shall constitute the twenty-sixth senatorial district.

27. All that portion of the county of Santa Clara not included in the twenty-eighth senatorial district shall constitute the twenty-seventh senatorial district.

28. All that portion of the county of Santa Clara embraced in the precincts of Agnews, Alviso, Berryessa, Cupertino, Hester, Jefferson, Mountain View number one, Mountain View number two, Mayfield number one, Mayfield number two, Milpitas, Orchard, Palo Alto, Saratoga, University, and the first, second, and fourth wards of the city of San Jose, shall constitute the twenty-eighth senatorial district.

29. The counties of San Mateo and Santa Cruz shall constitute the twenty-ninth senatorial district.

30. The counties of San Bernardino and Inyo shall constitute the thirtieth senatorial district.

31. The counties of Monterey, San Benito, and San Luis Obispo shall constitute the thirty-first senatorial district.

32. The counties of Kern, Tulare, and Kings shall constitute the thirty-second senatorial district.

33. The counties of Santa Barbara and Ventura shall constitute the thirty-third senatorial district.

34. All that portion of the county of Los Angeles included in and comprising the following election precincts of nineteen hundred, to wit: Catalina, San Pedro numbers one, two, and three, Wilmington, Compton numbers one and two, Florence, Redondo

Electoral votes necessary to a choice, 242.

The Federal census taken in 1910 will serve as a basis for a new apportionment of the electoral votes, which will be in force at the Presidential election in the year 1912. At the election of 1906 Arizona rejected joint statehood with New Mexico under the permissive act of Congress, and neither of these Territories will attain statehood before the next Presidential election unless meanwhile admitted by Congress.

(a) In these years the electors each voted for two persons, and the one receiving the highest number of votes (if such number was a majority of the whole number of electors) was declared elected President, and the one receiving the next highest number was declared elected Vice-President.

(b) New York, North Carolina, and Rhode Island did not participate in this election, not having ratified the constitution until afterwards. There were four vacancies, Maryland 2 and Virginia 2. The scattering votes were cast as follows: For John Jay—New Jersey 5, Delaware 3, Virginia 1; for Robert H. Harrison—Maryland 6; for John Hancock—Pennsylvania 2, Virginia 1, South Carolina 1; for John Rutledge—South Carolina 6; for Samuel Huntington—Connecticut 2; for George Clinton—Virginia 3. Georgia cast two votes for John Milton and one each for James Armstrong, Edward Telfair, and Benjamin Lincoln.

(c) There were three vacancies, Maryland 2 and Vermont 1. Scattering votes: For Thomas Jefferson—Kentucky 4; for Aaron Burr—South Carolina 1.

(d) Scattering votes: For Samuel Adams—Virginia 15; for Oliver Ellsworth—Rhode Island 4, Massachusetts 1, New Hampshire 6; for Samuel Johnson—Massachusetts 2; for James Iredell—North Carolina 3; for John Jay—Connecticut 5; for George Clinton—Georgia 4, Virginia 3; for George Washington—North Carolina 1, Virginia 1; for Charles C. Pinckney—North Carolina 1; for John Henry—Maryland 2.

(e) There being no choice by the electors, the election devolved upon the House of Representatives. On the 36th ballot Jefferson was elected president and Burr vice-president. Jefferson received the votes of 10 States and Burr 4. After this the constitution was amended so as to require the electors to vote separately for president and vice-president.

(f) One vote for John Jay.

(a) These States admitted subsequent to the apportionment.

(c) Partitioned from Virginia by Congress in 1863.

The basis for the apportionment of congressional representation depends upon the population of the several States. Congress determines by act the number of members of the House. The act of Congress, approved January 16, 1901, provides that the House of Representatives shall be composed of 386 members, but Oklahoma having been admitted subsequent to this act, the enabling act of Congress, approved June 16, 1906, gives it 5 Representatives, bringing the total up to 391.

The following representation was added after the several census apportionments from the first to the thirteenth, as indicated and is included in the foregoing table: First—Tennessee, 1. Second—Ohio, 1. Third—Alabama, 1; Illinois, 1; Indiana, 1; Louisiana, 1; Maine, 7; Mississippi, 1. Fifth—Arkansas, 1; Michigan, 1. Sixth—California, 2; Florida, 1; Iowa, 2; Texas, 2; Wisconsin, 2. Seventh—Massachusetts, 1; Minnesota, 2; Oregon, 1. Eighth—Illinois, 1; Iowa, 1; Kentucky, 1; Minnesota, 1; Nebraska, 1; Nevada, 1; Ohio, 1; Pennsylvania, 1; Rhode Island, 1; Vermont, 1. Ninth—Alabama, 1; Colorado, 1; Florida, 1; Indiana, 1; Louisiana, 1; New Hampshire, 1; New York, 1; Pennsylvania, 1; Tennessee, 1; Vermont, 1. Tenth—Idaho, 1; Montana, 1; North Dakota, 1; South Dakota, 2; Washington, 1; Wyoming, 1. Eleventh—Utah, 1. Twelfth—Oklahoma, 5.

The census was first taken in 1790 and subsequently every decennial year.

| September 9th | Admission Day |
| October 12th | Discovery Day |
| Tuesday next succeeding first Monday in November in even-numbered years | General Election Day |

Every day appointed by the President of the United States or by the Governor of this State for a public fast, thanksgiving, or holiday.

December 25th

Every Saturday afternoon in the public offices of the State.

Whenever a holiday falls on a Sunday, the following Monday is a legal holiday.

Sections 10, 11, and 135 of the Code of Civil Procedure provide as follows:

Holidays.

SEC. 10. Holidays, within the meaning of this code, are every Sunday, the first day of January, the twenty-second day of February, the thirtieth day of May, the fourth day of July, the ninth day of September, the first Monday in September, the twelfth day of October, to be known as "Discovery Day," the twenty-fifth day of December, every day on which an election is held throughout the State, and every day appointed by the President of the United States or by the Governor of this State for a public fast, thanksgiving or holiday. If the first day of January, the twenty-second day of February, the thirtieth day of May, the fourth day of July, the ninth day of September, the twelfth day of October or the twenty-fifth day of December fall upon a Sunday, the Monday following is a holiday. Every Saturday from twelve o'clock noon until twelve o'clock midnight is a holiday as regards the transaction of business in the public offices of this State, and also in political divisions thereof, where laws, ordinances or charters provide that public offices may be closed on holidays; provided, this shall not be construed to prevent or invalidate the issuance, filing, service, execution or recording of any legal process or written instrument whatever on such Saturday afternoons.

Amended February 19, 1909; Stats. 1909, p. 22.

SEC. 11. If the first day of January, the twenty-second day of February, the thirtieth day of May, the fourth day of July, the ninth day of September, the twelfth day of October or the twenty-fifth day of December fall upon a Sunday, the Monday following is a holiday.

Amended February 19, 1909; Stats. 1909, p. 22.

Appointments on Non-Judicial Days.

SEC. 135. If any day mentioned in section 10 be a day appointed for the holding or sitting of any court, other than the supreme court, it is deemed adjourned to the next succeeding judicial day.

Amended March 19, 1907; Stats. 1907, p. 682.

NOTE.—§ 135. This section was again amended at the extra session of 1907, on November 23d (Stats. 1909, p. 9, which volume includes statutes of extra sessions of 1907), but the amendment was held by the supreme court to be unconstitutional and void. (Diepenbrock vs. Superior Court of Sacramento, 153 Cal. 597.)

Restriction of Judicial Business on Special Holidays.

[Unconstitutional.]

SEC. 135. On all special holidays the courts of this State shall be open for the transaction of any and all judicial business, except the trial of an action or the rendition of a judgment based upon a contract, expressed or implied, for the direct payment of money. Provided, if any day mentioned in section 10 of this code other than a special holiday happen to be the day appointed for the holding or sitting of a court, or to which it is adjourned, it shall be deemed appointed for or adjourned to the next day.

Amended November 23, 1907; Stats. 1909, p. 9.

NOTE.—§ 135. As amended November 23, 1907; Stats. 1909, p. 9 (which volume includes statutes of extra sessions of 1907). Unconstitutional. See note to section 135, ante, as amended at the regular session of 1907.

An act declaring February 12th, the birthday of Abraham Lincoln, a legal holiday and providing for a half-day session in the public schools on such holiday, and for certain exercises in the public schools.

Approved April 13, 1909; Stats. 1909, p. 861.

The people of the State of California, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. February 12th, the birthday of Abraham Lincoln, is hereby declared a legal holiday; provided, however, that all the public schools throughout the State shall hold sessions in the forenoon of that day in order to allow the customary exercises in memory of Lincoln; and provided further, that when February 12th falls on Sunday, then Monday following shall be a legal holiday and shall be so observed; and provided still further, that when February 12th falls on Saturday such exercises in the public schools shall take place on the Friday afternoon preceding.

An act to establish a bird and arbor day.

Approved March 3, 1909; Stats. 1909, p. 134.

The people of the State of California, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. March 7th of each year, being the anniversary of the birthday of Luther Burbank, is hereby set apart and designated bird and arbor day.

All public schools and educational institutions are directed to observe bird and arbor day, not as a holiday, but by including in the school work of the day suitable exercises having for their object instruction as to the economic value of birds and trees, and the promotion of a spirit of protection towards them.

SEC. 2. This act shall take effect from and after its passage.

Mount Lowe, Los Angeles County.

One of the popular peaks in the Sierra Madre Range. An ingenious and interesting system of mountain railway provides means of ascent to a height of about 5,000 feet.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

The Legislature of California convenes in regular session, in the State Capitol at Sacramento, on the first Monday after the first day of January, in the odd-numbered years. It is divided into two houses, called the Senate and the Assembly. Senators are elected for four years—those from the even-numbered districts and those from the odd-numbered districts being elected alternately every two years. Members of the Assembly are elected every two years.

The Senate is composed of forty members, presided over by the Lieutenant Governor, who is ex officio President of the Senate. A President pro tempore is elected by the members.

The Assembly is composed of eighty members, presided over by a Speaker, elected from their own number. A speaker pro tem. is also elected.

Section two hundred and sixty-six of the Political Code of the State of California as amended January 11, 1909 (Stats. 1909, p. 1), reads as follows:

266. Members of the Legislature shall receive the sum of one thousand dollars as compensation for services during each regular session, payable as follows: Ten dollars per day payable weekly during such regular session until one thousand dollars is paid. In the event of final adjournment before the said one thousand dollars is paid, then the balance shall be immediately payable. For each special or extraordinary session they shall receive ten dollars per day for a term not exceeding thirty days, payable weekly. Members shall receive for each regular, special or extraordinary session ten cents per mile for each mile of travel to and from their residences and the place of holding the session.

See, also, Constitution of California, Art. IV, § 23.

In addition members are allowed for contingent expenses not exceeding $25 at each session.

Following is a list of Senators and Assemblymen for the thirty-eighth session of the Legislature, convened January 4, 1909, and adjourned March 24, 1909; also the statutory officers and other employees of the same session:

11. Consideration of Daily File.
12. Unfinished Business.
13. Special Order of the Day.

Reports from the Committee on Enrolled and Engrossed Bills shall at all time be in order; provided, that the messages from State officers, other than the Governor and from the Assembly, may, on motion of any Senator, be considered at any time.

4. President—His powers and prerogatives.

The rooms, passages, and buildings set apart for the use of the Senate shall be under the control and direction of the President of the Senate, and he shall have the control and direction of the journals, papers, and bills of the Senate. He shall see that all officers of the Senate perform their respective duties, and may assign place to reporters.

5. President may order lobbies cleared.

In case of a disturbance or disorderly conduct in the lobbies, the President (or Chairman of the Committee of the Whole) shall have power to order the same cleared.

6. President may call Senators to Chair.

The President shall have the right to name any Senator to perform the duties of the Chair, who is hereby vested, during such time, with all the powers of the President; but such substitute shall not lose the right of voting on any question while so presiding.

7. Appointment to committees.

All standing committees of the Senate shall be named by the President of the Senate unless otherwise ordered, and the first named shall be the chairman thereof. All other committees shall be appointed in such manner as the Senate shall determine.

8. Standing committees.

The following standing committees shall be appointed by the President of the Senate:

1. Agriculture and Dairying, seven members.
2. Banking, seven members.
3. Commerce and Navigation, nine members.
4. Contingent Expenses, three members.
5. Corporations, eleven members.
6. County Government, nine members.
7. Drainage, Swamp and Overflowed Lands, nine members.
8. Elections and Election Laws, nine members.
9. Education, eleven members.
10. Engrossment and Enrollment, three members.
11. Executive Communications, five members.
12. Federal Relations, three members.
13. Finance, fifteen members.
14. Fruit and Vine Interests, nine members.
15. Fish and Game, nine members.
16. Hospitals and Asylums, eleven members.
17. Irrigation, nine members.
18. Judiciary, nineteen members.
19. Labor, Capital and Immigration, nine members.
20. Military Affairs, five members.
21. Mines and Mining, seven members.
22. Municipal Corporations, seven members.
23. Printing, three members.
24. Prisons and Reformatories, nine members.
25. Public Buildings and Grounds, nine members.
26. Public Health and Quarantine, five members.
27. Public Morals, five members.
28. Roads and Highways, nine members.
29. Rules, five members.
30. Revenue and Taxation, nine members.

9. President pro tem.—His powers and privileges.

The President pro tem. shall, in the absence of the President, take the chair and call the Senate to order at the hour of the meetings of the Senate, and have the same power as the President; but the President pro tem. shall vote only as any other member of the Senate.

10. The duties of Secretary.

It shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Senate:

1. To attend every session, call the roll, read all bills, amendments, resolutions, and all papers ordered read by the Senate or the presiding officer.

2. To superintend all copying and work to be done for the Senate. To have supervision over all attachés and employés of the Senate. To certify to, and transmit to the Assembly all bills, resolutions, and papers requiring the concurrence of the Assembly, immediately after their passage or adoption by the Senate.

3. To keep a correct Journal of the proceedings of the Senate.

4. To notify the Assembly of the action by the Senate on all matters originating in the Assembly, and requiring action on the part of the Senate.

5. To permit no papers or records belonging to the Senate to be taken out of its custody otherwise than in the regular course of business.

6. To assign, reassign or transfer all attachés and employés to their respective duties.

11. No records or papers to be taken from desk.

The Secretary of the Senate shall not suffer any records or papers to be taken from the desk, or out of his custody, by any person except a chairman of a committee; but he shall deliver any bill or paper to be printed to the Superintendent of State Printing, and all bills ordered engrossed or enrolled to the Committee on Engrossment and Enrollment, and take their receipt therefor.

12. Sergeant-at-Arms.

A Sergeant-at-Arms shall be elected, to hold his office during the pleasure of the Senate, whose duty it shall be to attend the Senate during all its sittings, to execute the commands of the Senate, from time to time, together with all such process issued by authority thereof as shall be directed to him by the President. The actual expenses of the Sergeant-at-Arms, for every arrest, for each day's custody and releasement, and the traveling expenses for himself and special messenger, going and returning, shall be paid out of the contingent fund, and no other fees shall be paid him beyond his per diem. It shall be the duty of the Sergeant-at-Arms to keep the accounts for pay and mileage of Senators, to prepare checks, and, if required to do so, draw the money on such checks for the Senators (the same being previously signed by the President, and indorsed by the Senator or person to whom check is made), and pay over the same to the Senator or person entitled thereto.

13. Printed bills, etc., must be placed on desks.

The Sergeant-at-Arms shall place copies of all bills, joint and concurrent resolutions, and constitutional amendments, when printed, on the desks of Senators at least one hour previous to the opening of session.

14. Doorkeeper.

It shall be the duty of the Doorkeeper to prohibit all persons, except Senators, ex-Senators, members of the Assembly, State officers, officers of the two houses, and such reporters as have seats assigned to them by the President, from coming within the bar of the Senate, unless upon written invitation of the President or a Senator; provided, that no visitor shall be allowed upon the floor of the Senate during a session. The Sergeant-at-Arms is authorized to arrest for contempt all persons outside the bar, or in the gallery, found engaged in loud conversation, or otherwise making a noise to the disturbance of the Senate.

15. Lobbying.

No person engaged in presenting to the Senate or its committees any business, or claim for legislation, shall be permitted to engage in such business during sessions of the Senate, or be permitted on the floor of the Senate during its sessions. And any person transgressing this rule shall be removed from the floor of the Senate and be debarred from the privilege of the floor during the remainder of the entire session. The President and President pro tem. are charged with the enforcement of this rule and this rule can not be suspended except by a two-thirds vote of the entire Senate.

16. Attendance, duties, and obligations of Senators.

No Senator shall absent himself from the service of the Senate without leave first obtained. A less number than a quorum of the Senate is hereby authorized to send the Sergeant-at-Arms, or any other person, for any and all absent Senators, as the majority of such Senators present shall agree, at the expense of such absent Senators.

respectively, unless such excuse for non-attendance shall be made as the Senate, when a quorum is convened, shall judge sufficient, and in that case the expense shall be paid out of the contingent fund of the Senate; and this rule shall apply as well to the first convention of the Senate, at the legal time of meeting, as to each day of the session after the hour has arrived to which the Senate stood adjourned. The President or Acting President of the Senate, or less than a quorum present, shall have the power to issue process directed to the Sergeant-at-Arms, or to any other person, to compel the attendance of Senators absent without leave. Any Senator who shall refuse to obey such process, unless sick or unable to attend, shall be deemed guilty of contempt of the Senate, and the Sergeant-at-Arms, or any other person to whom such process may be directed, shall have power to use such force as may be necessary to compel the attendance of such absent Senator, and for this purpose he may command the force of the county, or of any county in the State.

17. Senators must address the President.

1. When a Senator desires to address the Senate he shall rise in his place, address the President, and when recognized he shall proceed to speak.

2. No Senator shall speak more than twice in any one debate on the same day and at the same stage of the bill, without leave; and Senators who have once spoken shall not again be entitled to the floor (except for explanation) so long as any Senator who has not spoken desires to speak.

3. No Senator shall be interrupted when speaking, and no questions shall be asked him except through the presiding officer.

4. The author of a bill, motion, or resolution shall have the privilege of closing the debate.

18. Senator entitled to floor.

When two or more Senators arise at the same time to address the Senate, the presiding officer shall designate the Senator who is entitled to the floor.

19. Senator, when called to order, must sit down.

When a Senator shall be called to order he shall sit down until the President shall have determined whether he is in order or not; and every question of order shall be decided by the President, subject to an appeal to the Senate by any Senator. If a Senator be called to order for words spoken, the objectionable language shall immediately be taken down in writing.

20. Voting.

When a Senator declines to vote on a call of his name he shall be required to assign his reasons therefor, and having assigned them, the presiding officer shall submit the question to the Senate: "Shall the Senator, for the reasons assigned by him, be excused from voting?" which shall be decided without debate. And these proceedings shall be had after the roll call and before the result is announced, and any further proceedings in reference thereto shall be after such announcement.

21. Printing.

Seven hundred and fifty copies of all bills shall be printed; and the Sergeant-at-Arms shall be required to certify to the reception by the Senate of all printed matter, and the quantity. One copy of each bill or paper printed by order of the Senate shall be delivered to each Senator at his desk, and the balance shall be distributed according to law.

22. Number of copies to be printed.

Five hundred copies shall be printed of each document or other matter ordered, unless the Senate especially directs a different number.

23. Number of copies to be printed of Journal.

The Superintendent of State Printing shall print five hundred copies of the Journal of each day's proceedings of the Senate, and one copy of the same shall be placed upon each Senator's desk, and a sufficient number sent to the Assembly to supply each Assemblyman with one copy; he shall also print a sufficient number of copies, properly paged, to bind in book form as the Journal of the Senate, at the end of the session, as required by law.

24. What shall be printed in the Journal.

Messages from the Governor (other than biennial messages and inaugural addresses), titles of bills, joint and concurrent resolutions, and constitutional amendments shall be printed in the Journal in full.

25. Petitions.

Every vote and a brief statement of the contents of each petition, memorial or paper presented to the Senate shall be entered in the Journal.

26. When not in Committee of the Whole, proceedings must be entered in the Journal.

The proceedings of the Senate, when not acting as Committee of the Whole, shall be entered in the Journal as concisely as possible, care being taken to record a true and accurate account of the proceedings.

27. Printing for the Senate.

The Superintendent of State Printing shall not print for the use of the Senate any matter other than provided by law, unless upon a written order signed by the Secretary.

The Secretary may, when necessity requires, order from the State Printer such printing as he deems necessary to be printed in advance of the regular order of business, under a specially prepared written order, to be known as a "Rush Order."

28. Introduction and reading of bills.

1. Any Senator desiring to introduce a bill shall rise in his place and address the President, and upon being recognized shall present the same; and the title shall be announced from the Secretary's desk, shall be read the first time, when it shall be referred to a standing committee; provided, that no bill shall be introduced in the Senate forty days after the commencement of the session without the consent of three fourths of the members thereof. Every bill shall be read on three several days previous to its passage (unless, in case of urgency, two thirds of the Senate shall, by vote of ayes and noes, dispense with this provision), and the last reading shall be at length. The President shall give notice, at each of the second and third readings, which reading it is, and no bill shall be read at either reading until the Senate has so determined by a vote (should any Senator object to such reading). Joint and concurrent resolutions shall be treated the same as bills, provided they shall be read but once, unless the Senate, by a majority vote of all the Senators present, otherwise directs.

2. The titles of all bills, when introduced, shall be inserted in the Journal.

29. Order of engrossing and enrolling bills.

All bills ordered engrossed shall be delivered to the Engrossing Clerk by the Secretary of the Senate, and the receipt, in writing, of the Engrossing Clerk taken therefor; and all said bills shall be engrossed in the order of their receipt by said Engrossing Clerk. And all Senate bills shall, after their final passage by and receipt from the Assembly, be delivered to the Enrolling Clerk by the Secretary of the Senate in the order of their receipt from the Assembly, and the receipt, in writing, of said Enrolling Clerk taken therefor; and said bills shall be enrolled by the Enrolling Clerk in the order of their receipt from the Secretary of the Senate.

30. Engrossed bills to be examined and reported.

All bills, amendments, and resolutions, after being engrossed, in pursuance of the order of the Senate, shall be carefully examined and reported back by the Committee on Engrossment and Enrollment; the engrossed copy to be transmitted to the Assembly, with proper endorsements, and the original retained by the Senate.

31. Assembly bills to be read first time.

All Assembly bills shall be read the first time when taken up in Assembly messages, and then referred to the proper committee; provided, however, that when an Assembly bill is received, the provisions of which are identical with those of a Senate bill which has already been considered and reported by a committee of the Senate, such Assembly bill shall be substituted for the Senate bill (the latter being considered withdrawn), shall take a place upon a special file, and be considered as having received the same recommendation of the Senate committee; provided, that the fact that the bills are identical shall be entered in the Journal.

32. Reference of bills to Finance Committee.

All bills or resolutions appropriating money from any fund within the control of the Senate shall be referred to the Committee on Finance before being read the second time.

33. Committee amendments—How made.

When amendments to a bill are offered by a committee, the clerk of such committee shall prepare three copies of such amendment, one to go with the bill to the printer, one to the Minute Clerk, and one to the Journal Clerk.

34. Committees—When to report.

All committees shall act upon all bills as soon as practicable, and when acted upon, shall be reported back to the Senate forthwith, and the chairman of each committee is charged with the observance of this rule; provided, that the Senate may at any time order a bill reported back from any committee by a majority vote.

35. Standing committee, quorum of—What constitutes.

Each standing committee shall determine its own quorum; provided, that not less than one third of the number of members constituting such committee shall in any case constitute such quorum.

36. Leave of absence to committee.

When leave of absence shall be granted to any committee, special or standing, to visit public buildings or institutions, or for any other purpose, such leave shall be granted only by two-thirds vote, and no expenses or mileage of attachés shall be allowed.

37. Claims on contingent fund must go to Committee on Contingent Expenses.

No claim shall be paid out of the contingent fund of the Senate until the same shall have been referred to and reported on by the Committee on Contingent Expenses.

38. Executive communications and nominations to committee.

When executive communications or nominations shall be sent by the Governor to the Senate for their confirmation, the same shall be referred to the Committee on Executive Communications, unless otherwise ordered by the Senate, which motion shall be determined without debate.

39. San Francisco Delegation.

The members of the Senate from the city and county of San Francisco shall constitute a standing committee, to be known as the San Francisco Delegation.

40. The General File; its hours—Special order of bills on file.

The General File shall be the special order for each day between such hours as the Senate may hereafter set, unless sooner disposed of; but no bill shall lose its place upon the file by expiration of the time or by adjournment of the Senate while it is under consideration.

41. Bills passed on file, placed at foot of file.

When bills have been passed on file for the second time, they must be placed at the foot of the file in their regular order, unless otherwise ordered by the Senate.

42. Engrossed bills have preference.

All bills, after the second reading (if the same be not committed, then upon being reported), shall be placed upon a general file, and shall be taken up for consideration and passage in the order of their being placed on file.

43. Order of questions on motion to refer.

When a resolution shall be offered, or a motion made to refer any subject, and a different committee shall be proposed, the question shall be taken in the following order:

1. The Committee of the Whole Senate.
2. A Standing Committee.
3. A Select Committee.

44. Order of questions under debate.

When a question is under debate, no motion shall be received but the following privileged questions, which shall have precedence in the following order:

1. To adjourn.
2. For a call of the Senate.
3. To lay on the table.
4. To postpone to a day certain.
5. To commit.
6. To amend.
7. To postpone indefinitely.

45. Motion not to be debated until seconded and announced.

No motion shall be debated until the same be seconded and distinctly announced by the President; and it shall be reduced to writing if desired by the President, or any Senator, and read by the Secretary, before the same shall be debated.

46. Reading of a paper, if objected to, determined without debate.

When the reading of a paper is called for (except petitions), and the same is objected to by any Senator, it shall be determined by a vote of the Senate.

47. Amendments and substitutes—When in order.

Substitutes may be offered at any time when a bill or resolution is open to amendment, previous to engrossment; and when adopted shall take the place of the original bill or resolution, and shall be open to amendment.

48. Amendments and substitutes must be germane.

No motion or proposition on a subject different from that under consideration shall be admitted under color of amendment or substitute.

49. Least sum and shortest time in filling blanks.

In filling up blanks, the least sum or number and the shortest time shall be put first.

50. Short of final question, two thirds vote not requisite on propositions to amend Constitution.

When an amendment to the Constitution, or any bill requiring the concurrence of two thirds of the Senators, is under consideration, the concurrence of two thirds shall not be required to decide any question for amendment, or extending to the merits, being short of the final question.

51. Notice of reconsideration.

On the day succeeding that on which a final vote on any bill, concurrent or joint resolution, or constitutional amendment has been taken, said vote may be reconsidered on the motion of any Senator; provided, notice of intention to move such reconsideration shall have been given on the day on which such final vote was taken, by a Senator voting with the prevailing side; and it shall not be in order to reconsider on the day on which such final vote was taken. Said motion of reconsideration shall have precedence over every other motion, except a motion to adjourn; and it shall require twenty-one votes to carry any motion to reconsider the vote by which any bill, concurrent or joint resolution has been passed or defeated, and twenty-seven votes to carry any motion to reconsider the vote by which any constitutional amendment has been passed or defeated. No notice of reconsideration shall be in order on the day preceding the last day of the session. There shall be but one reconsideration, even though the action of the Senate after reconsideration is the opposite of the action of the Senate before reconsideration.

52. Reconsideration of bills sent to Assembly.

When a bill, resolution, amendment, order, or message upon which a vote has been taken, shall have gone out of the possession of the Senate and been communicated to the Assembly, a motion to reconsider shall be preceded by a motion to request the Assembly to return the same, which last-named motion shall be acted upon immediately and without debate, and if determined in the negative, shall be a final disposition of the motion to reconsider.

53. Secretary, upon notice of reconsideration, not to report bill to Assembly.

If a Senator gives notice that he intends to move a reconsideration, the Secretary shall not report the bill, concurrent or joint resolution, or constitutional amendment to the Assembly till the reconsideration is disposed of, or the time for moving the same has expired, unless the bill or resolution has been transmitted to the Assembly.

54. Motion to reconsider may be debated.

A Senator, after a notice to reconsider is given, as provided in Rule 51, may, at the reconsideration thereof, present the main question in his argument thereon, and the same may be debated by the Senate, provided that the subject-matter is debatable.

55. Amendments to original question.

1. An amendment may be laid on the table without prejudice to the bill. When an amendment proposed to any pending measure shall be laid on the table, it shall not carry with it or prejudice such measure.

2. If the question in debate contains several propositions, any Senator may have the same divided; except a motion to strike out and insert shall not be divided. But the rejection of a motion to strike out and insert one proposition shall not prevent a motion to strike out and insert a different proposition, nor shall it prevent a motion to simply strike out, nor shall the rejection of a motion to strike out prevent a motion to strike out and insert; but pending a motion to strike out and insert, the part to be stricken out and the part to be inserted shall each be regarded, for the purpose of amendment, as a question. And motions to amend the part to be stricken out shall have precedence.

56. Final question on second reading of bill—No amendment on third reading, but may commit.

The final question on the second reading of every bill originating in the Senate, and requiring three readings previous to being passed, shall be: "Shall the bill be engrossed?" And no amendment shall be received for discussion at the third reading of any bill; but it shall at all times be in order, before the final passage of such bill, to move its commitment under special instructions to amend.

57. Special orders.

Any subject may, by vote of two thirds of the Senators present, be made a special order, and when the time fixed for its consideration arrives, the presiding officer shall lay it before the Senate.

58. Form of previous question—Call of Senate.

The previous question shall be put in the following form: "Shall the question be now put?" It shall only be admitted when demanded by a majority of the Senators present upon division; and its effect shall be to put an end to all debate except that the author of the bill or the amendment shall have the right to close, and the subject under discussion shall thereupon be immediately put to a vote. On a motion for the previous question prior to a vote being taken by the Senate, a call of the Senate shall be in order.

59. Ayes and noes; members must answer—No vote after announcement of vote.

When the ayes and noes shall be called for by three members present, every member within the bar of the Senate at the time the question was put shall declare openly, and without debate, assent or dissent to the question. In taking the ayes and noes, and upon the call of the Senate, the names of the Senators shall be taken alphabetically. When the ayes and noes shall be taken upon any question in pursuance of this rule, no Senator shall be permitted, under any circumstance whatever, to vote after the announcement of the vote by the presiding officer.

60. Rules in Senate and Committee of the Whole.

The rules of the Senate shall be observed in Committee of the Whole, so far as may be applicable, except limiting the number of times a Senator may speak, and except that the ayes and noes shall not be taken.

61. Suspending and changing rules.

No standing rule or order of the Senate shall be rescinded or changed without a vote of two thirds of the members-elect, and one day's notice being given of the motion therefor; but a rule or order may be suspended temporarily by a vote of two thirds of the members-elect, except that portion of Rule 29 relating to the final passage of bills. All proposed amendments to these rules shall be referred to the Committee on Rules, without debate.

62. Executive session.

On a motion, made and seconded, to close the doors of the Senate on the discussion of any business which may, in the opinion of the Senate, require an executive session, the President shall require all persons, except Senators, President of Senate, Secretary, Sergeant-at-Arms, and Doorkeeper to withdraw, and during the discussion of said motion the doors shall remain closed; and every member and officer of the Senate shall keep secret all such matters, proceedings, and things whereof secrecy shall be enjoined by order of the Senate.

63. Messengers—When introduced.

Messengers may be introduced at any stage of business, except while a question is being put, while the ayes and noes are being called, while the ballots are being counted, or while a Senator is addressing the Senate.

64. Smoking.

No smoking shall be allowed within the Senate Chamber.

65. Cases not provided for, Cushing to govern.

In all cases not provided for by these rules, the Senate shall be governed by the laws and practices as laid down in Cushing's Law and Practice of Legislative Assemblies.

Necessary Votes on Senate Actions.

1. Twenty-one votes to pass all bills (except No. 2).
2. Two thirds vote of members-elect to pass a bill increasing number of Superior Judges.
3. Two thirds vote of members-elect to suspend the Constitution in case of urgency.
4. Two thirds vote of members-elect to pass constitutional amendment.
5. A majority vote of those voting to amend a constitutional amendment.
6. Twenty-one votes to pass concurrent resolution ratifying a city charter or amendment thereto.
7. Two thirds vote of members-elect to pass a bill over the Governor's veto.
8. Three fifths vote of members-elect to increase the number of attachés or employés.
9. A majority of those voting to pass all other resolutions.

STANDING RULES OF ASSEMBLY—THIRTY-EIGHTH SESSION, 1909.

1. Hour of meeting.

The sessions of the House shall be daily (Sundays excepted), beginning at nine o'clock and thirty minutes A. M. Until February 6, 1909, adjournment shall be taken at twelve o'clock and thirty minutes P. M., and after said date a recess shall be taken at said hour to two o'clock P. M., unless otherwise ordered by a vote of the House.

2. Order of business.

1. Roll Call.
2. Prayer by the Chaplain.
3. Reading and Approval of the Journal.
4. Presentation of Petitions.
5. Reports of Standing Committees.
6. Reports of Select Committees.
7. Messages from the Governor.
8. Messages from the Senate.
9. Introduction and Reference of Bills.
10. Motions and Resolutions.
11. Special Orders of the Day.
12. Unfinished Business of the Preceding Day.
13. Business on Special File.
14. Business on General File and Third Reading of Bills.

3. Reports of Committee on Engrossed and Enrolled Bills.

It shall be in order for the Committee on Engrossed and Enrolled Bills to report at any time.

4. Messages from the Governor and Senate.

Messages from the Governor and from the Senate may be considered at any time by a vote of the House.

5. Petitions to be presented, with a brief statement of contents.

Petitions, memorials, and other papers addressed to the House, shall be presented by the Speaker, or by a member in his place. A brief statement of the contents thereof shall be made verbally by the introducer. They shall not be debated on the day of their being presented, but shall lie on the table, or be referred, as the House shall determine.

6. Introduction and reading of bills.

Any member desiring to introduce a bill shall rise in his place and address the Speaker, and upon being recognized shall present the same. It shall then be numbered and read the first time at the Clerk's desk and referred to a standing committee, and be printed, and a copy placed upon the desk of each member. Every bill shall be read at length on three several days previous to its passage, unless in case of urgency two thirds of the House shall, by vote of ayes and noes, dispense with this provision. The Speaker shall give notice at each reading whether it be the first, second, or third, and no bill shall be read at either reading until the House has so determined by a vote. All bills to appropriate money for contingent purposes shall be presented by the Committee on Ways and Means. The chairman or clerk of each committee of the Assembly shall notify the author of any bill or proceeding pending before such committee of the hour and place of hearing or acting upon such bill or proceeding.

7. Introduction of bills by committee.

Any committee may introduce a bill appertaining to any subject coming within its consideration, whereupon it shall be read the first time and placed upon the proper second-reading file. When such a bill is designed to be a substitute for one or more Assembly bills, the bills for which it is such a substitute shall, by a majority vote of the House, be deemed withdrawn, and shall not appear upon the file. Upon the introduction of a bill by a committee, it shall be numbered as a new bill, ordered printed, and placed upon the Assembly file for further action.

8. Disposition of Senate bills.

When a Senate bill has been received by the House, with a message announcing that the same has passed the Senate, such bill shall be referred to a standing committee, and if found by said committee to be identical with the provisions of an Assembly bill which has already been considered and reported by a committee of the Assembly, such Senate bill may be substituted for the Assembly bill (the latter being considered withdrawn), shall take the same place upon the Assembly file, and be considered as having received the same recommendation of the Assembly committee; provided, that the fact that the bills are identical shall be entered in the Journal.

9. Joint resolutions and constitutional amendments.

Joint resolutions shall be treated the same as bills; provided, that they shall be read but once, and that after they have been reported by a committee; and provided further, that the ayes and noes shall not be called upon their adoption, unless regularly demanded. Proposed amendments to the Constitution shall be treated the same as bills; provided, they shall be read but once, and only after they shall have been reported by a committee.

10. Proceedings touching appropriations of money to be considered in Committee of the Whole.

All bills making appropriations of money shall be considered in a Committee of the Whole House while on second reading, and no addition to any appropriation shall be made out of the Committee of the Whole.

11. Reference of bills.

No debate shall be allowed on any motion to refer a bill or resolution to a committee. The Speaker shall first indicate to what committee a bill or resolution ought to be referred, and it shall be so referred, unless upon a motion, without debate, the House by a majority vote refer it to some other committee.

12. Referring with special instructions.

A bill or resolution may be committed with special instructions at any time after the third reading has been ordered.

13. Order of making file.

Upon the introduction of bills they shall be read the first time, and referred to committees as provided in Rule 6. When reported back they shall be placed upon the General File, to be kept by the Clerk, as follows: All bills when reported to the House by the committees shall be placed at the foot of the second-reading file, in the order in which the reports are made, and after the second reading they shall be placed at the foot of the third-reading file, in the order of reading, and precedence shall be given in the consideration of bills in the following order: Third-reading file and second reading file, unless otherwise ordered by a two-thirds vote of the House. The Clerk shall post, in a conspicuous place in the chamber, a daily statement of the bills on the General File, setting forth the order in which they were filed, and specifying the alterations arising from the disposal of business each day.

14. Order of making special file.

The Clerk shall, from time to time, make up a file, to be known as the Special File, on which he shall place bills relating to appropriations for the support of the State Government and State institutions, revenue, election laws, and constitutional amendments, in the order named, and in the order in which the same may be reported to the Assembly, and he shall place no other bills thereon, nor shall any bill on the General File be substituted for any bill thereon.

15. Taking up bills out of order.

When a member shall ask leave to have a bill taken up out of its regular order he shall in making the motion give the number and title of the bill, and its position on the file.

16. Engrossing and enrolling bills.

The Engrossing and Enrolling Clerk shall engross, and enroll, the bills which shall come to his hands for such purposes, in compliance with the provisions of section 539 of the Political Code, and in the order of time in which the same shall be acted upon by the House. Said Clerk shall be responsible for every violation of this rule by his assistants or deputies; no Clerk of this House, or his deputy or assistant, shall demand or receive from any person any compensation other than that provided by law for any services performed by him in regard to the bills or preparation of bills before this House.

17. Bills to be reported back within ten days.

All bills referred to any committee shall be by such committee reported back to the House with its action thereon within ten days after such reference, unless the House, by request of such committee, shall otherwise order.

DUTIES OF SPEAKER.

18. To call the House to order.

The Speaker, or, in his absence, the Speaker pro tem., shall take the chair precisely at the hour appointed for meeting, and shall immediately call the House to order. In the absence of both the Speaker and the Speaker pro tem., the Chief Clerk, or an assistant, shall call the House to order, whereupon a Chairman shall be elected from among the members to preside.

19. To preserve order; to decide points of order; and may speak to same.

He shall preserve order and decorum; may speak to points of order in preference to other members, rising from his seat for that purpose; and shall decide questions of order subject to an appeal to the House by any member, on which appeal no member shall speak more than once, unless by leave of the House.

20. To have direction of the hall; may call any member to the Chair.

He shall have general direction of the hall. He shall have a right to name any member to perform the duties of the Chair, but such substitution shall not extend beyond an adjournment.

21. To sign resolutions, etc., attested by the Clerk.

All Acts, addresses, and joint resolutions shall be signed by the Speaker, and all writs, warrants, and subpoenas issued by order of the House shall be under his hand, attested by the Clerk.

22. May order the galleries and lobby cleared.

In case of any disturbance or disorderly conduct in the galleries or lobby, the Speaker (or Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House) shall have power to order the same to be cleared.

DUTIES OF THE SERGEANT-AT-ARMS.

23. To attend sittings of House; serve processes.

The Sergeant-at-Arms shall attend the House during its sittings, to execute the commands of the Speaker of the House, and all process issued by authority thereof directed to him by the Speaker. He shall be sworn to keep the secrets of the House. He shall also have supervision of all the attachés of the House (except the clerks at the desk, the committee attachés, and the Page to the Speaker, which Page shall be under the exclusive supervision of the Speaker), and shall be responsible for the performance of their duties, and shall have power to suspend any attaché under him for dereliction of duty, and shall report to the Speaker such suspension and the causes thereof; said attaché shall not receive any pay during the time of such suspension. The Speaker shall have the power to relieve the attaché of his suspension and shall have the power to remove any attaché for incompetency or for willful neglect of duty.

24. Fees of Sergeant-at-Arms.

The Sergeant-at-Arms shall receive for every arrest the sum of one dollar; for each day's custody and releasement, one dollar; and for traveling expenses for himself, or a special messenger, going and coming, ten cents per mile; but no compensation shall be allowed for the arrest, custody, or releasement of members under a call of the House, within the limits of the Capitol grounds. All fees accruing to the Sergeant-at-Arms for arrest, custody and release of members, shall be paid by the members so arrested, held in custody, and released, unless excused by a vote of the House. And when a member shall be excused by the House, the Sergeant-at-Arms shall not be allowed any fees for the arrest.

25. Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms to be doorkeeper.

The Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms shall be the doorkeeper, and shall be sworn to keep the secrets of the House.

26. Standing committees.

The Standing Committees of the House shall be as follows:

1. A Committee on Agriculture, to consist of seven members.
2. A Committee on Attachés and Employés, to consist of seven members.

21. A Committee on Governor's Messages, to consist of five members.
22. A Committee on Immigration, to consist of nine members.
23. A Committee on Insurance and Insurance Laws, to consist of nine members.
24. A Committee on Irrigation, to consist of nine members.
25. A Committee on Judiciary, to consist of twenty-one members.
26. A Committee on Labor and Capital, to consist of nine members.
27. A Committee on Swamp and Overflowed Lands and Levees and River Improvements and Drainage, to consist of fifteen members.
28. A Committee on Manufactures and Internal Improvements, to consist of seven members.
29. A Committee on Mileage, to consist of five members.
30. A Committee on Military Affairs, to consist of seven members.
31. A Committee on Mines and Mining Interests, to consist of nine members.
32. A Committee on Municipal Corporations, to consist of seven members.
33. A Committee on Oil Industries and Oil Mining Interests, to consist of nine members.
34. A Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, to consist of eleven members.
35. A Committee on Public Health and Quarantine, to consist of seven members.
36. A Committee on Public Lands and Forestry, to consist of seven members.
37. A Committee on Public Morals, to consist of nine members.
38. A Committee on Public Printing, to consist of seven members.
39. A Committee on Public Works, State Capitol, and Parks, to consist of seven members.
40. A Committee on Public Charities and Corrections, to consist of seven members.
41. A Committee on Medical and Dental Laws, to consist of seven members.
42. A Committee on Retrenchment and Reform, to consist of seven members.
43. A Committee on Revenue and Taxation, to consist of nine members.
44. A Committee on Revision and Reform of Laws, to consist of nine members.
45. A Committee on Roads and Highways, to consist of eleven members.
46. A Committee on Rules and Regulations, to consist of five members, one of whom shall be the Speaker.
47. A Committee on State Hospitals and Asylums, to consist of eleven members.
48. A Committee on State Library, to consist of five members.
49. A Committee on State Prisons and Reformatory Institutions, to consist of nine members.
50. A Committee on Ways and Means, to consist of fifteen members.
51. A Committee on Universities, to consist of seven members.
52. The San Francisco Delegation, to whom may be referred matters of interest in particular to the city and county of San Francisco; but not to the exclusion of the jurisdiction of other committees.
53. The Los Angeles Delegation, to whom may be referred matters of interest in particular to the city or county of Los Angeles, but not to the exclusion of the jurisdiction of the other committees.
54. A Committee on Common Carriers, to consist of eleven members.
27. Committees to be appointed by Speaker.

All committees shall be appointed by the Speaker, unless otherwise ordered by the House.

28. Committee on Contested Elections.

It shall be the duty of the Committee on Contested Elections to examine and report upon the certificates of election or other credentials of the members returned to serve in this House, and to take into their consideration all such petitions and other matters touching elections and returns as shall or may be presented or comes into question and be referred to them by the House.

29. Committee on Ways and Means.

It shall be the duty of the Committee on Ways and Means to take into consideration all reports of the State Officers and State Boards or State Commissions, and all propositions relative to the revenue of the State, as may be referred to them by the Assembly; to inquire into the state of the revenue and expenditures of the State, and report from time to time their opinion thereon. All bills for the appropriation of money, which were not at first referred to the Committee on Ways and Means, shall be reported to the House by the committees having them under consideration, and shall thereupon, without motion, be referred to the Committee on Ways and Means; and said committee shall consider and report thereon the amount of appropriation required, but such bill shall retain its place on file pending its consideration by said Committee on Ways and Means. The Committee on Ways and Means shall, from time to time, at least once in two weeks, report to the House the exact condition of legislation involving appropriations, and the aggregate amount of all the proposed appropriations pending.

30. Committee on Commissions and Public Expenditures.

It shall be the duty of the Committee on Commissions and Public Expenditures to ascertain what State commissions, institutions, or boards, if any, can be abolished or consolidated with advantage to the public, in view of a more economical administration of State affairs; to ascertain what expenditures and salaries of the various public offices and institutions can be advantageously reduced or discontinued; to prepare and report to the Assembly such bills or resolutions as may be required to carry out the recommendations of the committee.

31. Committee on Engrossment.

It shall be the duty of the Engrossing Committee to compare all bills ordered or considered engrossed by this House with the engrossed copies thereof; and before they pass out of the possession of the House, see that the engrossed bill is a true copy of the original, with such amendments as may have been made thereto; and said committee shall see that all engrossed bills are reported back in the order in which they were ordered engrossed.

32. Committee on Revision and Reform of Laws.

It shall be the duty of the Committee on Revision and Reform of the Law to take into consideration all petitions, bills, and resolutions touching the revision and reform of the existing laws of the State of California as shall or may be presented or come into question and be referred to it by the Assembly.

33. Committee Expenditures.

No committee shall be permitted to incur any expense by visiting any part of the State on official or other business, without first obtaining leave of the House by a two-thirds vote of the members thereof.

34. Committee of the Whole House.

In forming a Committee of the Whole House, a chairman, to be named by the Speaker, shall preside. Bills committed to a Committee of the Whole House shall, in Committee of the Whole, be read by sections. All amendments shall be noted and reported to the Assembly by the chairman. After being reported to the Assembly, the bill shall again be subject to amendment before a vote on the report is taken.

35. Rules in Committee of the Whole.

The rules of the Assembly shall be observed in Committee of the Whole, as far as may be applicable, except limiting the time of speaking, and except that the ayes and noes shall not be taken.

36. Motion to rise decided without debate.

A motion that the committee rise shall always be in order, and shall be decided without debate.

37. Reference of bills.

When a motion is made to refer any subject, and different committees shall be proposed, the question shall be taken in the following order:

The Committee of the Whole House.

A standing committee.

A select committee.

38. Calling members to order when transgressing rules.

If any member, in speaking or otherwise, transgresses the rules of the House, the Speaker shall, or any member may, call to order; in which case the member so called to order shall immediately sit down, unless permitted to explain; and if called to order by a member, such member shall immediately state the point of order. If the point of order be sustained by the Chair, the member shall not be allowed to proceed; but if it be not sustained, then he shall be permitted to go on. Every such decision from the Chair shall be subject to an appeal to the House, but no discussion of a question of order shall be allowed, unless an appeal be taken from the decision of the Chair.

39. Speaker to decide who is entitled to the floor.

When two or more members shall rise at once, the Speaker shall name the member who is first to speak.

40. Order in speaking to questions.

Every member, when he speaks, shall, standing in his place, address "Mr. Speaker," and when he has finished he shall sit down. No member shall speak more than twice during the consideration of any one question, of whatever nature, on the same day and at the same stage of proceedings, without leave being granted, except the author of a bill or resolution, or mover of a question, who shall have the right to close the debate. No member shall be allowed to speak more than thirty (30) minutes upon any question, except by leave of the House.

41. Called to order for offensive words in debate.

If any member be called to order for offensive words spoken in debate, the person calling him to order shall report the words excepted to, and they shall be taken down in writing at the Clerk's table; and no member shall be held to answer, or be subject to censure of the House, for language used in debate, if any member has spoken or other business has intervened after the words spoken and before exception to them shall have been taken.

42. Personal explanation.

Any member may rise to explain a matter personal to himself, with leave of the Chair, but shall not discuss a question in such explanation.

43. Motions to be stated by Speaker shall be reduced to writing, or may be withdrawn.

No motion shall be debated until the same be seconded and distinctly announced by the Speaker; and it shall be reduced to writing, if desired by the Speaker, or any member, and be read by the Clerk, before the same shall be debated. A motion may be withdrawn, by leave of the House, at any time before amendment or decision.

44. Motion to adjourn.

A motion to adjourn shall always be in order, except during roll call. The Clerk shall enter on the Journal the name of any member moving an adjournment, also the hour at which the motion was made.

When a motion is made and seconded to adjourn, it shall be in order for the Speaker, before putting the question, to permit any member to state any fact to the House relating to the condition of the business of the House, which would seem to render it improper to adjourn at that time. Such statement, however, shall not be debatable, and such statement or statements, shall not, in any case, occupy more than two minutes.

Concurrent resolutions for adjournment sine die shall in all cases, whether originating in the House or coming from the Senate, be referred to the Committee on Ways and Means. That committee shall report upon any such concurrent resolutions not later than the next legislative day, and with regard to the status of the general appropriation bill and the tax levy.

45. Precedence of motions during debate.

When a question is under debate, or before the House, no motion shall be received but: To adjourn; to lay on the table; for the previous question; to postpone to a day certain; to commit or amend; to postpone indefinitely; which several motions shall have precedence in the order in which they are named, but the first three shall be decided without debate; and no motion to postpone to a day certain, to commit, or to postpone indefinitely, being decided, shall again be allowed on the same day, and at the same stage of the proceedings. A motion to strike out the enacting clause of a bill shall have preference over a motion to amend, and, if carried, shall be considered equivalent to its rejection. A dilatory motion shall not be considered intervening business within the meaning of parliamentary usage.

46. Previous question.

The previous question shall be in this form: "Shall the main question be now put?" and its effect, when sustained by a majority of the members present, shall be to put an end to all debate and bring the House to a vote on the question or questions before it.

47. Questions of order after previous question is ordered.

All incidental questions of order arising after a motion is made for the previous question, and pending such motion or previous question, shall be decided (whether on appeal or otherwise) without debate; provided, that after the previous question shall have been ordered, ten minutes shall be allowed for explanation of the matters covered by the previous question, of which five minutes shall be given to the member moving the previous question, and five minutes to those opposed thereto.

48. Previous question demanded.

The previous question shall only be put when demanded by three members.

49. Question indefinitely postponed.

When a question is postponed indefinitely, the same shall not again be introduced during the session.

50. Division of questions.

Any member may call for a division of the question, which shall be divided if it comprehend propositions in substance so distinct that, one being taken away, a substantive proposition shall remain for the decision of the House. A motion to strike out being lost, shall preclude neither a motion to add to nor a motion to strike out and insert.

51. Substitute.

A substitute shall be deemed and held to be an amendment, and be treated in all respects as such.

52. Subjects different from the one under consideration.

No motion or proposition on a subject different from that under consideration shall be admitted as an amendment.

53. Printing of bills.

Five hundred copies of all bills shall be printed. The Sergeant-at-Arms shall be required to certify to the reception by the House of all such printed matter, and the quantity thereof.

54. Printing extra number of bills, etc.

A proposition to print an extra number of any document or other matter shall lie on the table one day for consideration, unless otherwise ordered by consent of the House.

55. Printing of maps.

Maps accompanying documents shall not be printed under the general order to print, without the special direction of the House.

56. Filling blanks.

In filling up blanks the least sum and shortest time shall be first put.

57. Priority of business.

All questions relating to the priority of business shall be decided without debate.

58. Reading of papers.

When the reading of a paper is called for, except petitions, and the same is objected to by a member, it shall be determined by a vote of the House, without debate.

59. Notice of reconsideration.

On the day succeeding that on which a final vote on any bill or resolution has been taken said vote may be reconsidered on the motion of any member; provided, notice of intention to move such reconsideration shall have been given on the day on which such final vote was taken, by a member voting with the majority; and it shall not be in order for any member to move a reconsideration on the day on which such final vote was taken. Said motion of reconsideration shall have precedence over every other motion, except a motion to adjourn. No notice of reconsideration shall be in order on the day preceding the last day of the session. No motion to reconsider shall be adopted, except upon a roll call, and it shall require forty-one votes to adopt the motion.

60. Elections by House.

In all cases of election by the House the vote shall be taken viva voce.

61. Calling ayes and noes.

The ayes and noes shall be taken on the final passage of all bills, and when called for by three members on other questions, and every member within the bar of the House, when his name is called, shall (unless for special reasons he be excused) declare openly, and without debate, his vote. In taking the ayes and noes, and upon call of the House, the names of the members shall be taken alphabetically, and the Clerk shall enter on the Journal the names of those demanding the ayes and noes.

62. Members at Clerk's desk.

No member or other person shall remain by the Clerk's table while the ayes and noes are being called, or while the votes are being counted.

63. Voting on question when interested.

No person shall vote on any question in the result of which he is personally interested or involved.

64. Division and count of House.

Upon a division and count of the House on any question, no person without the bar shall be counted.

65. Explaining or changing vote.

No member shall be allowed to explain his vote or discuss the question while the ayes and noes are being called, and no member shall be allowed to change his vote after the vote is announced from the chair.

66. Call of the House.

Upon a call of the House the names of the members shall be called over by the Clerk, and the absentees noted, after which the names of the absentees shall again be called over. The door shall then be shut, and those for whom no excuse or insufficient excuses are made, may, by order of those present, be taken into custody, as they appear, or may be sent for and taken into custody by the Sergeant-at-Arms wherever to be found, or by special messenger, to be appointed for that purpose. In the absence of a quorum, a majority of the members present may order a call of the House and compel the attendance of absentees in the manner above provided. No recess can be taken during a call of the House.

67. Suspending and changing rules.

No standing rule or order of the House shall be rescinded or changed without a vote of two thirds, and one day's notice being given of the motion therefor; provided, that the Committee on Rules and Regulations may at any time, except during a roll call, report a temporary rule providing for the consideration of any bill on the files of the House belonging to either of the following classes:

1. Bills affecting the State government, its revenue, its various departments or commissions, or appropriations therefor.
2. Bills affecting county and township governments, or roads and highways.
3. Bills affecting town, city, city and county governments, or the municipal affairs of the same.
4. Bills amending election or primary election laws.
5. Constitutional amendments.
6. Bills amending or repealing the codes or sections thereof.

Such temporary rule shall provide when a bill so selected shall be taken up for consideration, and the time when final vote shall be taken thereon and pending amendments thereto, if there be any.

It shall always be in order to call up for consideration such report. The same shall be subject to amendment by the House.

On the adoption of such temporary rule by the House by a two-thirds vote thereof, if the bill be on third reading, and by a majority vote of the members elected to the House, if otherwise, such bill shall thereupon be made the special order for the time fixed therein.

A rule of order may be suspended temporarily by a vote of two thirds of the members present, except that portion of Rule 6 relating to third reading of bills. A motion or resolution proposing to increase or diminish a standing committee shall not be adopted until the same has been referred to the Committee on Rules and Regulations.

The Committee on Rules and Regulations may also, at any time, report a temporary rule or regulation for the consideration of the business on the file, having regard to the condition of the business of the House. When such temporary rule or regulation shall have been adopted by the House, it shall have the effect, for the time being, of a standing rule, and shall be enforced by the Speaker.

68. Members absenting themselves.

No member shall absent himself from the service of the House without the leave of the House, except in case of sickness; and if any member or officer of the House absent himself without leave, his per diem shall not be allowed him; but no member shall obtain leave of absence, or be excused, without a vote of two thirds of the House.

69. Persons admitted to floor.

No persons, except Senators, State officers, Governors and ex-Governors of States, Members of Congress, Judges of the Supreme, Appellate, and Superior Courts, members of the press when accredited by their respective journals, ladies when specially invited by a member of the House, shall be admitted within the Assembly Chamber, except in the galleries, during the session of the House; but a majority may have the floor of the House within the bar cleared of any or all such persons. The Speaker is charged with the enforcement of this rule.

70. Smoking in hall.

No smoking shall be allowed within the Assembly Chamber during the session of the House.

71. Parliamentary rules.

The rules of parliamentary practice contained in Roberts' Rules of Order shall govern the House in all cases to which they are applicable, and in which they are not inconsistent with the Standing Rules and Orders of the House and the Joint Rules of the Senate and House of Assembly.

72. Use of hall.

The Assembly room shall not be used for any public or private business other than legislative, except by consent of a majority of the House.

73. Fees for witnesses.

Witnesses summoned to appear before the House or any of its committees shall be paid as follows: For each day a witness shall attend, the sum of two dollars; for each mile he shall travel in coming to and going from the place of examination, the sum of ten cents. No mileage shall be paid except where the witness has actually traveled for the purpose of giving testimony.

74. Protest of members.

It shall be in order for any member or members to protest against the action of the House, and have such protest entered upon the minutes.

75. Fees allowed in cases of contest.

Whenever, in the Assembly, a contest is made for the seat of any Assemblyman, no more than two hundred dollars shall be allowed as counsel fees to either side.

76. Assignment of attachés.

The Committee on Attachés and Employés shall assign the committee clerks and the official stenographers of the House to the various committees; provided, that the Committee on Judiciary and the Committee on Ways and Means shall each be entitled to one clerk and one stenographer, to be selected by the chairman of those committees, respectively.

All assignments of committee clerks and stenographers made by the Committee on Attachés and Employés under this rule shall be reported to the House and entered in the Journal.

77. Introduction of bills after fortieth day.

On or prior to the fortieth day of the session the Speaker shall appoint a standing Committee on Introduction of Bills, to consist of three members.

All motions for leave to introduce bills after the fortieth day shall be sent to the desk in writing, under the order of "Introduction of Bills," and at no other time. The motion shall give the title of the bill, and shall be accompanied by the bill. The bill shall thereupon be referred to the Committee on Introduction of Bills.

That committee shall examine bills referred to it with particular reference to the question as to whether there is already any bill in either house of the same character which might be amended to effect the result sought, and generally as to the advisability of introducing the measure.

The committee shall report upon each bill so referred to it on the same legislative day. The report shall be made at the conclusion of the consideration of the Senate Special File.

The committee may, in its discretion, incorporate more than one bill in the resolution to grant leave to introduce, incorporating in the resolution the title of each bill in full, and the roll shall be called upon the adoption of the resolution without debate.

If a division of the question is demanded upon the introduction of any particular bill, the division shall be allowed, and the roll called separately upon the bill.

78. Form for introduction of bills.

When a bill is introduced and when printed amending an existing law, the new matter shall be underscored, and portions of the law proposed to be omitted shall be included in brackets; provided, however, that where the subject consists of an entirely new section, the words thereof need not be underscored, and that when any bill introduced repeals an existing law in whole, the matter repealed need not be put in the bill.

All bills reported favorably or for consideration, if reported with amendments, shall be immediately reprinted; the new matter underscored and the parts of the law proposed to be omitted included in brackets.

79. Leave of absence of committee visiting public institutions.

When leave of absence shall be granted any committee, special or standing, to visit public buildings or institutions, or for any other purpose, such leave shall be granted only by a two-thirds vote taken viva voce, and no expense or mileage of attachés shall be allowed. No member of the Assembly shall accompany a committee as a substitute for a member thereof who declines to accompany the committee, without permission for such substitution being obtained from the Speaker. Application for a leave of absence for a committee shall be made to the Assembly by the chairman thereof, by resolution, which shall give the name of the institution or institutions to be visited and briefly recite the occasion and necessity for visiting the same, together with the number of committeemen desiring leave. Such resolution shall immediately, and without debate, be referred to the Committee on Rules and Regulations, with instructions to report upon the next legislative day on the same, and whether the leave of absence can be granted without interfering with the business of the Assembly.

80. Duties of Chief Clerk.

It shall be the duty of the Chief Clerk to have charge and supervision of all the clerical business of the Assembly. He shall perform the duties imposed on him by law and the rules of the Assembly. He shall have the supervision of all the clerks and assistants at the desk, of the Journal Clerk and his assistants, of all bill clerks, bill filer, stenographers, and of all committee attachés except the attachés to the committees on Judiciary and Ways and Means, and shall be responsible for the performance of their duties, and shall have power to suspend any such clerk, or attaché under him for dereliction of duty, and shall report to the Speaker such suspension and the causes thereof. Said clerk or attaché shall not receive any pay during the time of such suspension. The Speaker shall have the power to relieve the attaché or clerk of his suspension, and shall have the power to remove any clerk or attaché for incompetency or for willful neglect of duty.

81. Lobbying.

No person engaged in presenting to the Assembly or its committees any business, or claim, or legislation, shall be permitted to engage in such business during the sessions of the Assembly, or be permitted on the floor of the Assembly at any time, and any person transgressing this rule shall be removed from the floor of the Assembly and be debarred from the privilege of the floor during the remainder of the entire session. The Speaker is charged with the enforcement of this rule.

This rule can not be suspended except by a two-thirds vote of the entire Assembly.

Necessary Votes on Assembly Actions.

1. Forty-one votes to pass all bills (except No. 2).
2. Two thirds vote of members-elect to pass a bill increasing number of Superior Judges.
3. Two thirds vote of members-elect to suspend Constitution in case of urgency.
4. Two thirds vote of members-elect to pass constitutional amendments.
5. A majority vote of those voting to amend a constitutional amendment.
6. Forty-one votes to pass concurrent resolution ratifying a city charter or amendment thereto.
7. Two thirds vote of members-elect to pass a bill over the Governor's veto.
8. Three fifths vote of members-elect to appoint attachés or employés other than those statutory.
9. A majority of those voting to pass all other resolutions.
10. Three fourths vote of the members to permit introduction of bill after fortieth day.
11. Two thirds vote to allow committee to visit institutions.
12. Twenty-one votes to reconsider vote on bill, joint and concurrent resolution and twenty-seven votes to reconsider vote on constitutional amendment.

JOINT RULES OF SENATE AND ASSEMBLY—THIRTY-EIGHTH SESSION, 1909.

1. Joint address to Governor.

When the Senate and Assembly shall judge it proper to make a joint address to the Governor, it shall be presented to him in his audience chamber by the President of the Senate in the presence of the Speaker of the House and a select committee of nine (9) members, appointed for that purpose from each house.

2. Bill or resolution in one house, rejected in the other, requires notice.

When a bill or resolution which shall have passed one house is rejected by the other, notice thereof shall be given immediately to the house in which the same shall have passed.

3. Each house to transmit papers.

Each house shall transmit to the other papers on which any bill or resolution shall be founded.

4. Joint and concurrent resolutions.

Joint resolutions are those which relate to matters connected with the Federal Government. All other resolutions relating to matters to be treated by both houses of the Legislature are concurrent resolutions.

5. Joint resolutions treated as bills.

All joint resolutions shall be treated in all respects as bills; except that all joint resolutions shall be read but one time in each house.

6. Amendments to amended bills must be attached.

Whenever a bill or resolution which shall have been passed in one house shall be amended in the other, such amendment or amendments shall be attached to the bill or resolution so amended, and indorsed "Adopted," and such amendment or amendments, if concurred in by the house in which such bill or resolution originated, shall be endorsed "Concurred in," and such endorsement shall be signed by the Secretary or Assistant Secretary of the Senate, or the Clerk or Assistant Clerk of the Assembly, as the case may be.

7. Bills read and referred to committee.

When a Senate bill has been received by the Assembly, or an Assembly bill by the Senate, with a message announcing that the same has passed the Senate or Assembly, such bill shall be read the first time by the Secretary or Clerk and referred to a standing committee.

8. Special file.

After the 1st day of February, 1909, the Senate and Assembly shall adopt and provide a special file upon which shall be placed: In the Senate, only Assembly bills that have passed the Assembly; and in the Assembly, only Senate bills that have passed the Senate. Such special file shall be taken up at two o'clock P. M. of each day, and be considered at least one hour and a half after being so taken up. This rule shall not be suspended in either House except by a three-fourths vote of such House.

9. Bills not to be printed for engrossment unless amended.

Unless bills have been amended they shall not be again printed for engrossment, but the Engrossing Clerk shall use a copy of original printed bill in an engrossed bill cover, and report same back immediately after comparing same.

10. After a bill has been passed by the Senate or Assembly.

When a bill (if it be a Senate bill) has been received from the Senate by the Assembly, after its passage, or (if it be an Assembly bill) has been received from the Assembly by the Senate, after its passage, it shall be taken up by the Senate or Assembly, as the case may be, under the regular order of business ("Senate Messages" or "Assembly Messages"), read the first time, and shall then be assigned to the proper committee, who shall act upon the same as soon as practicable, and report the same back to the Senate or Assembly forthwith, and the chairman of each committee is charged with the observance of this rule, provided that the Senate or the Assembly may, at any time, order such bill reported back from any committee by a majority vote.

11. To concur or refuse to concur in amendments.

In case the Senate amend and pass an Assembly bill, or the Assembly amend and pass a Senate bill, the Senate (if it be a Senate bill) or the Assembly (if it be an Assembly bill) must either "concur" or "refuse to concur" in the amendments.

12. When amendments are concurred in.

If the Senate concur (if it be a Senate bill), or the Assembly concur (if it be an Assembly bill), the Secretary or Clerk shall notify the house making the amendments, and the bill shall be ordered to enrollment.

13. When Senate or Assembly refuse to concur.

If the Senate refuse to concur (if it be a Senate bill), or the Assembly refuse to concur (if it be an Assembly bill), the Secretary or Clerk shall notify the house making the amendments of the action taken, and ask that they recede from their amendments. If they refuse to recede, a Committee on Conference shall be appointed, consisting of six members, three to be appointed by the President of the Senate and three by the Speaker of the Assembly. The Committee on Conference shall report to both the Senate and Assembly.

14. Committee on conference.

In every case of an amendment of a bill agreed to in one house and dissented from in the other, if either house shall request a conference and appoint a committee to confer, the other house shall appoint a like committee; and such committee shall meet at a convenient hour, to be agreed upon by the respective committees.

15. Committee on free conference.

If the committee on conference fail to agree, or either the Senate or Assembly refuse to adopt the report of the committee, it shall then be in order to appoint a committee on free conference.

A committee on free conference shall consist of six members, to be appointed in the same manner as a committee on conference.

The committee on free conference are hereby empowered to suggest in their report any new amendments which they may adopt as a committee, and such amendments made by such committee shall be attached to the bill.

The report of the committee on free conference shall not be subject to amendment in either house, and in case of nonagreement no further proceedings shall be had.

16. When conference committee report is in order.

The presentation of report of committee on conference or free conference shall always be in order, except when the Journal is being read or a question of order or a motion to adjourn is pending, or while the Senate or Assembly is dividing, or during roll call; and when received, the question of proceeding to the consideration of the report, if raised, shall be immediately passed upon, and shall be determined without debate.

17. Messages must be announced by the Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms.

When a message shall be sent from either house it shall be announced at the door by the Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms, and shall be respectfully communicated to the Chair by the person by whom it may be sent.

18. Secretary, Clerk, etc., to carry messages.

Messages shall be sent by the Secretary, Clerk, or by such person as a sense of propriety of each house may determine to be proper.

19. Notices to be on paper, under proper signature.

Notice of the action of either house to the other shall be on paper, and under the signature of the Secretary or Clerk of the house from which such notice is to be conveyed.

20. Enrolled bills to receive signature of proper officer.

After a bill shall have passed both houses, it shall be duly enrolled and carefully compared by the Enrolling Clerk and Enrolling Committee of the Assembly, or of the Senate, as the bill may be originated, and shall first receive the signature of the presiding officer and Clerk or Secretary of the house in which it emanated, before it shall be presented to the Governor of the State.

21. Enrolling Committee to compare.

When bills are enrolled they shall be reexamined by the Enrolling Committee of the house in which they originated, who shall compare the enrollment with the engrossed bill as passed in the two houses, and, correcting any errors that may be discovered in the enrolled bill, make their report forthwith to the house in which the bill originated, stating by whom such bill was examined.

22. President and Speaker to sign bills.

After examination and report, each bill shall be signed in the respective houses, first by the Speaker of the Assembly, then by the President of the Senate.

23. Enrolling committee to present bills to Governor.

After a bill shall have been thus signed in each house, it shall be presented by the enrolling committee of the house in which it originated to the Governor of the State for his approval (it being first endorsed on the back of the bill by the Secretary or Clerk, as the case may be, certifying in which house the bill originated). The said committee shall report the day of presentation to the Governor, which time shall be carefully entered on the Journal of the house in which the bill originated.

24. Daily history of bills, etc.

There shall be printed daily, by both the Senate and the Assembly, a history of all bills, joint and concurrent resolutions, and constitutional amendments, which shall show the action taken by the house up to the day preceding the publication of such history. A regular form shall be prescribed, and no other form shall be used.

25. Secretary and Clerk to keep register.

The Secretary of the Senate and Clerk of the Assembly shall keep a register, in which shall be recorded every action taken by the Senate and Assembly on every bill, concurrent or joint resolution, or constitutional amendment.

26. Secretary and Clerk shall endorse bills.

The Secretary of the Senate and Clerk of the Assembly shall endorse on every original bill a statement of any action taken by the Senate and Assembly.

27. Adjournment sine die.

An adjournment sine die shall only be made by concurrent resolution.

28. Dispensing with joint rules.

No joint rule shall be dispensed with except by vote of two thirds of each house; and if either house shall violate a joint rule a question of order may be raised in the other house and decided in the same manner as in the case of the violation of the rules of such house; and if it shall be decided that the joint rules have been violated, the bill involving such violation shall be returned to the house in which it originated, without further action. Or, at the option of such house, the President or Speaker may direct the Secretary or Clerk to mark the section or sections in conflict with the rules as non-concurred in or negatived.

EARLY HISTORY OF CALIFORNIA AND ITS DEVELOPMENT INTO A STATE.

The Primary Title to California.—Spain held the first title to California, and our right to the country, following the chain through Mexico back to Spain, was derived from the Treaty of the Partition of the Ocean of 1494. The islands found by Columbus in his voyage in 1492 were supposed to lie in the immediate vicinity of Asia, and their discovery was the result of an endeavor to reach the shores of India by a western course. With that same object the Portuguese had explored the Atlantic coast of Africa for a passage to the Indian Ocean, and were encouraged by a bull of Pope Nicholas V., issued in 1454, that assured to them the exclusive right of navigation, trade, and conquest of all lands they might find in that course. They had not reached the southern extremity of Africa when Columbus returned from his first voyage, but had discovered the Azores and Cape Verde Islands, and on the strength thereof claimed that the countries found by Columbus belonged to the crown of Portugal. Spain referred the matter to Pope Alexander VI., and on May 3, 1493, he determined the controversy by drawing an imaginary line of longitude one hundred leagues west of the Azores, and granting to Spain all countries which it had discovered or might discover lying to the west, and to Portugal all those lying to the east of that line. Upon this decision was afterward founded the Treaty of Partition of the Ocean, concluded at Tordesillas, in Spain, June 7, 1494, between the governments of Spain and Portugal. By this treaty the Portuguese were to enjoy and possess the exclusive right to all the seas and territories east of a meridian line passing three hundred and seventy leagues west of the Cape Verde Islands, and the Spaniards were to possess the same right to all the seas and lands west of that line. The two nations thus settled the conditions on which they were to appropriate nearly all the sea and land on the globe, without regard for the claims of other nations. The Spaniards planted colonies in the islands newly found beyond the Atlantic, to which they gave the collective name of West Indies, and soon ascertained that they were at the borders of a vast continent. How far south it extended and whether it was united in the north with Asia remained to be determined, and with those objects they persevered in their examinations, in which they were encouraged by the assurances of the natives respecting the existence of a great sea, and rich and powerful nations toward the setting sun.

Ignorance of Early Geographers respecting California.—After the Spanish conquest of Mexico by Cortes in 1520-21, expeditions by sea were sent to explore the western coast of North America, but it was not until two hundred and fifty years afterward that anything approaching a correct idea of the geography of the coast of California became known. In the Gazetteer by Laurence Echard, published in London in 1741, this reference to California appears: "California, a vast island of America, in the S. Sea, which reaches to New Spain, or Granada, and is separated from them by a Branch of the Sea, in Length about 6 or 700 Lgs. from N. to S. from the Prom. called the White Cape, the Cape of St. Sebastian, Cabo Mendocino, to the Prom. called Cabo de St. Lucar. It is now subject to the King of Spain."

In another book, "The Young Man's Book of Knowledge," printed in London in 1794, New Mexico, including California, is described as lying "between 23 and 43 Degrees of N. Latitude, and extends from 94 to 126 Degrees of W. Longitude; it is bounded by unknown Lands on the N. by Old Mexico and the Pacific Ocean S. by Louisiana E. and the Pacific Ocean W., being about 2,000 miles long and 1,600 broad. This country has a most delightful Climate, and a Soil productive of every Thing for Profit or Delight. It has rich Mines of Silver, and some of Gold, which are worked more and more every Day; and it produces precious Stones of several Kinds. The Dew that falls in California, and lights on the Rose Leaves, candies and becomes hard like Manna, having the Sweetness of refined Sugar. And in the Middle of the Country are Plains of Salt, firm and clear as Crystal, which, considering the vast Quantities of Fish found on its Coast, might render it an invaluable Acquisition to any industrious Nation. California is a Peninsula finely situated for Trade, and has a Pearl Fishery of great value. It was first discovered by the great Conqueror of Mexico, Fernando Cortes. Our famous Admiral and Navigator, Sir Francis Drake, took Possession of it in 1579; and the principal King formally invested him with the Sovereignty. But the Government of Great Britain has not hitherto attempted to vindicate this Title."

John W. Dwinelle, in an address on the acquisition of California by the United State, delivered before the Pioneer Society in San Francisco, September 10, 1866, gave these facts: "It was only by accident, after all, that Columbus discovered the vast region of continents and islands which are now called America. He was not in quest of new continents, nor of the golden-fruited gardens of the Hesperides. Believing, from inductive reasoning, that the earth was round, but with very imperfect notions of its magnitude, he was firmly persuaded that by sailing in a westerly direction from the coast of Spain, he would in due time arrive on the coast of China, which was then classed as a portion of the Indies; and when he discovered the first American islands, believing that he had already reached the Indies, he gave to the natives the name of Indians, which inaccurate classification they have ever since retained. Looking over the books and maps of the old geographers, it is curious and wonderful to observe how much they did know, and how much they did not know, of the geography of the northwestern coast of America for more than two hundred years after the discoveries made by Columbus. Although Cortes, when he fell into that inevitable disgrace with which the kings of Spain have always rewarded their greatest benefactors, sent out various expeditions from Mexico for the exploration of the northwestern coast, and even accompanied some of them as far as La Paz, in Lower California, and although the viceroys who succeeded him sent out various expeditions within fifty years after the conquest of Mexico, both by sea and by land, which must have penetrated as far north as the 42d degree of latitude, yet the physical geography of that region remained in the most mythical condition, and the very existence of the bay of San Francisco was contested as fabulous by the Spanish viceroys of New Spain less than a hundred years ago. There is in the possession of the Odd Fellows' library of this city an engraved map of the world, published at Venice in the year 1546, which is remarkable for its general accuracy and for the beauty of its execution, but on this map, at the latitude of San Francisco, the American continent is represented as sweeping around in a large circle, and forming a junction with that of Asia, while the Colorado, the largest river in the world, rising in the mountains of Thibet, and meandering through a course of 15,000 or 20,000 miles, pours its vast volume of waters into the Gulf of California. In the year 1588, a Spanish captain of marine, named Lorenzo Ferrer Maldonado, published an account of a voyage which he pretended to have made from the Atlantic Ocean, through the Northern sea, to the Pacific, and thence to China, giving all its geographical details and personal incidents. This apocryphal voyage proved a delusion and a stumbling-block to historians and voyagers for more than two hundred years, and it was not until the year 1791 that two Spanish frigates, sent out for that purpose by authority of the King of Spain, by a thorough exploration of the extreme northwestern coast, established the fact that a passage through the North Sea did not exist, and that the pretensions of Maldonado were utterly false. It is only within a comparatively recent period that the fact has been generally received in modern geography that California was connected with the main continent, and was not an island. In Ogilvie's 'America, being the latest and most accurate account of the New World,' a most elegant and luxurious folio, published in London in 1671, California is laid down as an island, extending from Cape St. Lucas, in the tropic of Cancer, to the 45th degree of latitude, and including the famous New Albion of Sir Francis Drake.

The same map is reproduced by Captain Shelvocke, of the royal navy, in his account of his 'Voyage Around the World by way of the South Sea,' in his Majesty's ship of war, published in London in 1726; and in a geographical work published in London in the same year, by Daniel Coxe, Esq., an account is given of 'a new and curious discovery and relation betwixt the river Meschachebe (Mississippi) and the South Sea, which separates America from China by means of several large rivers and lakes, with a description of the coast of the said sea to the Straits of Uries, as also of a rich and considerable trade to be carried on from thence to China, Japan and Tartary.' I can not ascertain that California was relieved of its insular character among geographers until the publication of a map by Father Begert, a missionary of the Society of Jesus, in an account of Lower California which he printed at Mannheim in 1771, on his return to Germany after his order had been expelled, in 1769, by order of the King of Spain, from the missions which they had successfully established among the Indians of Lower California. Even after it was admitted that California was not an island, but a part of the main land, the most indefinite notions prevailed as to the extent to which the Gulf of California penetrated toward the north; and to the very last of the Spanish and Mexican dominion, when any specific description was given to California in official documents, it was spoken of as a peninsula."

Origin of the Name California.—It is only in recent years that the origin of the name California has been satisfactorily ascertained. In the winter of 1862 Edward E. Hale encountered for the first time the Spanish romance of the "Sergas Esplandian," that is sometimes cited as the fifth book of Amadis of Gaul, but is by García Ordóñez de Montalvo, the translator of Amadis. "Coming to the allusion, in this forgotten romance," writes Mr. Hale, "to the island of California, very near to the Terrestrial Paradise, I saw at once that here was the origin of the name of the State of California, long sought for by the antiquarians of that State, but long forgotten. For the romance seems to have been published in 1510—the edition of 1521 is now in existence—while our California, even the peninsula of that name, was not discovered by the Spaniards till 1526, and was not named California till 1535." Mr. Hale called the attention of the American Antiquarian Society to this derivation of the name; in March, 1864, translated for the Atlantic Monthly all the parts of the romance which relate to the Queen of California—Califia—and in 1873 published a small volume on the subject, in which he said:

"The name of California was given by Cortes, who discovered the peninsula in 1535. For the statement that he named it, we have the authority of Herrera. It is proved, I think, that the expedition of Mendoza, in 1532, did not see California; it is certain that they gave it no name. Humboldt saw, in the archives of Mexico, a statement in manuscript that it was discovered in 1526; but for this there is no other authority. It is certain that the name does not appear till 1535. No etymology of this name has been presented satisfactory to the historians. Venegas, the Jesuit historian of California, writing in 1758, sums up the matter in these words: 'The most ancient name is California, used by Bernal Diaz, limited to a single bay. I could wish to gratify the reader by the etymology and true origin of this name; but in none of the various dialects of the natives could the missionaries find the least traces of such a name being given by them to the country, or even to any harbor, bay, or small part of it. Nor can I subscribe to the etymology of some writers, who suppose the name to be given to it by the Spaniards, on their feeling an unusual heat at their first landing here; that they thence called the country California, compounding the two Latin words calida and fornax, a hot furnace. I believe few will think the adventurers could boast of so much literature.' Clavigero, in his history of California, after giving this etymology, offers as an alternative the following, as the opinion 'of the learned Jesuit, D. Giuseppe Compoi': He believes that the name is composed of the Spanish word cala, which means 'a little cove of the sea,' and the Latin fornix, which means 'the vault of a building.' He thinks these words are thus applied, because within Cape St. Lucas there is a little cove of the sea, towards the western part of which rises a rock, so worn out that on the upper part of the hollow is seen a vault, as perfect as if made by art. Cortes, therefore, observing this cala, or cove, and this vault, probably called this port California, or cala and fornix—speaking half in Spanish, half in Latin. Clavigero suggests, as an improvement on this somewhat wild etymology, that Cortes may have said Cala fornax, 'cove furnace,' speaking as in the Jesuit's suggestion, in two languages." * * *

"Towards the close of this romance of the Sergas of Esplandian, the various Christian knights assemble to defend the Emperor of the Greeks and the city of Constantinople against the attacks of the Turks and Infidels. In the romance, the name appears with precisely our spelling, in the following passage:

"Sergas, ch. 157: 'Know that, on the right hand of the Indies, there is an island called California, very near to the Terrestrial Paradise, which was peopled with black women, without any men among them, because they were accustomed to live after the fashion of Amazons. They were of strong and hardened bodies, of ardent courage, and of great force. The island was the strongest in the world, from its steep rocks and great cliffs. Their arms were all of gold; and so were the caparisons of the wild beasts which they rode, after having tamed them; for in all the island there is no other metal. They lived in caves very well worked out; they had many ships, in which they sailed to other parts to carry on their forays.'"

The name appears in several distinct passages in the book. Mr. Hale adds: "This romance, as I have said, is believed to have been printed first in 1510. No copies of this edition, however, are extant. But of the edition of 1519 a copy is preserved; and there are copies of successive editions of 1521, 1525, and 1526, in which last year two editions were published—one at Seville and the other at Burgos. All of these are Spanish. It follows, almost certainly, that Cortes and his followers, in 1535, must have been acquainted with the romance; and as they sailed up the west side of Mexico, they supposed they were precisely at the place indicated,—'on the right hand of the Indies.' It will be remembered, also, that by sailing in the same direction, Columbus, in his letter to the sovereigns, says 'he shall be sailing towards the Terrestrial Paradise.' We need not suppose that Cortes believed the romance more than we do; though we assert that he borrowed a name from it to indicate the peninsula he found 'on the right side of the Indies, near to the Terrestrial Paradise.'"

* * * In ascribing to the Esplandian the origin of the name California, I know that I furnish no etymology for that word. I have not found the word in any earlier romances. I will only suggest that the root Calif, the Spanish spelling for the sovereign of the Mussulman power of the time, was in the mind of the author as he invented these Amazon allies of the Infidel power."

Early Expeditions of Exploration and Discovery.—About the year 1537 Cortes fitted out several small vessels and sailed north to the head of the Gulf of California. His vessels were provided with everything requisite for planting a colony in the newly discovered region; but he encountered sands, rocks, and sterile mountains, and returned before he had crossed the line that marks the southern boundary of our present State. Soon afterward, the Viceroy Mendoza dispatched another expedition, by land and sea, in the same direction, but accomplished still less. In 1542 the same viceroy sent out Cabrillo, a Portuguese, with two ships, to survey the western coast of California. This expedition penetrated north and reached the 44th degree of latitude on March 10, 1543, and was compelled to return by want of provisions and the bad condition of the ships. On June 17, 1579, Sir Francis Drake landed on this coast, supposedly at a bay a few miles north of San Francisco, that still bears his name. His historian wrote of how the natives mistook them for gods, worshiped them, and offered sacrifices to them, much against their will, and of how Drake took possession of the country in the name of Queen Elizabeth. In his narrative he said: "Our necessaire business being ended, our General with his companie travailed up into the countrey to their villaiges, where we found heardes of deere by 1,000 in a companie, being most large and fat of bodie. We found the whole countrey to be a warren of a strange kinde of connies, their bodies in bigness as be the Barbarie connies, their heads as the heads of ours, the feet of a Want (mole), and the taile of a rat, being of great length; under her chinne on either side a bagge, into which she gathered her meate, which she hath filled her bellie abroad.

The people do eat their bodies and make great accompt of their skinnes, for their King's coat was made out of them. Our General called this countrey Nova Albion, and that for two causes: the one in respect of the white bankes and cliffes which lie toward the sea; and the other because it might have some affinitie with our countrey in name, which sometime was so called. There is no part of earth here to be taken up, wherein there is not a reasonable quantitie of gold or silver." Before he sailed away, "Our General set up a monument of our being there, as also of her Majestie's right and title to the same, viz.: a plate nailed upon a faire great poste, whereupon was engraven her Majestie's name, the day and yeare of our arrival there, with the free giving up of the province and people into her Majestie's hands, together with her highness' picture and arms, in a piece of fivepence of current English money under the plate, whereunder was also written the name of our General." It would appear that Drake knew nothing of Cabrillo's voyage, for the narrative says: "It seemeth that the Spaniards hitherto had never been in this part of the countrey, neither did discover the lande by many degrees to the southward of this place."

The Spaniards sent out other expeditions, but they proved fruitless until Count de Monterey, the Viceroy of New Spain, by order of the King, dispatched Sebastian Viscaino, who sailed from Acapulco May 5, 1602, with two large vessels and a tender. This navigator had led an unsuccessful expedition in 1596. November 10, 1602, he entered the bay of San Diego, and December 16th anchored in the bay of Monterey and named it after the Viceroy. The next day a church, tent or arbor, was erected under a large oak tree close to the seaside, and the priests said mass. This, however, was not the first Christian worship on these shores, for Drake had worshiped where he landed twenty-five years before. After leaving Monterey, in January, 1603, the vessels were separated in a storm, and the one that carried Viscaino took refuge in the bay of San Francisco,* which seems to have been known before, and search was made for a vessel which was supposed to have been lost there in 1595 on her voyage from the Philippines to Acapulco. Finding no traces of that ship, Viscaino put to sea, and January 20th reached a high white bluff in latitude of 42 degrees that he named Cape San Sebastian. By this time few of his men were fit for service, the weather was stormy, the cold severe, the provisions nearly exhausted, and as the small vessel from which he had been separated did not appear, he returned to Mexico.

First Settlement of California—The Founding of the Missions.—For more than one hundred and sixty years after the expedition of Viscaino, no attempt was made by the Spaniards to colonize the Californias, and beyond a few explorations by land and sea that contributed no important results, no effort was made to extend their discoveries. Attempts were made to establish colonies on the eastern side of the peninsula of California, but they failed for want of funds, from the extreme barrenness of the soil, and from the determined hostility of the natives. In the last of these attempts, under the direction of Atondo, and made in 1683, a number of soldiers, settlers, and Jesuit priests were taken out from Mexico and distributed at various points; but these stations were abandoned before the end of a year, and the authorities of Mexico determined that the reduction of Lower California by such means was impracticable. The Jesuits insisted that the political objects desired might be obtained by the conversion to Christianity and the civilization of the natives, and offered to undertake the task. Their proposition was not encouraged by the Mexican authorities, but they raised contributions in Mexico and in Europe, and in 1697 procured royal warrants of authority to enter upon the reduction of

* In "The March of Portola and the Log of the San Carlos," by Zoeth S. Eldredge and E. J. Molera, a book published with the approval and endorsement of the Executive Committee of the Portola Festival at San Francisco in 1909, it is stated that it was Drake's Bay which Viscaino entered after leaving Monterey. To Don Gaspar de Portola is now conceded the credit of the discovery of the bay of San Francisco, November 4, 1769, at the end of an overland expedition beginning at San Diego. According to the above-mentioned historians, who made an exhaustive research into the early history of California, the first vessel to enter the port of San Francisco was the "San Carlos," under command of Lieutenant Don Juan Manuel de Ayala, on the evening of August 5, 1775.

California for the King, but the work was to be prosecuted at their own expense. On receiving these warrants Father Salvatierra sailed with a few laborers and soldiers to the land that was to be the scene of their operations. He was joined by Father Kuhn (a German, called by the Spaniards Kino), and by others of the order. In November, 1697, the first establishment at Loreto was founded. The Jesuits continued their work for three quarters of a century, and until their expulsion. February 27, 1767, a decree was issued by Carlos III. of Spain for the immediate banishment of the Jesuits from the Spanish territory. In Mexico the members of that order were, in July following, sent off to Europe. As to Lower California, the Viceroy placed its execution in the hands of Captain Gaspar de Portola, and appointed him at the same time governor of the peninsula. Portola took over fifty armed men and fourteen Franciscan monks to succeed the Jesuits. He found there was no occasion for the employment of force, for the sixteen Jesuit Fathers submitted to the order and left California February 3, 1768. Father Junipero Serra was then appointed president of the missions in California. He arrived at Loreto on the first of April following, and the next year became the first great pioneer of what is now the State of California. Josef de Galvez, who represented the person of the Spanish monarch in the province, had been invested with powers to visit the missions of Lower California, and had a royal order to send an expedition by sea to rediscover and people the bays of San Diego and Monterey. He reached the peninsula June 6, 1768. Galvez determined to send a land expedition to the north as well as the one by sea. This idea was concurred in by Father Junipero, and they decided that three vessels should sail to meet the expedition by land at San Diego. They agreed that three missions should be established—one at San Diego, another at Monterey, and a third at San Buenaventura. On January 9, 1769, the vessel San Carlos left La Paz, and the San Antonio sailed from San Lucas on the 11th. A smaller ship, the Señor San José, left Loreto June 16th. On these vessels were loaded the ornaments, sacred vases, and other utensils of the church and vestry, together with all kinds of household and field implements and seeds, as well those of old as of new Spain, and two hundred head of cattle. Galvez divided the expedition by land into two parts so as to save one if the other was destroyed by the natives. Portola was appointed commander-in-chief of the land expedition, and Captain Fernando Rivera y Moncada, his second in command, was to take charge of the first division. Moncada's division arrived at San Diego May 14, 1769, after fifty-two days' travel from Loreto. The second division, under the charge of Portola, with whom was Father Junipero, arrived on the last day of June, after forty-six days' travel. They found in port the San Antonio, which had arrived on the 11th of April, and the San Carlos, which reached San Diego eighteen days later. The Señor San José not having been heard from, it was presumed that it was wrecked. On the arrival of the second section with Father Junipero a salute was fired to commemorate the union of all the parties, and the beginning of the work of settlement, conversion, and civilization on the soil of Upper California.*

July, 1769, marks the era of this State. On the 16th of the month, Father Junipero founded the first of the California missions, that of San Diego, at the port of that name. The dates of the foundation of the missions of California follow. They are arranged here geographically, starting from San Diego northward.

San Fernando, Los Angeles County, Carlos IV., September 8, 1797.

* In "The March of Portola and the Log of the San Carlos," before cited, it is stated that the San Carlos sailed on the 10th of January and the San Antonio sailed on the 15th of February, 1769. A detailed account is then given of the expedition under command of Portola which left San Diego on the 14th of July to march to Monterey Bay. Passing that port without discovering its identity, the expedition continued northward until on November 4, 1769, it reached San Francisco Bay, the shores of which were explored until the 11th of November, when the party decided to return to the south.

Spanish Rule in California, 1769-1822.—In an address delivered before the Society of California Pioneers of San Francisco by Edmund Randolph, September 10, 1860, was presented a review of the government of California when under the dominion of Spain as revealed by the Spanish archives in the office of the United States Surveyor General at San Francisco. It is substantially as follows: Constitution and charter there was none. The government was purely military, outside of the missions. All functions, civil and military, judicial and economic, were united in the person of the comandante of a presidio, in due subjection to his superior, and so on up to the King, an autocrat, whose person was represented and whose will was executed in every part of his dominions. In the archives is a reglamento, which is a set of regulations for the Californias. Its caption expresses that it is for the government of the presidios, the promotion of the erection of new missions, and of the population and extension of the establishments of Monterey. It was drafted at Monterey by the Governor in 1779, sent to Madrid and approved by the King in 1781. It adopts the royal reglamento for the government of all the presidios, with such small variations as the circumstances of California required. The manner in which pueblos are to be founded is given; each settler to have his building lot and sowing field of two hundred varas square; the whole together to have commons for wood, water, and pasturage; also a certain number of horses, mules, oxen, cows, sheep, chickens, and farming utensils to be furnished to each; and the amount of pay—for a settler had his salary for awhile as well as his outfit. For the first five years he was to be free from the payment of tithes, but was required to sell the excess of his productions at a fixed price to the presidios, and must keep a saddle horse, carbine, and lance, and hold himself in readiness for service to the King. The only trace of a political right found in the reglamento is the allowance to the pueblos of alcaldes and other municipal officers, to be appointed by the Governor for the first two years, and afterward to be elected by the inhabitants. These officers were to see to the good government and police of the pueblos and the administration of justice, to direct the public works, apportion to each man his share of water for irrigation, and generally to enforce the provisions of the reglamento. As a check upon the abuse of their privileges the elections were subject to the approval of the Governor, who had also the power to continue to appoint the officers for three years longer if he found it necessary.

At first California formed a part of New Spain, and was governed directly by the Viceroy of Mexico. In 1776 it was attached to the comandancia general of the internal provinces, which included also Sonora, New Mexico, Chihuahua, Coahuila, and Texas. Afterward it was a part of the comandancia general of the internal provinces of the west, when Coahuila and Texas, New Leon and the colony of New Santander had been erected into another jurisdiction, under the title of the internal province of the east. This arrangement did not last many years, and California reverted to the Viceroy. Laws came from the King, in his counsel of the Indies, at Madrid, as orders are issued by the commander-in-chief of an army, to the second in command, to wit: the Viceroy of Mexico, from him to the next in rank, from him to the Governor of California at Monterey, and from him to the captain or lieutenant in command of a presidio. They took effect only as they were published, spreading as the courier advanced. They came slowly, but in time every order of a general nature would find its way into the archives of every province, presidio, or pueblo in North and South America under the dominion of the King of Spain. When wars, or the accidents of navigation, or the urgency of the case interrupted or rendered impossible communication with Madrid, each viceregent of the King in his department exercised the royal authority. Therefore, in the nature of things, the powers of every Governor in his province were practically despotic.

Spanish Governors of California.—The first Spanish Governor of California was Gaspar de Portolà, from 1767 to 1771. He was the Governor of Lower California de facto, but de jure his jurisdiction extended over the territory to the north. It was not, however, until 1769 that he actually visited Upper California and made his residence at San Diego.

Felipe de Barri, from 1771 to 1774. The first mention found of Barri as Governor is in a letter which he addressed in that capacity from Loreto to Pedro Fages, commander of the Presidio of Monterey, dated June 2, 1771.

Felipe de Neve, from 1774 to 1782. On December 28, 1774, Governor Barri was succeeded by Felipe de Neve, and on July 20, 1776, Governor Neve was ordered by the Viceroy to remove from Loreto to the Presidio of Monterey, and he arrived there February 3, 1777. Neve died at Chihuahua in November, 1784.

Pedro Fages, from 1782 to 1790. Fages became Governor September 7, 1782. He died in Mexico about 1796.

José Antonio Romeu, from 1790 to 1792. He was appointed Governor by the Viceroy, Conde de Rivera Gigado, on September 1, 1790, was put in possession on April 17, 1791, and died April 9, 1792.

José Joaquin de Arrillaga, from 1792 to 1794. He became Governor ad interim on the 9th of April, 1792, on the death of Romeu.

Diego de Borica, from 1794 to 1800. He was appointed by the Viceroy May 14, 1794, and sailed for Mexico in January, 1800, leaving Arrillaga as his successor ad interim. Borica died in Durango, July 19, 1800.

José Joaquin de Arrillaga, from 1800 to 1814. He remained Governor during that period, and died at the Mission de Soledad in Monterey County, July 25, 1814.

José Dario Argüello, from 1814 to 1815, ad interim. Died in Mexico, 1828.

Pablo Vicente de Sola, from August, 1815, to 1822.

News of the successful revolution in Mexico, under Iturbide, and of the establishment of a government independent from Spain, reached Governor Sola in 1822, and he communicated it to an assembly of ten delegates of California that was held on April 9th of that year, and it was declared that from that date the province of California was dependent alone on the Government of Mexico and independent of the dominion of Spain, as well as of any other foreign power. That declaration was as follows:

Declaration of Independence in California.—"In the Presidio of Monterey, on the 9th day of the month of April, 1822: The señor military and political Governor of this province, Colonel Don Pablo Vicente de Sola, the señores captains comandantes of the presidios of Santa Barbara and San Francisco, Don José Antonio de la Guerra y Noriega, and Don Luis Antonio de Argüello, the captains of the militia companies of the battalion of Tepic and Mazatlan, Don José Antonio Navarrete, and Don Pablo de la Portilla, the lieutenant Don José Maria Estudill for the presidial company of San Diego, the lieutenant Don José Mariano Estrada for the presidial company of Monterey, the lieutenant of artillery, Don Manuel Gomez, and the reverend fathers, Friar Mariano Payeras and Friar Vicente Francisco de Sarria, the first as prelate of these missions and the second as substitute of the reverend father president vicario foráneo, Friar José Señan; having assembled in obedience to previous citations (convocatorias) in the hall of the government house, and being informed of the establishment of the kingdom of the empire, and the installation of the sovereign provisional gubernative junta in the capital of Mexico, by the official communication and other documents which the said Governor caused to be read in full assembly, said: that for themselves, and in behalf of their subordinates, they were decided to render obedience to the orders intimated by the new supreme government, recognizing from this time the province as a dependent alone of the government of the Empire of Mexico, and independent of the dominion of Spain, as well as of any other foreign power. In consideration of which, the proper oaths will be taken, in the manner prescribed by the provisional regency, to which end the superior military and political chief will give the necessary orders, and the respective comandantes of presidios and the ministers of the missions will cause the fulfillment of the same to appear by means of certificates, which will be transmitted with a copy of this act, to the most excellent minister, to whom it corresponds."

Mexican Rule in California, 1822-1846.—During the period of the Mexican control of California the government consisted of a governor, appointed by the supreme government, with powers and duties of a limited character; a secretary; a territorial or departmental legislature, with limited powers to pass laws of a local character; a superior court (tribunal superior) of the territory, consisting of four judges and a fiscal; a prefect and sub-prefects for each district, who were charged with the preservation of public order and the execution of the laws, their duties corresponding in a great measure with those of district marshals and sheriffs; a judge of first instance for each district; alcaldes, with concurrent jurisdiction among themselves in the same district, but who were subordinate to the higher judicial tribunals; local justices of the peace; ayuntamientos, or town councils, with powers almost identical with those of corresponding officers in the cities of the United States. The province was entitled to one representative in the Mexican Congress.

California Diputados to the Mexican Congress, 1822-1846.—The following is a list and memorandum of the seven members of Congress sent from California to Mexico from 1822 to 1846:

1. Pablo Vicente de Sola, of old Spain; militaire, member from 1822 to 1826. Died in Mexico, without family, in 1827. He had been Governor under the rule of Spain and of Mexico.

2. Don José Antonio de la Guerra y Noriega, comandante of Santa Barbara. He was elected in 1827, but was put in prison in Mexico, being an old Spaniard, and was not allowed to take his seat. He returned to California in 1829, and died at Santa Barbara in 1858, leaving a large family of descendants.

3. Don José Joaquin Maitorena; Mexican; of Santa Barbara. He was sent in 1830, but died at Tepic on his way to the capital. He was a military officer.

4. Don Carlos Antonio Carrillo; Californian; of Santa Barbara; sent in 1830 and returned in 1832. Died at Santa Barbara February 25, 1852.

5. Don Juan Bandini; Peruvian; of San Diego; sent and returned in 1833. Died at Los Angeles in 1859.

6. Don José Antonio Carrillo (brother of Carlos); Californian; of Los Angeles; sent in 1834 and was deputy until 1838. He was a member of the first constitutional convention, 1849, and died at Santa Barbara, April 25, 1862.

7. Don Manuel Castañares (after a considerable vacancy); of Vera Cruz, in Mexico; administrator of customs at Monterey; sent in 1842.

The diputados were allowed pay and mileage as in the case with United States Congressmen. While California was a territory the diputados had only a seat in the Congress without a vote, but after it became a department, in 1834, they had both a seat and a vote. They were elected by the territorial legislature.

Mexican Governors of California.—From the Spanish archives it appears that Sola continued to act as Governor after the declaration of independence from Spain and up to November 9, 1822. And at the same time he was the representative in the Mexican Congress. He died in Mexico in 1827.

Luis Antonio Argüello, from 1822 to 1825. Died at San Francisco, March 27, 1830.

José Maria de Echeandia, from 1825 to 1831. He arrived at Loreto June 25, 1825, and gave notice to Argüello that he had been appointed Governor.

Manuel Victoria, from 1831 to 1832. On January 31, 1831, he took charge of the government. On December 9, 1831, Echeandia wrote to General Vallejo that Governor Victoria was disarmed, his forces scattered, and that he was in a dying condition. On January 15, 1832, Echeandia wrote to the President of the Departmental Assembly that Victoria had left California for Mexico on the American ship Pocahontas.

Pio Pico, from 1832 to 1833. On January 11, 1832, Pico, being first Vocal of the Departmental Assembly, became Governor ad interim. The ayuntamiento of Monterey in the mean time refused to recognize him as Governor, preferring that Echeandia should act until news should be received from the supreme government.

Residence of Governor Alvarado, Monterey, California.

Juan Bautista Alvarado was Governor of California from 1836 to 1842, one of the last appointed under Mexican rule, which existed from 1822 to 1846.

It would seem that there were two Governors, Pico acting as first Vocal of the Assembly and Echeandia appointed by the ayuntamiento of Monterey.

José Figueroa, from 1833 to 1835. He was appointed by the President of Mexico in April, 1832; landed at Monterey January 15, 1833, and on the 25th Echeandia submitted to him. Figueroa asked to be relieved on March 25, 1833, and died at San Juan Bautista, September 29, 1835.

José Castro, from 1835 to 1836. Being first Vocal of the Departmental Assembly he was appointed Governor by Figueroa on the 29th of August, 1835, and afterwards became Governor ad interim on the death of Figueroa.

Nicolas Gutierrez, 1836. He acted as Governor ad interim from January 2, 1836 until May.

Mariano Chico, 1836. Took charge of the government May 3, 1836; appointed by the President July 30th. He left the government in charge of Gutierrez while on a trip to Mexico to represent the popular disturbances caused by the ayuntamiento of Monterey.

Nicolas Gutierrez, 1836. Acted again as Governor ad interim from July for a few months.

Juan Bautista Alvarado, from 1836 to 1842. On November 6, 1836, the Depart mental Assembly declared California a free and independent State, overthrew Gutierrez, who left the country, and Alvarado became Governor. On August 20, 1837, Antonio Carrillo wrote to Governor Alvarado that his brother Carlos Antonio Carrillo had been appointed Governor by the President. In 1838 Alvarado was appointed Governor ad interim by the supreme government, and August 7, 1839, he was appointed permanent Governor by the President. He died at San Pablo, July 13, 1882.

Manuel Micheltorena, from 1842 to 1845. He was appointed by the President and entered on the duties of the office December 30, 1842. Died in Mexico, September 7, 1853.

Pio Pico, from 1845 to 1846. He became Governor as first Vocal of the Departmental Assembly February 15, 1845. Having been recommended by the Assembly for the office in its session of the 27th of June, 1845, on September 3d of that year he was appointed constitutional Governor by the President ad interim of Mexico, and due notice of his appointment was published April 15, 1846. Died at Los Angeles, September 11, 1894.

Designs of Various Powers for the Acquisition of California.—The frequent changes of government and revolutions in both Mexico and California created a feeling of unrest and dissatisfaction among many of the native Californians, and that condition began soon after the declaration of Mexican independence. The subsequent acquisition of the territory by the United States was not an accidental incident of our war with Mexico, but the sequence of a train of causes that had been at work for half a century. Not only the United States, but England, Russia, and France had determined on acquiring California. The Russians quietly insinuated themselves upon the northern coast of California with a view to its permanent occupation. Chamberlain Resenof, of the Russian-American Fur Company, sailed from Sitka March 8, 1806, for California on a trading voyage. Before his return he determined to make a settlement on the California coast where his company could carry on trade and agriculture. He reported favorably of the country and its resources. In 1812 the Russians, under permission from Spain, established a colony at the port of Bodega, for the purpose of maintaining fisheries and hunting for furs, and as early as 1815 they had ranchos in the interior, purchased cattle from the Spaniards, and devoted themselves to the rearing of stock and the production of wheat. During the revolutionary troubles in Mexico they held themselves to have become the actual owners of the territory they occupied, and claimed practically all of the country north of San Francisco Bay. They constructed a fort, which they called Stawianski, but which the Mexicans designated as the fort of the Russians. The Americans corrupted the name to Fort Ross. Over this the Russian flag was floated and a military governor appointed by the Czar was in command. These establishments were maintained until December 13, 1840, when they were sold to John A. Sutter, who had, in August of the preceding year, established his fort and settlement at Sacramento.

Louis Philippe of France, as early as 1844, advocated the establishment of a monarchy in Mexico to prevent England or the United States from getting possession of that country in case France could not obtain it. He had published, by his minister of war, the charges made by France against Mexico to justify intervention in the affairs of the latter government by France. In that paper it was pointed out that Mexico had been prosperous under the rule of Spain; that the attainment of its independence had completely reversed those happy conditions; that republican Mexico had been the enemy of France and had tyrannized over the French residents; that she had become a public nuisance and robber on the highway of nations; and that any nation, especially those having claims against her, had the right, as a matter of international policy, to interfere and establish a solid government for the country; that that could be done only by the establishment of a monarchy, and that the best citizens of Mexico desired such a change. It was added: "But there are certain conditions necessary to the success of this scheme. The new monarchs of Mexico must be Catholic, and must have family ties connecting them with the dynasties which formerly ruled in Mexico. The infantas of Spain, the French princes, and the archdukes of Austria possess these requisites, and any one of them would be unanimously welcomed by the Mexican population. The establishment of any monarchy whatsoever in Mexico is of the greatest importance to the policy of France, for a stable government erected there would at once remove the disabilities and oppression to which our commerce and citizens are subjected in that country; and this can easily be accomplished, for a column of three thousand infantry, and a few vessels of war distributed upon the Atlantic and Pacific coasts are all that is wanted to subdue the empire of Montezuma, whose conquest would be easier to-day than it was in the time of Cortes." The program of Philippe concluded with this prediction of the future greatness of the United States, after a narration of our acquisition of Texas and a reference to the probability of war between this country and Mexico: "If this (the war) takes place, the Union will command the Pacific Ocean, through that part of the Territory of Oregon which will belong to her—through California and the western coast of Mexico, Guatemala, Central America, and New Granada. On the east she will be mistress of the Atlantic coast from Canada to the Isthmus of Darien, and thus will threaten the group of islands situated at the entrance to the Gulf of Mexico and in the Carribean Sea."

France had endeavored to qualify herself for the acquisition of California by a previous exploration of the country. In 1841 the minister of war sent one of the attachés of the French legation at Mexico, M. Duflot de Mofras, to make a thorough inspection of California with respect to its military resources, geography, agriculture, mines, population, etc. He spent two years in the work and visited every mission, village, and rancho. The results of his observations were published by the French government at the same time as the program of Philippe. In the report, de Mofras represented that the inhabitants of California were very friendly to France and desired to return to a monarchical form of government; that they hated the Americans and the English because they were of a different race and religion; that the Americans and English had set their hearts upon the acquisition of California; that England had offered to take the territory in payment of that portion of the public debt of Mexico held by English subjects, and that the United States had offered five million dollars for that portion of California lying north of a line of latitude drawn at equal distances from the bays of San Francisco and Monterey.

In 1836 the Californians revolted against Mexico, drove from the country the constitutional Governor, and declared California independent of Mexico and a free State. They raised a flag similar to that of the United States, except it had a single star. The movement was abandoned on certain concessions being made by the central government. But the people were still dissatisfied, and the Departmental Assembly in 1846 provided for the election of delegates to a junta, or extraordinary convention, to meet at Santa Barbara on June 15th of that year, to determine the destiny of California. The resident consuls of England, France, and the United States strove for favorable consideration of their respective governments. At a preliminary meeting of some of the leading men of the country there was found to be a division of opinion; those who favored annexation to the United States withdrew, and nothing further was accomplished. Within two months the territory was in the possession of the United States.

England was not idle. For several years she maintained a large fleet of war vessels on the California coast and was working out a plan that contemplated a declaration of independence of the country of Mexico, and a petition from a convention to Great Britain to be taken under her protection. In 1845 a priest named Macnamara, from Ireland, visited Mexico and made an application to the supreme power that recited that the subject of California was attracting much public attention; that prompt measures must be adopted or the province would fall into the hands of the United States; and that to avoid that he asked permission to plant a colony of ten thousand of his countrymen in the San Joaquin Valley, and for a grant of three thousand square leagues of land. In his petition were embraced the bay of San Francisco and important sections at Monterey and Santa Barbara. The Mexican Government made the grant, but it was not perfected in time to become effective. Macnamara came up to California in a British sloop-of-war, and in June, 1846, reached Santa Barbara. At that time the British war vessels on the coast were under the command of Admiral George Seymour, and those of the United States of Commodore John D. Sloat. The latter had orders to take California at the first intimation of actual war between this nation and Mexico. He sailed for Monterey, followed by the British man-of-war Collingwood, and raised the American flag there July 7, 1846.

The Bear Flag Revolution, and Its Flag.—In the spring of 1846 the population of California was estimated at about ten thousand, exclusive of Indians, and the foreign population, mostly from the United States, was placed at about two thousand. The immigration of Americans had been rapidly increasing for several years, and it became apparent to the more intelligent of the Californians that this new population would, if its immigration increased in the same ratio, in a few years change the government and institutions of the country. As the outgrowth of a revolutionary movement in 1845 the Governor, Manuel Micheltorena, was deposed, the duties of the office assumed by Pio Pico, and General José Castro became the commander-in-chief of the military. The latter assumed a policy toward the foreigners that was aggressive. He promulgated a proclamation requiring all Americans to leave the country, but no immediate steps were taken to enforce the order and little attention was paid to it. About the 1st of June, 1846, Castro issued an order to Lieutenant Francisco de Arce to remove a number of government horses from the Mission San Rafael to his headquarters at Santa Clara. The officer, with a guard of fourteen men, proceeded to execute the order, and was compelled to cross the Sacramento River at New Helvetia, now Sacramento, the nearest point at which the horses could swim the stream. On his way he was seen by an Indian, who reported to the American settlers that two or three hundred armed men were advancing up the valley. At this time Captain Fremont, with his exploring party, was encamped at the Buttes, near the confluence of the Feather and Sacramento rivers, about sixty miles above Sutter's Fort. It was inferred by the settlers that the Californian force was marching north to attack Fremont. The alarm was immediately spread throughout the valley, and most of the settlers joined Fremont at his camp. There they met William Knight, who stated that he had seen the party of Californians in charge of the horses, and that de Arce had told him that Castro had sent for the horses for the purpose of mounting a battalion of two hundred men to march against the Americans settled in the Sacramento Valley and to expel them from the country; that then he proposed to fortify the Bear River pass in the mountains and prevent the further ingress of immigrants from the United States. After consultation it was resolved that a force should pursue the Californians and capture the horses, so as to weaken Castro and for the time frustrate his designs. Twelve men volunteered for the expedition, and Ezekial Merritt, the eldest of the party, was chosen captain. At daylight on the 10th of June, 1846, they surprised the Californians, who surrendered without resistance, and the horses were taken. De Arce and his men were permitted to go on without further molestation. The revolutionary movement on the part of the Americans was then fairly commenced. The party being increased to thirty-three, still under the command of Merritt, marched to Sonoma, and on the morning of the 14th of June captured and took possession of that town and military post. They made prisoners of General M. G. Vallejo, his brother Salvador, and Victor Prudon, and had them conveyed to Sutter's Fort at Sacramento for safe-keeping. As nearly as can be ascertained, following are the names of the members of what is known as the "Bear Flag" party:

From Sacramento Valley: Ezekial Merritt, Robert Semple, Henry L. Ford, Samuel Gibson, Granville P. Swift, William Dickey, Henry Booker, John Potter, William B. Ide, William Fallon, William M. Scott, Henry Beason, William Anderson, James A. Jones, W. Barti, or "Old Red," and Samuel Neal.

From Napa Valley: Benjamin Dewell, Harvey Porterfield, John Grigsby, Frank Grigsby, William B. Elliott, Ab Elliott, William Knight, David Hudson, Franklin Bedwell, Joseph Wood, William Hargrave, Andrew Kelsey, Horace Sanders, John H. Kelly, John Gibbs, Thomas Cowie, and George Fowler.

A garrison of about eighteen men, under the command of William B. Ide, was left at Sonoma, and in a few days it was increased to about forty. On the 18th of June, Ide, with the consent of the garrison, issued a proclamation setting forth the objects for which the party had gathered and the principles that would be adhered to in the event of success. About the same time the Bear Flag was hoisted by the revolutionists.

The following history of the Bear Flag was filed in the office of the Society of California Pioneers: "Captain J. C. Fremont, at the head of an exploring expedition sent out by the Government of the United States, having entered California without leave of the Mexican Government, was encamped at Mount Gabilan in February, 1846, when a dispute arose between him and a native Californian about a horse, which the latter claimed as stolen. Fremont refused to surrender the horse and defied the Mexican authorities, who had no troops that could safely attack the American riflemen. This defiance provoked a very angry feeling among the native Californians, some of whom said that the Government ought to drive all the Americans out of the country. This language repeated, converted into a threat, and represented to come from high officials, alarmed the American residents. On the 5th of June, Lieutenant de Arce, in the Mexican service, arrived at Sutter's Fort, on his way to Sonoma to get some horses, which, according to rumor, he said confidentially were to be used by the troops in expelling the Americans. This rumor, accepted as true, seemed to demand immediate action; so messages were sent out to the Americans in the vicinity of the fort, and, at a meeting held there on the 7th, they determined to resist, and to anticipate the enemy. They sent a message to Fremont, then encamped about thirty miles off to the northward, requesting him to join his forces with theirs, become their commander, and declare war against Mexico. He rejected their invitation, but expressed sympathy with their purposes, and promised to remain in the vicinity so that he might be of some service to them. The settlers then organized themselves, under the command of Ezekial Merritt as captain, and rode to Sonoma, the only town and military post of Mexico north of the Golden Gate. Merritt, with thirty-two men, took Sonoma by surprise, and met

* The original Bear Flag and the Guidon, which were in the possession of the San Francisco Society of California Pioneers, were destroyed in the fire which occurred in San Francisco on the 18th day of April, 1906. The half-tones herein produced are from photographs taken by Vaughan & Keith of San Francisco, and are from the only photographs ever taken. The negatives were also destroyed in the fire succeeding the earthquake in San Francisco, April 18, 1906. But two photographs of each were taken from the negatives—one set for the use of the State in making the half-tones for the edition of the Blue Book for 1903, and the other set, in colors, for C. F. with no resistance there; but as there were a number of native Californians in the neighborhood, he considered it prudent to send General Commandant M. G. Vallejo, Colonel Victor Prudon, Captain Salvador Vallejo, and Jacob P. Leese (brother-in-law of the Vallejos, and an American, who refused to join the Rebels) to Sutter's Fort as prisoners; Merritt taking charge of the escort. After his departure, William B. Ide succeeded to the command at Sonoma. They had thus started a revolution, and it was necessary to have a flag. Mrs. John Sears supplied the muslin, and William Todd was the artist. He started by painting a single star, in imitation of the Lone Star of Texas, when H. L. Ford suggested that a grizzly bear should be used as appropriate to the country. The idea was approved by all, and the bear was painted, and beneath him were the words: 'California Republic.' The paint was obtained from a wheelwright's shop, and the execution did not excel in artistic merit. The party had entered Sonoma early on the morning of Sunday, June 14th. The banner hoisted as a signal of independence, because its supporters were not authorized to use the American flag, which they greatly preferred, was taken down at Sonoma on the 11th of July,* when the news of the declaration of war against Mexico by the United States, and of the seizure of California by Commodore Sloat, was received amidst general rejoicings by the Bear Flag insurgents."

"JOHN I. SPEAR, Secretary.

Robert Semple, one of the members of the party, became editor of the first newspaper published in California, The Californian, the initial number of which was issued at Monterey on August 15, 1846. In the second issue of his paper, on the 22d, he commenced the publication of a series of articles on the history of the revolution, and in the issue of February 13, 1847, the following appeared:

"THE BEAR FLAG.—Our readers will remember that we promised to make our paper a history of the country, a promise which we shall try to redeem. At this time it is a matter of great doubt in the United States where the first flag of the American revolution was hoisted and what kind of thing it was, evidently from the fact that no person thought it a matter of sufficient importance to make a record of it in such way as to transmit the facts to posterity. Our object in penning this article is to make a permanent record of all the particulars of the hoisting of the Bear Flag, under the impression that, as that was the first move in revolutionizing this country, it will some time be interesting to know where, when, by whom, and what kind of flag it was. On the 14th of June, 1846, a party of Americans, without a leader, gathered and took possession of the fortified town of Sonoma, on the north side of the bay of San Francisco, and made prisoners of three Mexican officers—a general, a lieutenant-colonel, and captain. On the same day there was a partial organization under the name of the 'Republic of California,' and it was agreed to hoist a flag made of a piece of white cotton cloth with one red stripe on the bottom, and on the white a grizzly bear, with a single star in front of him. It was painted, or rather, stained, with lampblack and poke berries. Along the top were the words, 'Republic of California.'"

William L. Todd, in a letter to the Los Angeles Express under date of January 11, 1878, said: "I have to say in regard to the making of the original Bear Flag of California at Sonoma, in 1846, that when the Americans, who had taken up arms against the Spanish régime, had determined what kind of a flag should be adopted, the following persons performed the work: Granville P. Swift, Peter Storm, Henry L. Ford, and myself. We procured in the house where we made our headquarters a piece of new unbleached cotton domestic, not quite a yard wide, with stripes of red flannel about four inches wide, furnished by Mrs. John Sears, on the lower side of the canvas. On the upper left-hand corner was a star, and in the center was the image made to represent a grizzly bear passant, so common in this country at the time. The bear and star were painted with paint made of linseed oil and Venetian red or Spanish brown. Underneath the bear were the words 'California Republic.' The other persons engaged with me got the materials together, while I acted as artist. The forms of the bear and star and the letters were first lined out with pen and ink by myself, and the two forms were filled in with the red paint, but the letters with ink. The flag mentioned by Mr. Hittell with the bear rampant was made, as I always understood, at Santa Barbara, and was painted black. Allow me to say, that at that time there was no wheelwright shop in California. The flag I painted I saw in the rooms of the California Pioneers in San Francisco, in 1870, and the Secretary will show it to any person who will call on him at any time. If it is the one that I painted, it will be known by a mistake in tinting out the words 'California Republic.' The letters were first lined out with a pen and I left out the letter 'I,' and lined out the letter 'C' in its place. But afterward I lined out the letter 'T' over the 'C' so that the last syllable of 'Republic' looks as if the last two letters were blended."

The guidon used at Sonoma was in 1874 presented to the San Francisco Society of California Pioneers, accompanied by the following letter:

"Society of California Pioneers, San Francisco, California:

"GENTLEMEN: At the suggestion of General Sherman, I beg leave to send to your Society herewith a guidon, formerly belonging to the Sonoma troop of the *California Battalion, 1846, for preservation. This guidon I found among the effects of that troop when I hauled down the Bear Flag at Sonoma and substituted the flag of the United States at Sonoma, on the 9th of July, 1846, and have preserved it ever since.

"Very respectfully, etc.,

"JOSEPH W. REVERE,
"Brigadier-General."

"Morristown, New Jersey, February 20, 1874.

On July 7, 1846, Commodore Sloat raised the United States flag at Monterey, California, and sent a courier to Commander Montgomery, of the sloop-of-war "Portsmouth," then lying at San Francisco, directing him to do the same there. Early on the morning of the 9th the flag was hoisted in the public square by Montgomery, who also sent Lieutenant Revere with a flag to Sonoma.

* On arriving at Sonoma, Lieutenant Revere enlisted the garrison into the United States service, hence he refers to them as the "Sonoma Troop of the California Battalion."

General Stephen W. Kearney, by proclamation dated at Monterey, March 1, 1847. Died at St. Louis, Missouri, October 31, 1848.

Colonel Richard B. Mason, by proclamation dated at Monterey, May 31, 1847. Died at St. Louis, Missouri, July 25, 1850.

General Bennet Riley became military Governor April 13, 1849, and served until the organization of the State government in December, 1849. Died at Buffalo, New York, June 9, 1853.

Genesis of the State Government.—News of peace between the United States and Mexico reached California August 7, 1848. A considerable population had been attracted to the country by the discovery of gold at Coloma in January of that year, and the laws of Mexico were found unsuited to the new conditions. The subject of forming a civil provisional territorial government had been agitated from the first of the year, but it did not assume an organized form until in December. On the 11th of that month a large meeting was held at San José, at which were adopted resolutions in favor of holding a convention to form a provisional territorial government to be put into immediate operation, and to remain in force until Congress should supersede it by a regular territorial organization. The action of the meeting met with the approval of the people of the northern and middle portions of the country. On December 21st and 22d, two public meetings were held at San Francisco, and resolutions were passed concurring in the plan of action suggested by the people of San José. Similar resolutions were adopted at meetings held at Sacramento on January 6th and 8th, 1849; at Monterey on the 31st, and at Sonoma on February 5th. These five districts elected delegates to the proposed convention—the district of Sacramento 5, Sonoma 10, San Francisco 5, San José 3, and Monterey 5. But the five other districts—San Joaquin, San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara, Los Angeles, and San Diego—failed to concur in the movement. The San José meeting recommended that the convention should assemble at that place on the second Monday of January, 1849. The San Francisco meeting, believing that date too early to allow communication with the remote districts, recommended that it should meet on March 5th, and that was concurred in by the districts of Sonoma and Sacramento, and tacitly by San José. The district of Monterey constituted its elected delegates a committee to confer with those from the other districts to obtain a still further extension of the time of holding the convention. The Corresponding Committee, appointed in San Francisco, endeavored to spread intelligence of the action of the various meetings, but the inclemency of the weather and the impassable condition of the roads and streams had, up to January 24th, prevented all communication with the five district that were unrepresented. On the last named date the committee issued a recommendation "that the time for the proposed assembling of the Provisional Government Convention be changed to May 1, 1849." Twelve of the delegates that had been elected to the proposed convention met at San Francisco early in March, 1849, and issued an address to the people, in which it was recommended that a new election be held for delegates to meet in convention at Monterey on the first Monday in August, and that the delegates "should be vested with full power to frame a State constitution to be submitted to the people of California." To provide for their immediate wants the citizens of Sonoma, San Francisco, and Sacramento districts elected, early in 1849, district legislative assemblies. In June the San Francisco assembly issued an address recommending the election of at least twelve delegates from that district to attend a convention at San José on the third Monday in August for the purpose of organizing a government for the whole territory of California, such conditional or temporary State government to be put into operation at the earliest practicable moment after its ratification by the people, and to become a permanent State government when admitted into the Union. Simultaneously with this action of the assembly, though without any knowledge of it, General Riley issued at Monterey a proclamation for the election of delegates to a constitutional convention.

Colton Hall, Monterey.

(See, also, pages 115 and 545.)

NOTE. Colton Hall.—The building in which the first Constitutional Convention met in 1849 was probably the only one in California at that time suited for the purpose. It was a handsome two story edifice of yellow sandstone, situated on a gentle slope above the town. It was named Colton Hall, by reason of its having been built by Walter Colton, the Alcalde, from the proceeds of the sale of city lots, court fines, etc. The upper story, in which the convention met, formed a single hall, about 60 feet in length by 25 in breadth. A railing ran across the middle, dividing the spectators from the members, who were seated at four long tables. The President of the Convention occupied a rostrum at the end of the room, and above him were suspended two American flags and a picture of Washington. The building is still standing. The Legislature passed an act on March 25, 1903 (Stats. 1903, p. 435), which provided for a State board of three trustees with authority to lease Colton Hall from the city of Monterey for not less than ten years, and to provide for the preservation, protection, and improvement of the property. The act carried with it an appropriation of $1,500.

FIRST CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

The first official act looking to the establishment of a State Government for California was the issuance of a proclamation on June 3, 1849, by Brigadier General Bennet Riley, U. S. A., the then Military Governor of the Territory, "recommending the formation of a State constitution or a plan for a territorial government." The convention was made to consist of thirty-seven delegates, to be chosen as follows: District of San Diego, two delegates; of Los Angeles, four; of Santa Barbara, two; of San Luis Obispo, two; of Monterey, five; of San José, five; of San Francisco, five; of Sonoma, four; of Sacramento, four; and of San Joaquin, four. The districts named were limited as follows:

San Diego, bounded on the south by Lower California, on the west by the sea, on the north by the parallel of latitude including the Mission San Juan Capistrano, and on the east by the Colorado River.

Los Angeles, bounded on the south by the District of San Diego, on the west by the sea, on the north by the Santa Clara River and a parallel of latitude running from the headwaters of that river to the Colorado.

Santa Barbara, bounded on the south by the District of Los Angeles, on the west by the sea, on the north by the Santa Ynez River and a parallel of latitude extending from the headwaters of that river to the summit of the Coast range of mountains.

San Luis Obispo, bounded on the south by the District of Santa Barbara, on the west by the sea, on the north by a parallel of latitude including San Miguel, and on the east by the Coast range of mountains.

Monterey, bounded on the south by the District of San Luis Obispo, and on the north and east by a line running east from New Year's Point to the summit of the Santa Clara range of mountains; thence along the summit of that range to the Arroyo de Los Leagas, and a parallel of latitude extending to the summit of the Coast Range, and along that range to the District of San Luis Obispo.

San José, bounded on the north by the straits of Carquinez, the bay of San Francisco, the arroyo of San Francisquito, and a parallel of latitude to the summit of the Santa Clara Mountains; on the west and south by the Santa Clara Mountains and the District of Monterey, and on the east by the Coast Range.

San Francisco, bounded on the west by the sea, on the south by the Districts of San José and Monterey, and on the east and north by the bay of San Francisco, including the islands in that bay.

Sonoma included all the country bounded by the sea, the bays of San Francisco and Suisun, the Sacramento River, and Oregon.

Sacramento, bounded on the north and west by the Sacramento River, on the east by the Sierra Nevada Mountains, and on the south by the Cosumnes River.

San Joaquin included all the country south of the Sacramento District, and lying between the Coast Range and the Sierra Nevadas.

The election for delegates was held on August 1, 1849. The convention met in Colton Hall, in the town of Monterey, at 12 o'clock noon on Saturday, September 1, 1849, and admitted to seats quite a number of delegates in excess of those contemplated in the proclamation of General Riley. On organization the following were chosen officers of the body: President, Robert Semple; Secretary, William G. Marcy; Assistant Secretaries, Caleb Lyon and J. G. Field; Reporter, J. Ross Browne; Sergeant-at-Arms, J. S. Houston; Doorkeeper, Cornelius Sullivan; Interpreter and Translator, W. E. P. Hartnell; Clerk to Interpreter and Translator, W. H. Henrie. The convention adopted the Constitution on October 10th and adjourned on October 13, 1849. The Constitution thus framed was ratified by the people at an election held November 13, 1849, and remained in force until the year 1879.

FRANCISCAN MISSIONS AND OTHER CALIFORNIA LANDMARKS.

By HON. JOSEPH R. KNOWLAND,

President California Historic Landmarks League, and Representative in Congress, Third California District.

Nearly every period of California's early history is recalled by landmarks scattered throughout the State, these silent but eloquent reminders of the days of long ago bringing home to Californians the universally acknowledged fact that no other State in the Union can boast of a history more interesting, more picturesque, or more romantic.

The remains of the old Franciscan missions recall a most important historic period, arousing interest in the fascinating story of the establishment of the twenty-one missions, stretching from San Diego in the south to Sonoma in the north. The Franciscan missionaries were the original pioneers of California, sowing the first seeds of civilization and establishing the first permanent settlements. It was in the year 1769, at San Diego, that the first mission was established. Monterey was the next spot selected. Thus the work progressed until a chain of missions had been established, located in such proximity that a traveler could start on foot from San Diego and nightly enjoy the hospitality of a different mission until Sonoma was reached. San Francisco Solano (Sonoma) mission was the last to be founded, 1823 being the date of its establishment.

Of the original twenty-one mission establishments, but two have entirely disappeared—San Rafael Arcangel and Santa Cruz. Of the remaining nineteen, all but five are in a fair state of preservation, and portions of at least four of these five can be saved. Crumbling walls mark the spot where Soledad mission once stood, and in a few more years all trace of this mission, located near the town of Soledad, in Monterey County, will be obliterated. San Diego, the mother mission, is in a poor state of preservation, little remaining but the front wall of the chapel, which has been safeguarded by the Landmarks Club of Southern California. La Purisima Concepcion, five miles from the town of Lompoc, in Santa Barbara County, was fast reaching a state of disintegration when restoration would be impossible, but fortunately the property was turned over to the Landmarks Club of Southern California, which organization, under the leadership of Mr. Charles F. Lummis, is exerting every effort to raise funds for its preservation. San Francisco Solano (Sonoma) mission was purchased in 1903 with a portion of the Landmarks Fund raised by the San Francisco Examiner, with the assistance of the California Historic Landmarks League and other patriotic bodies. In 1905 the California Legislature passed an act providing for the acquisition, preservation and protection of the Sonoma mission property, which was turned over to the State without cost. The Legislature has not as yet provided funds for the restoration of this mission. Unless prompt action is had, there will soon be little left of this picturesque landmark, the most northerly link of the chain of California missions.

One of the most beautiful and less frequently visited missions is located in Monterey County, twenty-six miles from King City. This is mission San Antonio de Padua, a most picturesque ruin. It was formerly one of the most extensive of the mission establishments. For years it was neglected, with no one to stay the hand of the vandal. The mission stands alone, its crumbling walls and deserted buildings appearing as if untouched since the departure of the padres and neophytes years ago. In 1903 the California Historic Landmarks League began the work of restoration.

but the funds at hand proved insufficient to complete the reroofing of the chapel, and for two winters the great adobe walls, six feet in thickness, were exposed to the elements, much damage resulting. After great effort a few hundred dollars were raised in 1905 and work resumed, but with this small sum it was only possible to erect a permanent roof over the vestibule. Unfortunately, however, the earthquake of 1906 wrought great damage, completely demolishing the newly erected walls and seriously injuring other portions of the mission. Conditions were most discouraging, and the officers of the League debated as to the advisability of further attempting to save this landmark, but the determining factor was the knowledge that San Antonio was one of the last of the remaining missions in a condition to be restored, and that another winter's rains would leave it a hopeless ruin. With funds received from the Grand Parlor of Native Sons, in June, 1906, the rebuilding of the walls commenced, and the rains of the winter of 1906-7 found all but a section of the chapel walls protected by a permanent roof, which unfinished portion has since been completed.

At San Luis Rey, in San Diego County, the church is in good state of preservation, but the picturesque arches, of which there were originally thirty-two, ornamented with latticed railings, are year by year crumbling. At San Juan Capistrano, in Orange County, the great chapel, in the form of a cross, was years ago destroyed by an earthquake, but a number of other buildings, safeguarded by the Southern California Landmarks Club, remain. San Gabriel mission, ten miles from the city of Los Angeles, is in use, services being regularly held within the walls of this old structure. Twenty miles north of Los Angeles stand the remaining buildings belonging to San Fernando Rey. The chapel was reroofed by the Southern California Club; the building with the arched corridor is in fair state of preservation. San Barbara and San Buenaventura missions are in an excellent condition of preservation. This is likewise the case with Santa Ynez mission, in Santa Barbara County. The two missions of San Luis Obispo and San Juan Bautista, located respectively in the counties of San Luis Obispo and San Benito, have been to a degree disfigured by the erection of modern church steeples. Both missions are very interesting to visit. The earthquake of 1906 did considerable damage to San Juan Bautista.

While the exterior of Santa Clara mission is quite modern, painstaking effort has been put forth to have the interior of the modern chapel conform to the old. This is particularly true of the decorated ceiling above the sanctuary, each board in the old ceiling having been carefully taken down, numbered, and later made use of in the new church. A portion of the sanctuary rail was made from the beams of the old chapel. The old adobe walls still constitute a part of the building adjoining the chapel and opening into the patio. Many interesting and valuable mission relics are carefully preserved in a room set aside for this purpose. The mission a few miles from the old town of Monterey, San Carlos Borromeo, sometimes confused with the old church located within the city proper, has been restored with a vengeance, a peaked shingle roof destroying, to a great extent, the original beauty of this structure. Little remains of Mission San José, in Alameda County. The old mission of San Miguel, in the town of like name, in San Luis Obispo County, is most interesting, its interior still showing the decorations made by the Indians. San Francisco de Asís (Dolores) mission, in San Francisco, withstood the earthquake and conflagration of 1906, the modern church adjoining suffering great damage.

These old missions should be preserved. Over one hundred years have come and gone since the passing of the mission system, and each year Californians are becoming more impressed with the importance of preserving these reminders of the days of Spanish rule and monuments to those self-sacrificing padres who labored unceasingly for the betterment of the Indians, facing the greatest difficulties, enduring hardships, and in many instances sacrificing their lives.

The hardships and trials of the early pioneers of California are recalled by General John A. Sutter's famous fort at Sacramento, restored through the efforts of the Native Sons of the Golden West, with the assistance of the people of the State. As far back as 1888, the importance of preserving and restoring this old fort, founded in 1839, was realized by the Native Sons and a movement set on foot with the object in view. A sum of over $20,000 was raised by the order, and a like amount appropriated by the Legislature of 1891. An additional sum of $15,000 was made available at the session of 1893 to complete the restoration. When the work commenced, the only building standing was a single structure. On April 26, 1893, Sutter's Fort was dedicated with fitting ceremonies, although the work was not completed. The fort, restored to its original state, is a parallelogram about 300 feet in length by 150 feet in width, the inclosing adobe walls being 18 feet in height. The workshops, storerooms, and barracks have been reproduced. The grounds have been improved within recent years, and the Legislature of 1907 provided for the purchase of an additional strip of land surrounding the fort.

ED. NOTE.—For picture of Sutter's Fort, restored, see page 114.

The Monterey Custom House, over which the flags of Spain, Mexico, and the United States have floated, is one of the most interesting of this State's landmarks and is said to be the oldest public building in California. Historically, the most important event associated with the Custom House was the raising of the American flag over this structure on July 7, 1846, by Commodore John Drake Sloat, which signaled the passing forever of Mexican rule on these far western shores. The building and grounds are the property of the United States Government. A large was obtained from the United States by the Order of Native Sons in 1900, and following the action of the Legislature of 1901 in appropriating $4,200 for the restoration of the property, this lease was transferred to the State Commission.

ED. NOTE.—For picture of Monterey Custom House, see page 115.

Colton Hall, where California's first constitutional convention convened, in September, 1849, is to be preserved by the State, the sum of $1,500 having been appropriated by the Legislature of 1905. The act provides for the appointment of a board of three Colton Hall Trustees, who shall accept a lease from the city of Monterey for the property in question.

ED. NOTE.—For pictures of Colton Hall, see pages 524 and 545.

One of the less frequently visited landmarks of California, and withal one of the most interesting, is Fort Ross, in Sonoma County, twelve miles from railroad connection. This Russian settlement was founded in 1812. Fort Ross was a quadrangle about 300 feet square, and inclosed by heavy redwood timbers eight inches thick and fifteen feet in height, set upright in the ground. At the diagonally opposite corners of the inclosure were blockhouses of hewn logs. Within this fortification was the Governor's residence, a chapel, officers' quarters and storehouses. There were other buildings outside of the stockade. To-day the old Governor's house, the barracks and granary still stand, while portions of the old blockhouses remain. The Greek chapel, the most interesting of the buildings, was leveled by the earthquake of 1906, but as his property is now owned by the State it is probable that the chapel will be restored. The Russians did not recognize Spanish sovereignty north of San Francisco, and had they pressed their claims, refusing to vacate, and backed by the power of their government, the history of California might have been different from what it is to-day. The Russians voluntarily withdrew in 1842, after occupying the settlement for thirty years.

It is the earnest wish of every true Californian that sentiments in favor of the reservation and restoration of the historic places throughout the State may year by year grow, and that the appeals of those interested in the great work may meet with generous response.

ORGANIZATION OF THE STATE GOVERNMENT AND ADMISSION OF CALIFORNIA INTO THE UNION.

The Constitution as framed by the convention of 1849 provided that upon the day of its submission for ratification the people should also at the same time vote for a Governor, Lieutenant Governor, two Representatives in Congress, and for sixteen State Senators and thirty-six members of Assembly to compose the first State Legislature. Other State officers as provided for were to be elected for the first term by the Legislature, and thereafter they were to be elected by the people. The Legislature was also within four days after its organization to elect two United States Senators. The term of State officers was fixed at two years. The election was held on the 13th day of November, and on the 15th day of December the Legislature met and organized, and thereafter proceeded to canvass the returns. The Governor and Lieutenant Governor were inaugurated on the 20th, and on the same day the Governor announced the appointment of a Secretary of State, and the appointment was confirmed by the Senate. Two United States Senators were elected by the Legislature on the 20th, and on the 22d there were elected a Treasurer, Controller, Attorney General, Surveyor General, and three Justices of the Supreme Court.

The officers of the first State government were as follows: Elected by the people—Governor, Peter H. Burnett; Lieutenant Governor, John McDougal; Representatives in Congress (at large), George W. Wright, Edward Gilbert.

Appointed by the Governor—Secretary of State, William Van Voorhies.

Elected by the Legislature—United States Senators, John C. Fremont and Wm. M. Gwin; Treasurer, Richard Roman; Controller John S. Houston; Attorney General, Edward J. C. Kewen; Surveyor General, Charles J. Whiting; Chief Justice, Supreme Court, S. Clinton Hastings; First Associate Justice, Supreme Court, Henry A. Lyons; Second Associate Justice, Supreme Court, Nathaniel Bennett.

On January 8, 1850, the office of State Printer was created by the Legislature, and Henry H. Robinson was elected by that body on January 10th; on February 14th the office of Clerk of the Supreme Court was created, and E. H. Tharp was elected to that position by the Legislature on February 20th. The Constitution as originally adopted directed the Legislature to provide for the election of a Superintendent of Public Instruction, and on April 11, 1850, that office was provided for, but the office was not filled until the general election, October 7, 1850, when John G. Marvin was elected. An Adjutant General was provided for by the Legislature on April 10, 1850, and on the following day Thereon R. Per Lee was elected to the position.

A complete working State government was therefore set up and established, although California had not been admitted into the Union, but in the mean time steps to that end were being taken. The Constitution as adopted contained in its schedule the following provisions:

Sec. 7. If this Constitution shall be ratified by the people of California, the executive of the existing government is hereby requested, immediately after the same shall be ascertained, in the manner herein directed, to cause a fair copy thereof to be forwarded to the President of the United States, in order that he may lay it before the Congress of the United States.

Sec. 12. The Senators and Representatives of the Congress of the United States elected by the Legislature and people of California, as herein directed, shall be furnished with certified copies of this Constitution, when ratified, which they shall lay before the Congress of the United States requesting, in the name of the people of California, the admission of the State of California into the American Union.

These directions were carried out, and on February 23, 1850, the matter was laid before Congress in a message by President Zachary Taylor. After a great deal of debate, a bill for the admission of California finally passed the Senate on August 13, 1850, and the House of Representatives on the 7th of September. On the 9th it was approved by President Millard Fillmore, who had succeeded to the presidency on the death of President Taylor. The Senators and Representatives from the State of California took their seats in Congress the following day.

AN ACT

For the admission of the State of California into the Union.

Whereas the people of California have presented a constitution and asked admission into the Union, which constitution, was submitted to Congress, by the President of the United States by message, dated February thirteenth, eighteen hundred and fifty, and which, on due examination, is found to be republican in its form of government: Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the State of California shall be one, and is hereby declared to be one, of the United States of America, and admitted into the Union on an equal footing with the original states in all respects whatever. Section 2 And be it further enacted, That until the representatives in Congress shall be apportioned according to an actual enumeration of the inhabitants of the United States, the State of California shall be entitled to two representatives in Congress. Section 3 And be it further enacted, That the said State of California is admitted into the Union upon the express condition that the people of said State, through their legislature or otherwise, shall never interfere with the primary disposal of the public lands within its limits, and shall pass no law and do no act whereby the title of the United States to, and right to dispose of, the same shall be impaired or questioned; and that they shall never lay any tax or assessment of any description whatsoever upon the public domain of the United States, and in no case shall non-resident proprietors, who are citizens of the United States, be taxed higher than residents; and that all the navigable waters within the said State shall be common highways, and forever free as well to the inhabitants of said State as to the citizens of the United States, without any tax, impost or duty therefor. Provided, That nothing herein contained shall be construed as recognizing or rejecting the propositions tendered by the people of California as articles of compact in the ordinance adopted by the convention which formed the constitution of that State.—

A PLEA FOR THE COLLECTION, PRESERVATION, AND DIFFUSION OF INFORMATION RELATING TO THE HISTORY OF CALIFORNIA.

Address delivered on Admission Day, September 9, 1908, at Colton Hall, Monterey, by HON. JOHN F. DAVIS, of Excelsior Parlor, No. 31, Native Sons of the Golden West.

Native Sons, Native Daughters and Friends:

In no more appropriate spot in California can the anniversary of the admission of the State into the Union be held than in that town where still stands Colton Hall. In no other place beneath California's skies is there a greater wealth of romantic historic interest. Here, in 1602, the navigator, Sebastian Vizcaino, visited and took possession in the name of Philip III. of Spain, and Padre Ascension celebrated the mass under a spreading oak tree near the water's edge; here, on June 3, 1770, more than a century and a half afterward, Portola raised the Spanish standard and took possession in the name of Carlos III. of Spain, and on the same day, Father Junipero Serra, who accompanied the expedition, founded the Mission of San Carlos Borromeo, which he afterwards moved to Carmelo; here was the capital of California under the Spanish dominion until it ended with Governor Sola; here, on April 9, 1822, the junta met, which passed the resolution of acquiescence in the government of the new republic, took the prescribed oath, and raised the flag of Mexico; here, in November, 1836, the Hispano-Californian revolutionists under Alvarado took possession of the town, and declared the country a sovereign State, recognizing only a federation with Mexico, though they left the Mexican flag still floating; here, in 1842, Commodore Jones, on a false report that war had started with Mexico, entered the harbor, seized the port, and raised the American flag, and upon hearing that the report upon which he had acted was unfounded, hauled down the flag the next day, apologized and retired; here, in 1844, Thomas O. Larkin was appointed the first and the last American consul of the port; here, on July 7, 1846, Commodore Sloat raised the Stars and Stripes; here, in Colton Hall, assembled on September 1st, and organized on September 3, 1849, the first constitutional convention—the convention which gave to California the constitution with which she came into the Union upon a day, the fifty-eighth anniversary of which we are celebrating to-day. Here historic associations abound, and historic monuments abide. Even the landscape, in part, endures.

"I love to go to Monterey," said General Vallejo in his old age, "for there I may yet find a little of the dear and almost obliterated past. There is yet the ocean that smiles for me as I approach, and venerable, bearded oaks, to which I raise my hat as I pass under them; and there are streets still familiar, and houses not yet torn down, and streams and landscape, which I may yet recognize as part of my former belongings. But, after all, these are only the unfabricated grave-gear that tell I am not yet dead."

Such an environment is well calculated to arrest our attention, and to lead our thoughts afield. In the presence of these reminders of the past, vainglorious praise of the present and roseate prophecies of the future seem alike out of place. May it not be well to-day, if, instead of dwelling upon the vast material and moral resources of the State, if, instead of singing the old song, of the beauties and charm of "a land of sunshine, fruit and flowers," we try to ascertain what has been done to collect, preserve, and diffuse information relating to the history of this commonwealth; and, if we shall find that nothing adequate has been done, to inquire what intelligent action has effected along those lines in other sections of our country, and to dedicate ourselves to work toward the accomplishment of like results?

The early history of this coast came as an offshoot of a civilization whose antiquity was already respectable. "A hundred years," says Hubert H. Bancroft, "before John Smith saw the spot on which was planted Jamestown, or the English pilgrim placed foot on the rock of Plymouth, thousands from Spain had crossed the high sea, achieving mighty conquests, seizing large portions of the two Americas, and placing under tribute their peoples. They had built towns, worked mines, established plantations, and solved many of the problems attending European colonization in the new world."

One of the truest of our modern critics—Charles F. Lummis—has said: “We love manhood; and the Spanish pioneering of the Americas was the largest, longest and most marvelous feat of manhood in all history.”

The past of California possesses a wealth of romantic interest, a variety of contrast, a novelty of resourcefulness and an intrinsic importance that enthalls the imagination.

It is not my purpose to-day—the time would not permit it—to review the different phases of California history. I do not intend to lay before your minds a vision of the twilight of romance in this State when it was “a mere field of cosmographic conjecture, its position, somewhere on the way from Mexico to India, being vaguely fixed by such bounds as Asia, the North Pole, Newfoundland and Florida,” though that in itself is a story of deep interest. I shall not attempt to give you the interesting account of the hardship and high endeavor of the splendid band of navigators, beginning with Cabrillo in 1543, who discovered, explored and reported on its bays, outlets, rivers and coast line, whose task was as desperate, and whose exploits as heroic, as anything accomplished by the Norsemen in Iceland, the discoverers of the Atlantic coast, or the circumnavigators of the Cape of Good Hope. I do not desire to picture to you the decades of the pastoral life of the hacienda and its broad acres, though I trust the pen of some native Californian will yet adequately depict the charm of the monotony, the hospitality and the liveliness of its social life. I do not intend to recall the miniature struggles of church and State, the many political controversies of the Mexican régime, or the play of plot and counterplot that made up so much of its history “before the Gringo came.” I shall not try to tell you the story of the discovery of gold and its world-thrilling incidents, nor of the hardship and courage of the emigrant trail, nor of the importance of the mission of the pathfinder and the excitement of the conquest, each in itself an experience full to the brim, each varied, and each full of its local color.

Let me rather call attention to three incidents of our history, ignoring all the rest, to enforce the point of its uniqueness, its variety, its novelty, its importance, as entitling it to its proper proportionate place in the history of the nation.

And first of all, the story of the missions. The story of the missions is the history of the beginning of the colonization of California. The Spanish Government was desirous of providing its ships, on the return trip from Manila, with good harbors of supply and repairs, and was also desirous of promoting a settlement of the north as a safeguard against possible Russian aggression. The Franciscans, upon the expulsion of the Jesuits in 1767, had taken charge of the missions, and in their zeal for the conversion of the Indians, seconded the plans of the government.

"The official purpose here, as in older mission undertakings," says Dr. Josiah Royce, "was a union of physical and spiritual conquest, soldiers under a military governor coöperating to this end with missionaries and mission establishments. The natives were to be overcome by arms in so far as they might resist the conquerors, were to be attracted to the missions by peaceable measures in so far as might prove possible, were to be instructed in the faith, and were to be kept for the present under the paternal rule of the clergy, until such time as they might be ready for a free life as Christian subjects. Meanwhile, Spanish colonists were to be brought to the new land as circumstances might determine, and, to these, allotments of land were in some fashion to be made. No grants of land in a legal sense were made or promised to the mission establishments, whose position was to be merely that of spiritual institutions intrusted temporarily with the education of neophytes, and with the care of the property that should be given or hereafter produced for the purpose. On the other hand, if the government tended to regard the missions as purely subsidiary to its purposes, the outgoing missionaries to this strange land were so much the more certain to be quite uncorrupted by worldly ambitions, by a hope of acquiring wealth, or by any intention to found a powerful ecclesiastical government in the new colony. They went to save souls, and their motive was as single as it was worthy of reverence. In the sequel, the more successful missions of Upper California became, for a time, very wealthy; but this was only by virtue of the gifts of nature and of the devoted labors of the padres."

Such a scheme of human effort is so unique and so in contradiction to all that obtains to-day, that it seems like a narrative from another world. Fortunately, the annals of these missions, which ultimately extended from San Diego to beyond Sonoma, stepping-stones of civilization on this coast, are complete, and their simple disinterestedness and directness sound like a tale from Arcady. They were signally successful because those who conducted them were true to the trusteeship of their lives. The reason that their work has passed away, and that nothing is now left of them but a few monuments to mark their resting places, is because the peoples whom they subdued and civilized have themselves passed from these valleys and hills. It is a source of high satisfaction that there was here no record of overreaching the simple natives, no failure to respect what rights they claimed, no carnage and bloodshed, that have so often attended expeditions sent nominally for civilization, but really for conquest. If the teeming acres are now otherwise tilled, and if the herds of cattle have passed away, and the communal life is gone forever, the records of what was accomplished in those pastoral days have immortalized the names of Salvatierra and Junipero Serra. In a sense, the work of these missions is now dead, dead as the blue laws of Connecticut, yet the memory of those days still remains to us as a legacy, and what monuments are left of them are being preserved by us and will be cherished by our children. As the fishermen off the coast of Brittany tell the legend that at the evening hour, as their boats pass over the vanished Atlantis, they can still hear the sounds of its activity at the bottom of the sea, so every Californian as he turns the pages of the early history of his State, feels at times that he can hear the echo of the Angelus bell of the missions that are dead and gone, and amid the din of the money-madness of these later days, can find a response in the better angels of his nature.

In swift contrast to this idyllic scene, which is shared with us by few other sections of this country, stands the history of a period where for more than two years this State was without authority of law, and where the only authority was such as sprang from the instinct of self-preservation. No more interesting phase of history in America can be presented than that which arose in California immediately after the discovery of gold, with reference to titles upon the public domain. James W. Marshall made the discovery of gold in the race of a sawmill at Coloma in the latter part of January, 1848. Thereupon took place an incident of history which demonstrated that Jason and his companions were not the only argonauts who ever made a voyage to unknown shores in search of a golden fleece. The first news of the discovery almost depopulated the towns and ranches of California, and even affected the discipline of the small army of occupation. The first winter brought thousands of Oregonians, Mexicans, and Chilenos. The extraordinary reports that reached the East were at first disbelieved, but when the private letters of army officers and men in authority were published, an indescribable gold fever took possession of the nation east of the Alleghanies. All the energetic and daring, all the physically sound of all ages, seemed bent on reaching the new El Dorado. The old Gothic instinct of invasion seemed to survive and thrill in the fiber of our people, and the camps and gulches and mines of California witnessed a social and political phenomenon unique in the history of the world, the spirit and romance of which have been immortalized in the pages of Bret Harte.

Before 1850 the population of California had risen from 15,000, as it was in 1847, to 100,000, and the annual average increase for six years thereafter was 50,000. The novelty of this situation produced in many minds the most marvelous development. "Every glance westward was met by a new ray of intelligence; every drawn breath of western air brought inspiration; every step taken was over an unknown field; every experiment, every thought, every aspiration and act were original and individual."

At the time of Marshall's discovery the United States was still at war with Mexico, its sovereignty over the soil of California not yet recognized by the latter. The treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo was not concluded until February 2d, the ratified copies thereof not exchanged at Queretaro till May 30th, and the treaty not proclaimed until July 4, 1848. On the 12th of February, 1848, ten days after the signing of the treaty of peace, and about three weeks after the discovery of gold at Coloma, Colonel Mason did the pioneers a signal service by issuing as Governor the proclamation concerning the mines, which at the time was taken as a finality and certainty as to the status of mining titles in their international aspect: "From and after this date the Mexican laws and customs now prevailing in California, relative to the denouncement of mines, are hereby abolished." Although, as the law was fourteen years afterwards expounded by the United States Supreme Court, the act was unnecessary as a precautionary measure, still the practical result of the timeliness of the proclamation was to prevent attempts to found private titles to the new discovery of gold on any customs or laws of Mexico.

Meantime, and in fact until her admission into the Union as a State, California was governed by military authority. Except to provide for the delivering and taking of mails at certain points on the coast, no Federal act was passed with reference to California in any relation; in no act of Congress was California even mentioned after its annexation, until the act of March 3, 1849, extending the revenue laws of the United States "over the territory and waters of Upper California, and to create certain collection districts therein." The act of March 3, 1849, not only did not extend the general laws of the United States over California, but did not even create a local tribunal for its enforcement, providing that the District Court of Louisiana and the Supreme Court of Oregon should be courts of original jurisdiction to take cognizance of all violations of its provisions. Not even the act of the 9th of September, 1850, admitting California into the Union, extended the general laws of the United States over the State by express provision. Not until the act of September 28, 1850, establishing a district court in the State, was it enacted by Congress "that all the laws of the United States which are not locally inapplicable, shall have the same force and effect within the said State of California, as elsewhere within the United States."

Though no general Federal laws were extended by Congress over the late acquisitions from Mexico for more than two years after the end of the war, the paramount title to the public lands had vested in the Federal government by virtue of the provisions of the treaty of peace; the public land itself had become part of the public domain of the United States. The army of occupation, however, offered no opposition to the invading army of prospectors. The miners were, in 1849, twenty years ahead of the railroad and the electric telegraph; and the telephone had not yet been invented. In the parlance of the times, the prospectors "had the drop on the army." In Colonel Mason's unique report of the situation that confronted him, discretion waits upon valor. "The entire gold district," he wrote, "with few exceptions of grants made some years ago by the Mexican authorities, is on land belonging to the United States. It was a matter of serious reflection with me how I could secure to the Government certain rents or fees for the privilege of procuring this gold; but upon considering the large extent of the country, the character of the people engaged, and the small scattered force at my command, I am resolved not to interfere, but permit all to work freely." It is not recorded whether the resolute Colonel was conscious of the humor of his resolution.

The prospectors and miners were, then, in the start, simply trespassers upon the public lands as against the government of the United States, with no laws to guide, restrain or protect them, and with nothing to fear from military authorities. They were equal to the occasion. The instinct of organization was a part of their heredity. Professor Macy, of Johns Hopkins University, once wrote: "It has been said that if three Americans meet to talk over an item of business, the first thing they do is to organize."

"Finding themselves far from the legal traditions and restraints of the settled East," says the report of the Public Lands Commission of 1880, "in a pathless wilderness, under the feverish excitement of an industry as swift and full of chance as the throwing of dice, the adventurers of 1849 spontaneously instituted neighborhood or district codes of regulations, which were simply meant to define and protect a brief possessory ownership. The ravines and river-bars which held the placer gold were valueless for settlement or home-making, but were splendid stakes to hold for a few short seasons and gamble with nature for wealth or ruin.

"In the absence of State and Federal laws competent to meet the novel industry, and with the inbred respect for equitable adjustments of rights between man and man, which is the inheritance of centuries of English common law, the miners only sought to secure equitable rights and protection from robbery by a simple agreement as to the maximum size of a surface claim, trusting, with a well-founded confidence, that no machinery was necessary to enforce their regulations other than the swift, rough blows of public opinion. The gold-seekers were not long in realizing that the source of the dust which had worked its way into the sands and bars, and distributed its precious particles over the bedrocks of rivers, was derived from solid quartz veins, which were thin sheets of mineral material inclosed in the foundation rocks of the country. Still in advance of any enactments by legislature or Congress, the common sense of the miners, which had proved strong enough to govern with wisdom the ownership of placer mines, rose to meet the question of lode claims, and sheet-like veins of quartz, and provided that a claim should consist of a certain horizontal block of the vein, however it might run, but extending indefinitely downward, with a strip of surface on, or embracing the vein's outcrop, for the placing of necessary machinery and buildings. Under this theory, the lode was property, and the surface became a mere easement.

"This early California theory of a mining claim, consisting of a certain number of running feet of vein with a strip of land covering the surface length of the claim, is the obvious foundation of the Federal legislation and present system of public disposition and private ownership of the mineral lands west of the Missouri River. Contrasted with this is the mode of disposition of mineral-bearing lands east of the Missouri River, where the common law has been the one rule, and where the surface tract has always carried with it all minerals vertically below it.

"The great coal, iron, copper, lead, and zinc wealth east of the Rocky Mountains have all passed with the surface titles, and there can be little doubt that if California had been contiguous to the eastern metallic regions, and its mineral development progressed naturally with the advantage of home-making settlements, the power of common-law precedent would have governed its whole mining history. But California was one of those extraordinary historic exceptions that defy precedent and create original modes of life and law. And since the developers of the great precious metal mining of the far West have for the most part swarmed out of the California hive, California ideas have not only been everywhere dominant over the field of industry, but have stemmed the tide of Federal land policy and given us a statute-book with English common law in force over half the land and California common law ruling in the other."

I have spoken of these two incidents, the one of the peaceable civilization of the missions, and the other of the strenuous life issuing in the adoption of the mining code, as illustrative incidents of the variety of California history. Let me speak of a third, directly connected with the day we celebrate. The delay incident to the admission of California into the Union as a State was precipitated by the tense struggle then raging in Congress between the North and the South, as to which should have the predominance of power. The destiny of the nation hung upon the result of that issue, and when California finally entered the Union, it came in as the sixteenth free State, and forever destroyed the equilibrium between the North and the South, which up to that time had been maintained.

The struggle had been so prolonged, however, that the people upon this coast, far removed from the scene of it, and feeling more than all else that they were entitled to be protected by a system of laws, grew impatient. They met in legislative assembly and proclaimed: "It is the duty of the Government of the United States to give us laws; and when that duty is not performed, one of the clearest rights we have left is to govern ourselves." Far removed from the source of legal authority, with a life the most strenuous confronting them, without an army adequate to protect them or to enforce even its own commands against them, with the problems of a new empire confronting them, they did not hesitate. The first provisional government meeting was held in the pueblo of San José, December 11, 1848, and unanimously recommended that a general convention for the purpose of nominating a suitable candidate for governor and for such other business as might be deemed expedient, be held at the pueblo of San José on the second Monday in January following. At San Francisco, a similar provisional meeting was held and similar recommendations made, though the date of the proposed convention was fixed for the first Monday in March, 1848, and afterwards changed to the first Monday in August. The population of San Francisco was increasing so fast, however, that on February 12, 1849, the people of San Francisco in mass meeting assembled, established a temporary government for that district, under the name of the "Legislative Assembly of San Francisco," comprising fifteen members. General Bennet Riley arrived April 12, 1849, on board the Iowa, and, relieving Colonel Mason, became the acting Governor of California. While the Legislative Assembly of San Francisco recognized his military authority, in which capacity he was not formidable, it did not recognize his civil power. General Riley, however, with that rare diplomacy which seems to have attached to all Federal military people when acting on the Pacific coast, realizing that any organized government that proceeded from an orderly concourse of the people of the State, was preferable to the exasperating condition in which the community was left to face its increasing problems under congressional inaction, himself issued a proclamation for a State Convention, which contained the following important provision: "In order to complete this organization with the least possible delay, the undersigned, in virtue of the power in him vested, does hereby appoint the first of August next as the day for holding a special election for the delegates to a general convention, and for the filling of the offices of judges of the Supreme Court, prefects and sub-prefects, and all vacancies in the office of first alcalde (or judge of first instance), alcalde, justices of the peace and town councils. The general convention for forming a State Constitution or plan for its territorial government will consist of thirty-seven delegates, who will meet at Monterey on the first of September next." While he condemned the actions of the Legislative Assembly of San Francisco as being illegal and without authority, he had the wisdom to recognize the fact that the people were inevitably bent on holding a State convention for the purpose of framing a constitution, and when he wisely issued his proclamation to the same end, the various assemblies, which had placed other conditions and fixed other dates and places for the holding of the same, gave way, and a general election was held under the provisions of Riley's proclamation. The delegates met in Monterey at Colton Hall, on the first of September and organized on the third of September, 1849. The convention was one of the keenest and most intelligent that ever assembled for the fulfillment of a legislative responsibility. Six of the delegates had resided in California less than six months, while only twenty-two, exclusive of the seven native Californians, had resided here for more than three years. The average age of all the delegates was 36 years. The debates of that convention should be familiar to every son of this State. No Californian should be unfamiliar with the great debate on what was to constitute the boundary of the State of California, a debate on which turned the question of the slave power of this country, and which in the end almost wrecked the convention. The constitution adopted by this convention was ratified November 13, 1849, and at the same election an entire State and legislative ticket, with two representatives to Congress, was chosen. The senators and assemblymen-elect met in San José on December 15, 1849. On December 20, 1849, the State government of California was established and Governor Peter H. Burnett was inaugurated as the first Governor of the State of California, and soon thereafter William M. Gwin and John C. Fremont were elected the first United States Senators of the State of California. Notwithstanding the fact that there had never been any territorial form of government; notwithstanding the fact that California was not yet admitted into the Union, these men were all elected as members of the State government, and the United States Senators and Members of Congress started for Washington to help get the State admitted. Immediately upon the inauguration of Governor Burnett, General Riley issued this remarkable

"PROCLAMATION

"To the People of California.

"A new executive having been elected and installed into office, in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution of the State, the undersigned hereby resigns his powers as Governor of California. In thus dissolving his official connection with the people of this Country, he would tender to them his heartfelt thanks for their many kind attentions, and for the uniform support which they have given to the measures of his administration. The principal object of all his wishes is now accomplished—the people have a government of their own choice, and one which, under the favor of divine Providence, will secure their own prosperity and happiness, and the permanent welfare of the new State.

"Given at San José, California, this 20th day of December, A. D. 1849.

"B. RILEY,

"Brevet Brig. Gen. U. S. A., and Governor of California.

"By the Governor: W. H. Halleck,

"Brevet Captain and Secretary of State."

No matter what the legal objection to this course might be; notwithstanding the fact that Congress had passed no bill for the admission of California as a State into the Union, and might never pass one, California broke all precedents by declaring itself a State, and a free State at that, and sent its representatives to Washington to hurry up the passage of the bill which should admit it into the Union. The brilliant audacity of California's methods of admission into the Union stand without parallel in the history of the Nation.

It is indefensible that in the face of incidents of our history such as these, sons and daughters of California should be ignorant of the lives and experiences of their fathers and of those who preceded them on this coast. The history of these experiences is part of the history of the Nation, and the record of the achievements of the empire-builders of this coast is one that inspires civic pride and a reverence for their memories. Something should be done by their descendants that this story should not be unknown, simply because it is not known in the centers where our school histories are edited and printed. Why should every little unimportant detail of the petty incidents of the French and Indian wars, of Queen Anne's war, and King Philip's war, and Braddock's campaign, be crammed into the heads of children who have never heard the name of Portola? The beautiful story of Paul Revere's ride is known to every one, but how many know the story of the invincible determination in the building of Ugarte's ship? William Penn's honest treatment of the Indians is a household word to the people who never knew of the existence of Salvatierra. The hardships of the New England pilgrims in the winter on the rock-bound coast of Massachusetts are not more pitiful than the fate of the emigrants at Donner Lake. Longfellow's courtship of Miles Standish and Priscilla is found in every book of school declamations, and the tragic story of Rezanoff and Concepcion Argüello only in complete editions of Bret Harte. Why remember Marquette and Hennepin and De Smet and forget Junipero Serra? Why herald the ridiculous attempt of Rhode Island to keep out of the Union, and not acclaim the splendid effort of California to break into it?

The importance to any community of its local history being incorporated in the national story in its proper proportion and perspective can not be overestimated. When in all the ten volumes of Thomas B. Reed's magnificent collection entitled "Modern Eloquence," we find but one speech that was delivered in California, and that while the senile vaporings of Chauncey Depew are printed in detail, the flaming eloquence of E. D. Baker is absolutely ignored, and the only discourse reported of Thomas Starr King is one that he delivered in Boston, it is time for the descendants of the pioneers to ask themselves whether these things have all happened by accident, or whether the older commonwealths of this country have been moved by a pride in their history and in their traditions to take such measures for their preservation and for the promotion of their publication as to put us to shame. What have we of California done to collect, preserve and diffuse information relating to the history of our State? And what have other commonwealths done?

The California State Historical Society, first organized in 1852, and incorporated in 1870, was in active existence from 1886 to 1893, and published some valuable historical material, including Father Palou's Noticias, Doyle's History of the Pious Fund, Willey's History of the College of California, and some interesting papers by Martin Kellogg, George Davidson, Bernard Moses, William Carey Jones, and T. H. Hittell. From that time it has had no active existence. There has not been a meeting of its board of directors since 1893, and since then most of them have died. It has no maps and no manuscripts, and its little library of 500 printed volumes is stored away in San Francisco, in the basement cellar of the gentleman who is still nominally its president. It never owned a building in which to do its work, was never endowed, and to all intents and purposes, has been dead for fifteen years.

When we look beyond the Rockies, however; we begin to appreciate the work that is being done by the State Historical Societies organized for the purpose of collecting, preserving and diffusing historical information concerning their respective states. The Massachusetts and Pennsylvania societies are prototypes of the privately organized and endowed organizations of the Eastern States, which without official patronage have attained strength, dignity and a high degree of usefulness, while Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, and Kansas similarly stand for the state-supported institutions of the West. Twelve societies or departments own their own halls—those valued at $100,000 or over being: Wisconsin, $610,000; Iowa, $400,000; Pennsylvania, $300,000, and Massachusetts, $225,000. Thirteen are housed in their respective State capitols, seven are quartered in State Universities, and six in other public buildings. The largest State appropriations are given to Wisconsin, $32,000; Minnesota, $20,000, and Iowa, $17,500. The Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, and Wisconsin societies are, of course, the wealthiest in endowments, possessing, respectively, $221,000, $170,000, and $53,000 in vested funds. The largest libraries are: Pennsylvania, 315,000 titles; Wisconsin, 280,000; Massachusetts, 155,000; Kansas, 119,600, and New Hampshire, 93,500.

Only a little less important, in degree, are a large number of historical societies which represent some town or section. For example: The Essex Institute of Salem, Massachusetts, with its income of $15,000, library of 400,000 titles, and building valued at $75,000; New York (city) Historical Society, with 1,057 members, endowment fund aggregating $236,000, yearly income of $12,800, and a building costing $400,000; the Chicago Historical Society, with a library of 100,000 titles, housed in a $185,000 building, and supported by endowment funds aggregating $96,000; the Long Island Historical Society of Brooklyn, with 72,000 titles in its own building; the Western Reserve, of Cleveland, with 60,000 titles in a $55,000 building; the Worcester (Massachusetts) Society of Antiquities, housing 90,000 titles within a building valued at $50,000, and the Buffalo Historical Society, which has a library of 16,000 titles in a $200,000 building, and receives a municipal grant of $5,000 and incidental expenses per annum. These are simply the most highly endowed. Every important town and city in the country is represented. In the State of Massachusetts alone there are, besides its State Historical Society, thirty-six local historical societies, all of them alive and active and doing good work. The only local historical society that I know of in California is the Historical Society of Southern California in Los Angeles, with a membership (in 1905) of fifty, owning a library of 5,000 books and pamphlets, and the Archæological Institution of the Southwest, also of Los Angeles, which, however, is not exclusively an historical society.

I submit to you, as patriotic Californians, whether this is a record in which we can take any pride. With the exception of the pitiful attempts of its loyal friends from time to time to revive the California Historical Society, absolutely no organization work whatever has been done by any public institution to promote either the publication of California history or the collection of material therefor. With a history such as ours, with its halo of romance, with its peculiarity of incident, with its epoch-making significance, is it not a burning shame that we have not long ago, either through private endowment or through public institutions, taken as much pride in the preservation of our history as our fathers did in the creation of it? Is it not time that societies like the Pioneers, the Native Sons of the Golden West, and the Native Daughters of the Golden West should combine and work together for the creation of a public sentiment which will support and uphold any institution that will strive to perpetuate the record of the history of this great commonwealth? When we see what has been accomplished by these orders in promoting a sentiment for the preservation of the landmarks of our State, and the placing of tablets to commemorate the location of great events, shall we not do all in our power to collect whatever material in the shape of maps or manuscripts or books that tells the story of our State's history, and place them where they shall be preserved and catalogued and published, and see to it that the publication of their contents shall be heralded abroad for the edification of others, as well as ourselves? In everything that we have undertaken, we have always succeeded—shall we fail in this duty simply because we do not care to try?

The time is ripe for this work. Though there has been no organized effort on the part of the State, or of any community in the State, to recognize the duty of collecting and preserving the priceless records of its historical growth, yet by an undeserved fortune, we have the nucleus of a library, which, as far as the accuracy of the record of our history up to date is concerned, places us in a position of advantage even over the oldest states of this country. The fire which swept San Francisco in its early stages did not reach the Bancroft Library, at the corner of Merchant and Montgomery streets. The fire that burned the building on Market street, near Third, next door to the History Building, missed the Bancroft Library, and when it was moved to the building especially constructed for it at Valencia and Mission streets, the conflagration of the 18th of April, 1906, did not reach it. In this State it remained for a private individual by his life work to collect and preserve a library that to the State of California is almost priceless in value. "There is no other State or country," it has been said, "whose historic data has been so thoroughly collected at so early a period in its existence, especially none whose existence has been so varied and eventful, and its record so complicated and perishable. Mr. Bancroft has attempted, and successfully, it is believed, to give to his country a work which in the ordinary course of events would have been left for a succession of historical societies and specialists to do in a later generation, after the largest part of the material had been lost, and the accomplishment of the purpose would be absolutely impossible." This magnificent library the State of California has recently purchased and installed in the California Building at the State University at Berkeley. Without any desert of our own, therefore, we are in a position to start with the greatest nucleus of historical data that any commonwealth ever had. There remains the great work of cataloging and publishing, rendering available to the investigation of scholarship this mass of original data.

I care not what form the effort may take, whether through the endowment of private organization or of a public institution, or a combination of both. The point I desire to emphasize is that we should take, as an organization, a deep practical interest in this great work, whether in the form of the collection of material, or in the form of its publication, or in promoting public sentiment to sustain adequate public expenditures in that behalf, or in promoting such public sentiment as will compel the organization of city and town historical societies in the various communities throughout the State.

Surely, in an organization founded to perpetuate the memory of the pioneers, this work would be in a direct line with the reason of its being. What we have not realized is that as it took conscious effort to create this history, it will also take conscious effort to see that it is given its proper place in the history of the country at large. A fuller realization of our duty shall serve but to quicken our sense of loyalty. This pilgrimage of our order to the historic shrines we see about us shall renew our devotion to the perpetuation of the traditions of the State. Our eyes have seen the house where Larkin lived, and the rose garden where Sherman kissed and rode away; our hands have touched the spot where Junipero Serra planted his cross; our feet have pressed the aisles of Carmel Mission; our voices have awakened the sacred echoes of the walls of Colton Hall; our hearts have thrilled to see Old Glory waving above the old Custom House and to know that the flag that came down at Chapultepec remained here to float forever. These monuments ought not to stand in vain. Let us go hence with minds determined and hearts courageous to do our full share that the story told by them and others upon our broad domain shall be known to all men and sink into the hearts of a grateful people.

SECOND CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

Under and by authority of section 2 of article X, Constitution of 1849, the Legislature at its session of 1876 submitted to a vote of the people of the State the proposition of calling a Convention to frame a new Constitution (Stats. of Cal. 1875-6, p. 791). This proposition was adopted by the people at the subsequent general State election, and in pursuance of such action the Legislature which followed passed an enabling act entitled "An act to provide for a Convention to frame a new Constitution for the State of California," which act was approved March 30, 1878 (Stats. of Cal. 1877-8, p. 759). The act called for an election to be held on Wednesday, June 19, 1878, for the purpose of electing delegates to a Constitutional Convention, to be composed of one hundred and fifty-two delegates, thirty-two to be elected by the State at large, eight residents of each of the four Congressional Districts then existing, and the remaining one hundred and twenty, a number equivalent to the combined membership of the two branches of the State Legislature, were apportioned among the various counties by the act itself.

The Convention thus constituted met in the Assembly Chamber of the State Capitol at Sacramento on Saturday, September 28, 1878, and organized by the election of Joseph P. Hoge, President; Isaac S. Belcher, President pro tem.; Joseph Asbury Johnson, Secretary; George A. Thornton and Edwin F. Smith, Assistant Secretaries; E. L. Crawford, Minute Clerk; George E. McStay, Journal Clerk; T. J. Sherwood, Sergeant-at-Arms; Benjamin Chambers, Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms. Edwin F. Smith was elected Secretary January 17, 1879, vice J. A. Johnson, resigned, and on January 24, 1879, J. M. Wright was elected to succeed E. F. Smith as Assistant Secretary.

The Convention adopted the Constitution on Monday, March 3, 1879, and adjourned the same day. The Constitution thus framed was ratified by vote of the people on Wednesday, May 7, 1879. (For Constitution, see pages 31 to 73, Blue Book.)

| LEWIS, JOHN T. (Rep.) | San Joaquin | 38th |
| LEWIS, JOSEPH E. N. (Dem.) | Butte, Shasta | 2d |
| The apportionment of May 1, 1851, provided for 27 Senators, and did not contemplate for a hold-over Senator in place of Adams, resigned. The Governor, in the election proclamation of July 28, 1851, directed that Butte and Shasta should elect a Senator, vice Adams, in addition to one from each of those counties. Lewis was elected and his claim to a seat was referred to a committee of the Senate. January 6, 1852, the committee reported that he was entitled to a seat, vice Adams, and he qualified, thus increasing the membership of the Senate from 27 to 28. Died at Oroville, June 26, 1869. | | |

UNITED STATES SENATORS.

Five days after the convening of the first Legislature, and on December 20, 1849, two United States Senators were elected—JOHN C. FREMONT and WILLIAM M. GWIN. They received their credentials and proceeded to Washington, but it was not until September 10, 1850, the day after the admission of California into the Union, that they were sworn in as members of the Senate. Fremont drew the short term, to expire March 4, 1851, and Gwin the long term, to expire March 4, 1855. They served out the periods for which they had been elected.

As the law stood until July 25, 1866, the time for the meeting of the joint convention of the State Senate and Assembly was fixed by a joint resolution of the two houses, and by reason of inability to agree there were sessions that failed to elect a United States Senator, and the State was at times with but one representative in the upper house of Congress. The following shows the successions in the United States Senate from California after the elections for the full term of six years:

Term March 4, 1851, to March 4, 1857.—The Legislature of 1851 failed to elect a successor to Fremont. January 30, 1852, JOHN B. WELLER, Democrat, was elected and served for the remainder of the term.

Term March 4, 1855, to March 4, 1861.—The Legislatures of 1855 and 1856 failed to elect a successor to Gwin. January 13, 1857, WILLIAM M. GWIN, Democrat, was elected to succeed himself, and served for the remainder of the term.

Term March 4, 1857, to March 4, 1863.—January 10, 1857, DAVID C. BRODERICK, Democrat, was elected to succeed Weller. He died in office September 16, 1859, and on October 26th, Governor Weller appointed HENRY P. HAUN, Democrat. January 11, 1860, the Legislature elected MILTON S. LATHAM, Democrat, and he served out the remainder of the term.

Term March 4, 1861, to March 4, 1867.—April 2, 1861, JAMES A. MCDUGALL, Douglas Democrat, was elected to succeed Gwin, and served the full term.

Term March 4, 1863, to March 4, 1869.—February 10, 1863, JOHN CONNESS, Union, was elected to succeed Latham, and served the full term.

Term March 4, 1867, to March 4, 1873.—December 16, 1865, CORNELIUS COLE, Union, was elected to succeed McDougall, and served the full term.

Term March 4, 1869, to March 4, 1875.—December 20, 1867, EUGENE CASSERLY, Democrat, was elected to succeed Conness. He resigned November 28, 1873, and on December 23, 1873, JOHN S. HAGER, Democrat, was elected and served the balance of the term.

Term March 4, 1873, to March 4, 1879.—December 20, 1871, AARON A. SARGENT, Republican, was elected to succeed Cole, and served the full term.

Term March 4, 1875, to March 4, 1881.—December 20, 1873, NEWTON BOOTH, Independent Republican, was elected to succeed Hager, and served the full term.

Term March 4, 1879, to March 4, 1885.—December 19, 1877, JAMES T. FARLEY, Democrat, was elected to succeed Sargent, and served the full term.

Term March 4, 1881, to March 4, 1887.—January 12, 1881, JOHN F. MILLER, Republican, was elected to succeed Booth. He died in office March 8, 1886. Governor Stoneman appointed GEORGE HEARST, Democrat, on March 23d. At an extra session of the Legislature A. P. WILLIAMS, Republican, was elected August 4, 1886, and served out the balance of the term.

Term March 4, 1885, to March 4, 1891.—January 28, 1885, LELAND STANFORD, Republican, was elected to succeed Farley, and served the full term.

Term March 4, 1887, to March 4, 1893.—January 19, 1887, GEORGE HEARST, Democrat, was elected to succeed Williams. He died in office, February 28, 1891. On March 19, 1891, CHARLES N. FELTON, Republican, was elected and served out the balance of the term.

Term March 4, 1891, to March 4, 1897.—January 13, 1891, LELAND STANFORD, Republican, was elected to succeed himself. He died in office June 21, 1893. Governor Markham appointed GEORGE C. PERKINS, Republican, on July 22, 1893. January 23, 1895, Perkins was elected by the Legislature, and served out the balance of the term.

Term March 4, 1893, to March 4, 1899.—January 18, 1893, STEPHEN M. WHITE, Democrat, was elected to succeed Felton, and served the full term.

Term March 4, 1897, to March 4, 1903.—January 13, 1897, GEORGE C. PERKINS, Republican, was elected to succeed himself, and served the full term.

Term March 4, 1899, to March 4, 1905.—The Legislature of 1899 failed to elect a successor to White. At an extra session THOMAS R. BARD, Republican, was elected on February 8, 1900.

Term March 4, 1903, to March 4, 1909.—January 14, 1903, GEORGE C. PERKINS, Republican, was elected to succeed himself, and served the full term.

Term March 4, 1905, to March 4, 1911.—January 11, 1905, FRANK P. FLINT, Republican, was elected to succeed Thomas R. Bard.

Term March 4, 1909, to March 4, 1915.—January 13, 1909, GEORGE C. PERKINS, Republican, was elected to succeed himself.

REPRESENTATIVES IN CONGRESS.

Apportionment.—The Constitution of 1849 provided that at the election on November 13th of that year there should be elected two Representatives in Congress at large. Until 1861 the State was represented in Congress by two Representatives elected at large, and there was no official districting. Under the apportionment based on the Federal census of 1860 California was entitled to three Representatives, and in 1861 the State Central Committees of the various political parties agreed to place on each ticket an additional candidate for Congressman. In that year and in 1863 the three members were elected at large.

The Legislature by an act of April 1, 1864, apportioned the State into three congressional districts, the first embracing the southern, the second the middle, and the third the northern counties.

By an act of March 30, 1872, the State was divided into four congressional districts; by an act of March 13, 1883, into six; by an act of March 11, 1891, into seven; and by an act of March 23, 1901, into eight.

Time of Election.—April 26, 1851, the Legislature passed an act fixing the time for holding the general State elections on the first Wednesday in September of each year, except in years in which presidential elections were to be held, when the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November was set.

The following acts fixing the time for the election of Representatives in Congress have been passed since by the Legislature: April 24, 1852, setting the time at the general election in 1852, and each second year thereafter; April 15, 1858, setting the time at the general election in 1859, and each second year thereafter; April 20, 1863, setting the time at the general election in 1863, and each second year thereafter, except that in leap years it should be held at the time of the presidential elections; April 1, 1864, setting the time at the presidential election in that year, and each second year thereafter at the general elections; March 13, 1866, setting the time at the general election in 1867; March 11, 1868, setting the time at the presidential election in that year; April 4, 1870, setting the time at the general election in 1871; April 1, 1872, setting the time at the presidential election in that year.

Congress passed an act on March 3, 1873, fixing the time for the election of Representatives in Congress at the presidential election in 1876, and each second year thereafter on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November. The original Political Code adopted by the Legislature of 1871-72 provided for the election of Representatives at the general election in 1873 and each second year thereafter. Congress, by an act on May 21, 1874, repealed the Federal law so far as the election of Congressmen in California was concerned, and the code provision governed the election in 1875. The election in 1876 was held in conformity with the Federal law. Congress, on June 11, 1878, passed an act that the congressional election in California should be held on the first Wednesday in September, 1879. Since that time the elections have been held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November in each even-numbered year, in conformity with the provisions of the Federal law.

LUTTRELL, Democrat; Fourth District, ROMUALDO PACHECO, Republican. The Secretary of State refused to issue a certificate of election to Pacheco, there being but one vote majority for him, and his opponent, P. D. Wigginton, having taken steps to contest the election. At the January term, 1877, the State Supreme Court directed that a peremptory writ of mandate issue to the Secretary, commanding him to canvass the vote as it had been transmitted to his office by the County Clerks, and to issue a certificate to the person thus shown to have received the highest number of votes. In accordance with this decision the certificate of election was issued to Pacheco, and he proceeded to Washington, and there took the oath of office on December 3, 1877. Wigginton contested the seat and the House sustained his contest. Wigginton took the oath of office on February 7, 1878, and served out the remainder of the term.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following is a synopsis of the constitutional provisions and laws relating to the principal executive State offices, which have been in force since the organization of the State government:

GOVERNOR.

Election and Term.—The original Constitution provided that at the election at which it was to be submitted to the people—November 13, 1849—there should be elected a Governor, Lieutenant Governor, members of the Legislature, and two members of Congress. All the State officers, except members of the Legislature, were to take office December 15th following, or as soon thereafter as practicable, and their term was fixed at two years. The first Legislature, on April 11, 1850, passed a law providing for the election of the next Governor at the general election in 1851; and by an act passed on March 23, 1850, the general elections were set for the first Monday in October of each year. On April 26, 1851, an amendatory act was passed, changing the time for holding the general State elections to the first Wednesday in September of each year. The amendments to the Constitution, in 1862, extended the term of office of the Governor to four years from the first Monday in December next after election, and the general State elections were set for the first Wednesday in September in each alternate year, commencing with 1863. The Constitution adopted in 1879 provided for the election of the first Governor under it on the first Wednesday in September, 1879, for a term of three years from the first Monday after the first day of January, 1880; that a general State election should be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1880, and each second year thereafter. The term of office of Governor, commencing with the one elected in 1882, was fixed at four years from the first day of January following the election.

Salary.—The Constitution of 1849 fixed the salary of the Governor at $10,000 per annum, to so remain until changed by the Legislature. On May 1, 1851, the salary was fixed at $6,000; on May 11, 1852, at $10,000; on April 21, 1856, at $6,000; and on May 6, 1861, at $7,000. The Constitution as adopted in 1879 fixed the salary at $6,000, but an amendment to section 19 of article V, adopted November 3, 1908, raised the salary to $10,000 per annum.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR.

Election and Term.—The Constitution always provided for the election of a Lieutenant Governor at the same time as the Governor and for the same term. The Lieutenant Governor has always been ex officio President of the Senate, and for a time in the history of the State acted also as Warden of the State Prison. In the event of a vacancy in the office of Governor it was provided that the Lieutenant Governor should be promoted to that office, and the President pro tem. of the Senate should act as Lieutenant Governor. Under the present Constitution, a vacancy in the office of Lieutenant Governor is filled by appointment by the Governor. (People ex rel. John C. Lynch vs. James H. Budd, Governor, 114 Cal. 168.)

Salary.—The original Constitution fixed the compensation of the Lieutenant Governor at $32 per day during the session of the Legislature, with mileage. By an act passed May 1, 1851, the compensation was fixed at $15 per day and mileage; on April 21, 1856, at $12 per day and mileage; and on April 23, 1880, at $10 per day and mileage; these per diems to be paid only during the legislative session. By constitutional amendment adopted November 3, 1908, the salary of the Lieutenant Governor was fixed at $4,000 per annum.

SECRETARY OF STATE.

Election and Term.—The Constitution of 1849 provided that the Secretary of State should be appointed by the Governor, with the advice and consent of the Senate, to hold office for two years. The constitutional amendment of 1862 provided that the Secretary of State should be elected by the people at the same time the Governor was chosen and for the same term. Under the present Constitution the Secretary of State is elected at the same time and for the same term as the Governor.

Salary.—On March 5, 1850, a law was passed fixing the salary of the Secretary of State at $7,000. On May 1, 1851, it was fixed at $3,500; and on May 6, 1861, at $4,000. The Constitution as adopted in 1879 fixed the salary at $3,000, but by amendment adopted November 3, 1908, the salary was fixed at $5,000 per annum.

TREASURER.

Election and Term.—The first Constitution provided that the Legislature should, in joint convention, at the first session, elect a Treasurer, to hold office for the same term as the Governor; and that thereafter the office should be filled by election by the people. The first Legislature, by an act passed April 11, 1850, provided for the election of a Treasurer at the general election in 1851, and each second year thereafter. The amendment of 1862 lengthened the term of the Treasurer to four years, from the first Monday in December next after the election, which was set at the same time as the election of Governor. Under the present Constitution the Treasurer is elected at the same time and for the same term as the Governor.

Salary.—The first Legislature, by an act passed March 5, 1850, fixed the salary of the Treasurer at $9,000. On May 1, 1851, it was fixed at $5,000; on May 11, 1852, at $4,500; on April 21, 1856, at $3,500; and on May 6, 1861, at $4,000. The Constitution adopted in 1879 fixed the salary at $3,000, but it was raised to $5,000 per annum by amendment adopted in 1908.

CONTROLLER.

Election and Term.—The same provisions as relate to the Treasurer.

Salary.—By an act of March 5, 1850, the salary of the Controller was fixed at $8,000; May 1, 1851, at $5,000; May 11, 1852, at $4,500; April 21, 1856, at $3,500; May 6, 1861, at $4,000; and under the new Constitution as originally adopted, at $3,000; as amended in 1908, $5,000.

ATTORNEY GENERAL.

Election and Term.—The same provisions as relate to the Treasurer.

Salary.—The salary of the Attorney General has been fixed as follows: By an act of March 5, 1850, $7,000; May 1, 1851, $1,000; May 11, 1852, $2,000; May 6, 1861, $4,000; by the new Constitution, $3,000, as originally adopted; as amended November 3, 1908, $6,000 per annum.

SURVEYOR GENERAL.

Election and Term.—The same provisions as relate to the Treasurer.

Salary.—The salary of the Surveyor General has been fixed as follows: By an act of March 5, 1850, $7,500; May 1, 1851, $500; May 11, 1852, $2,000, and also $2,000 as Register of the State Land Office. The present Constitution originally fixed the salary at $3,000, but was amended in 1908, fixing it at $5,000 per annum.

CLERK OF THE SUPREME COURT.

Election and Term.—A law was passed February 14, 1850, establishing the office of Clerk of the Supreme Court, and providing that the first incumbent should be elected by the Legislature, that the next Clerk should be elected by the people at the first county election, to be held on the first Monday in April, 1850, to hold office until January 1, 1851. On April 11, 1850, an amendatory law was passed, providing for the election of a Clerk at the general election in October, 1850, and every two years thereafter, to take office on January 1st following each election. On April 28, 1851, a law was passed providing that the Clerk elected in October, 1850, should hold office until January 1, 1853, and that a Clerk should be elected at the general election in 1852, and every two years thereafter, to hold office commencing on the first day of January next after the election. On April 24, 1858, an act was passed providing that a Clerk should be elected at the general election in 1859, and each second year thereafter, to hold office for two years from the first day of January after his election. On April 22, 1863, an act was passed providing for the election of the Clerk at the same time as the Governor, and to hold office for four years from the first Monday in December after his election. The present Constitution prescribes that the Legislature shall provide for the election of the Clerk, and fix his duties and compensation; section 749 of the Political Code, enacted in 1872, provides that he shall be elected at the same time as the Governor, and shall hold office for four years from the first Monday in December next succeeding his election, but the Clerk takes office at the same time as the other State officers provided for in the Constitution of 1879. (See Constitution of California, article XX, section 20.)

Salary.—The salary of the Clerk was $4,000 until the adoption of the new Constitution, when by legislative act it was fixed at $3,000. The Legislature of 1909 increased the salary to $5,000 per annum, which will take effect after the expiration of the current term.

SUPERINTENDENT OF STATE PRINTING.

Election and Term.—By an act passed January 8, 1850, the office of State Printer was created, to be filled and controlled by the Legislature; the term was fixed at two years. The act of April 11, 1850, provided that the Printer should be elected by the Legislature for the same term. On April 29, 1852, a law was passed abolishing the office of State Printer, and the Governor and Controller were authorized to let a contract to do the State printing for a period of nine months from May 1, 1852. On May 1, 1854, the office of State Printer was again created, and it was provided that it should be filled by election by the then Legislature, and that at the general election in 1855, and every two years thereafter, that officer should be elected by the people. On April 22, 1863, provision was made for the election of the Printer by the people, at the same time as the Governor, and for the same term. On March 26, 1872, the office of Superintendent of State Printing was created, and that law took effect at the expiration of the term of the then State Printer. The appointment was to be made by the Governor on or before the first Monday in September, 1875, and no term of office was specified. By an act of March 10, 1891, the Superintendent of State Printing was made an elective office.

Salary.—Originally the compensation of the State Printer was governed by the amount of work performed, but under the law creating the office of Superintendent, the salary was fixed at $3,000. On March 30, 1874, it was reduced to $2,400, and on March 9, 1885, it was increased again to $3,000. On February 22, 1909, the Legislature increased the salary to $5,000 per annum, to take effect immediately.

SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION.

Election and Term.—The original Constitution directed the Legislature to provide for the election by the people of a Superintendent of Public Instruction, to hold office for three years. On April 11, 1850, an act was passed providing for the election of the Superintendent at the general election in 1850, and every third year thereafter. By an act passed May 1, 1851, it was provided that at the general election in 1853 the people should elect a Superintendent for the constitutional term, and that the Superintendent who had been elected in 1850 should hold office until January 1, 1854, and thereafter the term should be three years from the first day of January next after the election. The constitutional amendment of 1862 provided that the Superintendent should be elected at a special election, at which only judicial and school officers should be elected, and that the date of the election should be designated by the Legislature of 1863. The term of office was fixed at four years from the first day of December next after the election. On March 21, 1863, a law was passed providing that such special election should be held on the third Wednesday in October, 1863, and every second year thereafter. The present Constitution provides that the Superintendent shall be elected at the same time as the Governor, and for the same term.

Salary.—On May 11, 1852, the salary of the State Superintendent was fixed at $4,500, to be paid from the commencement of the term of office then existing. On April 25, 1856, it was fixed at $3,500, and on May 6, 1861, it was reduced to $3,000, and was not changed by the adoption in 1879 of the present Constitution, which provides that he shall receive the same salary as the Secretary of State. The amendment to section 19 of article V of the Constitution, adopted in 1908, carries with it an increase of the salary of the Superintendent of Public Instruction to $5,000 per annum.

ADJUTANT GENERAL.

Election and Term.—On April 10, 1850, an act was passed providing that the Legislature should elect on joint ballot an Adjutant General and a Quartermaster General, each to rank as a brigadier general, and to hold office until January 1, 1854. April 25, 1855, an act was passed providing that the Legislature should elect on joint ballot a Quartermaster General, who should perform the duties of Adjutant General as well, with rank of brigadier general, and to hold office for four years. The first election was to take place on or after the first day of April, 1858, when the term of the then incumbent would expire. May 9, 1861, an act was passed providing that the Adjutant General should be appointed by the Commander-in-Chief of the National Guard (the Governor), by and with the consent of the Senate, and to hold office for the same time as the Secretary of State. April 24, 1862, the term of office was fixed at two years by an amendatory statute; by act of April 25, 1863, the term was increased to four years. The Political Code now provides that the Adjutant General shall be appointed by the Governor, to hold office at the pleasure of the appointing power. The office of Adjutant General also carries with it the rank of brigadier general.

Salary.—The act of April 10, 1850, fixed the salary at $1,000 for the Adjutant General and $2,000 for the Quartermaster General; April 25, 1855, the salary of the Quartermaster General and Adjutant General was fixed at $3,000; May 9, 1861, the salary of the Adjutant General was fixed at $1,000, but on the 17th of that month it was raised to $2,000 by an amendatory act. By act of April 24, 1862, the salary was fixed at $3,000, at which figure it remained until March 22, 1909, when the Legislature increased it to $3,600 per annum.

STATE BOARD OF EQUALIZATION.

By an act of the Legislature, approved April 4, 1870, a State Board of Equalization was created, to consist of the Controller of the State and two members to be appointed by the Governor.

This remained the law until the establishment of the codes in 1872, wherein section 352 of the Political Code provided that the Controller of the State should be ex officio member of the board, and the other members to be appointed by the Governor. Section 352 of said code was amended by an act of the Legislature, approved April 1, 1876, and provided that the board should consist of the Governor, Controller, and Attorney General; that the Governor, and in his absence the Controller, should be chairman of the board.

Article XIII, section 9, of the Constitution of 1879, as originally ratified, provided that the board should consist of one member from each congressional district in the State, to be elected by the qualified electors of their respective districts at the general election to be held in 1879, whose term of office, after those first elected, should be four years, and that the Controller of the State should be ex officio a member of the board.

At the time of the adoption and ratification of this constitutional provision the State was divided into four congressional districts, and although this section of the Constitution was amended in 1884, such amendment did not change the apportionment of the State, the number of members of the board, nor their terms of office, but provided that the Legislature shall have power to redistrict the State into four districts as nearly equal in population as practicable, and to provide for the election of the members of said board. Since the adoption of such amendment the Legislature has not passed any law changing the boundaries of the equalization districts.

By an act of the Legislature, approved April 3, 1880, section 352 of the Political Code was amended to conform to the constitutional provision, and provides that they shall elect one of their members as chairman, to hold such office during their pleasure.

By an act of the Legislature, approved March 19, 1907, adding a new section to the Political Code, numbered 125, the counties comprising the several equalization districts are designated, but the boundaries thereof are not altered, and they remain as originally provided for in the Constitution, that is to say, the State Equalization Districts are composed of the counties which were contained within the four Congressional Districts as they existed in 1879. (See map of Equalization Districts of California.)

Salary.—Section 3700 of the Political Code provided that the salary of each of the members (except the Controller) should be $3,000, until March 15, 1909, when the salary was increased to $4,000 per annum.

COMMISSIONER OF TRANSPORTATION.

The act of the Legislature, approved April 3, 1876, provided that the Governor should appoint three persons as Commissioners of Transportation, to hold office for a period of two years, to have their office in the State Capitol, at Sacramento, and to receive an annual salary of $3,000.

The act of the Legislature, approved April 1, 1878, repealed the act of 1876, and also provided that the Governor should appoint one person, to be styled Commissioner of Transportation, to be the legal successor of the board appointed under the act of 1876, such Commissioner to hold office for a period of four years, whose office should be in the State Capitol, and to receive an annual salary of $4,000.

The Commissioner of Transportation was succeeded by the Board of Railroad Commissioners, as provided by the new Constitution adopted in 1879.

An act of the Legislature, approved April 15, 1880, provided that the Commissioner appointed under the act of 1878 should deliver all public property belonging to his office, in his possession or under his control, to the Board of Railroad Commissioners elected pursuant to the provisions of section 22, of article XII, of the Constitution of 1879, which now governs.

RAILROAD COMMISSIONERS.

Section 22, of article XII, of the present Constitution, provides that the State shall be divided into three districts, as nearly equal in population as practicable, in each of which one Railroad Commissioner shall be elected by the qualified electors thereof at the regular gubernatorial elections, and whose term of office shall be four years, commencing on the first Monday after the first day of January next succeeding their election, who shall be qualified electors of the district from which they are elected, and not interested in any railroad or other transportation corporation or company.

Section 23, of article XII, of the Constitution designates the counties comprising the several railroad districts, until the Legislature shall district the State, and until the act approved April 19, 1907, adding section 130 to the Political Code, the Legislature passed no law dividing the State into railroad districts. The provisions of section 130, of said code, simply conform to section 23, of article XII, of the Constitution, making no change in the formation of the districts.

Salary.—The act of the Legislature, approved April 15, 1880, provided that the salary of each Commissioner should be $4,000; that they should elect one of their number president of the board; that the office of said board should be in the city and county of San Francisco, where they should hold sessions at least once a month, and at such other times and places within the State as might be expedient, after public notice given by publication.

On March 19, 1909 (Stats. 1909, page 499), the Legislature passed an act providing for the organization of the Railroad Commission and defining its powers and duties, and repealing all previous acts on that subject. The salary of the Commissioners was increased to $6,000 per annum. Section 1 of the act provides that the board shall have power to elect one of their number as President. Section 40*d* provides that for the purpose of hearing complaints the board shall hold meetings at least once every six months in each of the following cities: San Francisco, Los Angeles, San Diego, Stockton, Sacramento, Oakland, Fresno, San Jose, Santa Barbara, Redding, Bakersfield, Marysville, San Bernardino, and Eureka, and at other points when requested by a petition for a meeting signed by ten shippers. An office is to be kept open daily in the city and county of San Francisco, where regular meetings are to be held at least once a month.

STATE LIBRARIAN.

Election and Term.—January 19, 1850, the Senate adopted a resolution of thanks to John C. Fremont for the presentation by him to the State of one hundred volumes. These books consisted of works on law, medicine, travel, and exploration, and governmental reports. They formed the nucleus of the State Library. On April 9, 1850, an act was passed providing that all books then in the possession of the State or that might thereafter come into its possession should be kept in the office of the Secretary of State, and that that officer should be ex officio State Librarian. March 8, 1861, an act was passed providing that the State Library should be under the control of five trustees, the Governor and Chief Justice of the Supreme Court to be ex officio members, and the others to be John R. McConnell, Joseph W. Winans, and Solomon Heydenfeldt. They were to hold office for four years, and their successors were to be elected by the Legislature in joint convention, but the Governor was to fill vacancies when the Legislature was not in session. The board was empowered to elect a State Librarian, to hold office for four years. On March 21, 1864, this act was amended to give the management and control of the Library to five trustees, the Governor and Chief Justice of the Supreme Court to be ex officio members, and the others to be Dr. John F. Morse, Joseph W. Winans, and Dr. Harvey W. Harkness. They were to hold office for four years, and their successors were to be elected by the Legislature in joint convention. February 28, 1866, an act was passed giving the direction and control of the Library to five trustees, the Attorney General to be an ex officio member, and the others to be Joseph W. Winans, Dr. Harvey W. Harkness, C. G. W. French, and William C.

Belcher. They were to hold office for four years, and their successors were to be elected by the Legislature in joint convention. The original Political Code provided that the Library should be under the control and direction of five trustees, to be elected by the Legislature in joint convention and for a term of four years. The board was empowered to elect a Librarian for a term of four years. February 25, 1899, an act was passed creating a Board of five Library Trustees, to be appointed by the Governor for a term of four years. Three members were to be appointed for a full term after February 28, 1902, and two for a term of two years from that date. Thereafter the successors are to be appointed for the full term. The board is empowered to elect a Librarian for the term of four years.

Salary.—The act of March 8, 1861, fixed the salary of the 'State' Librarian at $2,500; from the adoption of the Codes the salary was $3,000, until March 19, 1909, when the Legislature increased it to $3,600 per annum.

RECORD OF STATE OFFICERS.

Following is a record of the principal State officers since the organization of the State government:

GOVERNORS.

• GEORGE W. WHITMAN, American, elected September 5, 1855; took office January 7, 1856. On February 13, 1857, a resolution was passed by the Assembly impeaching Whitman for misdemeanor in office, and on the 24th, articles of impeachment were reported by a committee; the Senate, on March 9th, convened as a high court of impeachment, and on April 21st Whitman was acquitted. Governor Johnson had, on February 25th, appointed EDWARD F. BURTON, American, Controller, and he performed the duties of the office until the acquittal of Whitman. Burton died at Denver, Colorado, May 11, 1891.

At the election held September 2, 1857, JAMES W. MANDEVILLE, Democrat, was elected Controller, but he did not qualify, having been appointed United States Surveyor General for California a few days before the election. On January 21, 1858, Governor Weller nominated SAMUEL H. BROOKS, Democrat, for the office, but the Senate refused to confirm, and on the 27th the Governor withdrew the nomination, explaining that it "had been made under a misapprehension of some material facts." On February 4th, the Governor nominated AARON R. MELONEY for the office, and the Senate confirmed. Afterwards, on April 26, because some doubts had been expressed in regard to the regularity of the appointment, the Governor again nominated Meloney, and he was again confirmed. Whitman refused to surrender the office, claiming that he was entitled to hold until his successor should be elected and should qualify, and that as Mandeville had been elected, the Governor had no right to appoint. The matter was taken to the Supreme Court, and a final decision was rendered in Meloney's favor at the July term, 1858. He took office by virtue of this appointment and decision on October 12, 1858. Whitman died in Contra Costa County in 1891.

AARON R. MELONEY, Lecompton Democrat, elected September 1, 1858, to serve out the unexpired term. Died at Lafayette, Contra Costa County, March 1, 1861. (See State Senators.)

SAMUEL H. BROOKS, Lecompton Democrat, elected September 7, 1859. Meloney refused to surrender the office, claiming that he had been elected to serve for two years from his election. The Supreme Court decided in favor of Brooks at the January term, 1860, and he took office under that decision. Brooks resigned November 20, 1861.

JAMES S. GILLEN, Democrat, appointed by Governor Downey November 20, 1861, and took office that day.

GILBERT R. WARREN, Republican, elected September 4, 1861; took office January 6, 1862.

WILLIAM B. C. BROWN, Democrat, appointed by Governor Irwin February 7, 1876, and took office that day. At the next general election, on November 7, 1876, D. M. Kenfield and Brown were voted for to fill the vacancy, and Kenfield received a majority of about 3,000. Governor Irwin declined to issue a commission to him upon the ground that no proclamation had been issued calling for the election of a Controller. Kenfield applied for a writ of mandate to compel the issuance of the commission, but his petition was dismissed by the Supreme Court at the April term, 1877. Brown died at Sacramento, April 12, 1882.

D. M. KENFIELD, Republican, elected September 3, 1879; took office January 5, 1880. Died at San Francisco, September 28, 1883.

JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT.

STATE SUPREME COURT.

The original Constitution of California, adopted in 1849, provided for a Supreme Court, to consist of a Chief Justice and two Associate Justices. It further provided, in section 3, of article VI: "The Justices of the Supreme Court shall be elected at the general election by the qualified electors of the State, and shall hold their offices for a term of six years from the first day of January next after the election; provided, that the Legislature shall, at its first meeting, elect a Chief Justice and two Associate Justices of the Supreme Court, by joint vote of both houses, and so classify them that one shall go out of office every two years. After the first election the senior Justice in commission shall be the Chief Justice."

The first Legislature, on February 14, 1850, passed an act to organize the court. It was provided that one Justice should be elected in 1851, one every second year thereafter, and that the Governor should fill vacancies by commission, which should expire at the subsequent general election, when the vacancy should be filled by an election for the remainder of the unexpired term. On the 28th an act was passed authorizing the Clerk of the Supreme Court to rent a suitable room in San Francisco for the March term, 1850, provided that the rent of such room should not exceed $1,000 per month. On March 5th the Legislature fixed the salary of each Justice at $10,000 per annum. On April 13th an act was passed providing for certain special terms in San Francisco, and that afterwards the sessions of the court should be held at the seat of government.

In accordance with the provisions of the Constitution above quoted, the first Legislature, on December 22, 1849, elected S. CLINTON HASTINGS Chief Justice, HENRY A. LYONS first Associate Justice, and NATHANIEL BENNETT second Associate Justice. On February 1, 1850, the Legislature passed a resolution classifying the Justices so that Hastings should go out of office at the end of two years from January 1, 1850, Lyons at the end of four years, and Bennett at the end of six years from that date. On March 11, 1851, a law was passed to have one Justice elected in 1852, and one at the general election every second year thereafter; but on April 28th another act was passed providing for the election of one in 1851, and one every second year thereafter. This Legislature also passed a law providing that the terms of court, until January 1, 1852, should be held in San Francisco, and after that at the seat of government. On May 24th an act was passed providing that thereafter the sessions of the court should be held at the capital of the State. The salaries of the Justices were reduced to $6,000 each on April 21, 1856.

Justice Hastings served out his term, and at the general election held September 3, 1851, SOLOMON HEYDENFELDT, Democrat, was elected to succeed him. Heydenfeldt took office January 1, 1852, and resigned January 6, 1857. Governor Johnson, on the 13th, appointed PETER H. BURNETT to fill the vacancy, and he resigned October 12, 1857. On the 13th, Governor Johnson appointed STEPHEN J. FIELD, Democrat, to serve out the unexpired term. Field had been elected on September 2, 1857, for the full term. This term began on January 1, 1858. In 1863, President Lincoln appointed Field one of the Associate Justices of the Supreme Court of the United States, and on May 20th of that year he resigned his seat on the California bench. The next day Governor Stanford appointed EDWIN B. CROCKER, Republican, to fill the vacancy, and he served until the taking effect of the constitutional amendments of 1862.

Justice Lyons resigned March 31, 1852, and on April 2d Governor Bigler appointed ALEXANDER ANDERSON to fill the vacancy, and he qualified on the 6th. At the general election on November 2, 1852, ALEXANDER WELLS, Democrat, was elected for this short term, and he took his seat on the bench January 3, 1853. Wells was reelected for the full term, September 7, 1853, and he assumed office by virtue of that election January 4, 1854. He died October 31, 1854, and on November 24th Governor Bigler appointed CHARLES H. BRYANT, Democrat, to fill the vacancy. At the general election held September 5, 1855, DAVID S. TERRY, American, was elected by the people, and he assumed office November 15th. Terry resigned September 12, 1859. On the 20th Governor Weller appointed W. W. COPE, Lecompton Democrat, to fill the vacancy. Cope had been elected for the full term at the election held on September 7, 1859, and he took office under the election on January 2d following, and served until the remodeling of the court in 1864.

Justice Bennett resigned October 3, 1851, and on the 11th Governor McDougal appointed HUGH C. MURRAY, Democrat, to fill the vacancy. On November 2, 1852, Murray was elected to succeed himself, and he took office by virtue of that election on January 3d following. Murray was elected for the full term on September 5, 1855, but died September 18, 1857, and Governor Johnson appointed PETER H. BURNETT on October 14th to succeed him. At the election on September 1, 1858, JOSEPH G. BALDWIN, Lecompton Democrat, was elected to fill the remainder of the vacancy, and he assumed office on October 2, 1858. On September 4, 1861, EDWARD NORTON, Republican, was elected for the full term, and took office on January 6th following. He served until the change was effected by the adoption of the constitutional amendments of 1862.

In 1862 the State Constitution was amended to constitute the Supreme Court of a Chief Justice and four Associate Justices, and it provided that the Justices should be elected at special elections, to be provided for by law, at which elections only judicial and school officers should be elected. It was provided further: "The first election for Justices of the Supreme Court shall be held in the year 1863. The Justices shall hold their offices for the term of ten years from the first day of January next after their election, except those elected at the first election, who, at their first meeting, shall so classify themselves, by lot, that one Justice shall go out of office every two years. The Justice having the shortest term to serve shall be Chief Justice."

On March 21, 1863, the Legislature passed an act providing that there should be held on the third Wednesday in October, 1863, and every two years thereafter, an election, to be called the "Special Judicial Election," at which should be elected the Supreme Justices and other judicial and school officers. On April 20th an act was passed to provide for the organization of the new court, and it was enacted that when a vacancy should occur the Governor should fill it by the appointment of a person who should hold office until the next judicial election, and the Justice elected by the people at such election should hold office for the balance of the unexpired term. It was also provided that the terms of the court should be held at the seat of government. The salaries of the Justices were fixed at $6,000 each.

Under this constitutional provision, on October 21, 1863, OSCAR L. SHAFER, LORENZO SAWYER, SILAS W. SANDERSON, JOHN CURREY, and A. L. RHODES—all

Union—were elected Supreme Court Justices. The new court organized January 2, 1864, and in accordance with law the Justices drew lots to determine the tenure of their official terms, with the following result: Shafter drew for ten years, Rhodes for eight, Sawyer for six, Currey for four, and Sanderson for two.

Sanderson was elected to succeed himself October 18, 1865, and resigned January 4, 1870. On the 8th, Governor Haight appointed JACKSON TEMPLE, Democrat, to fill the vacancy, and he assumed office on the 10th. October 18, 1871, ADDISON C. NILES, Republican, was elected. He took office January 1st following, and remained on the bench until the new Constitution took effect.

ROYAL T. SPRAGUE, Democrat, was elected to succeed Currey October 16, 1867; took office January 6, 1868. He died February 24, 1872. On the 4th of March Governor Booth appointed ISAAC S. BELCHER to fill the vacancy. October 15, 1873, ELISHA W. MCKINSTRY, Independent, was elected and took office January 12, 1874, and served until the reorganization of the court under the new Constitution.

October 20, 1869, WILLIAM T. WALLACE, Democrat, was elected to succeed Sawyer. He assumed office January 10, 1870, and served until the new Constitution effected a change in the court.

October 18, 1871, Rhodes was elected to succeed himself, and served until the new court came in.

Shafter resigned December 11, 1867, and Governor Haight appointed JOSEPH B. CROCKETT, Democrat, to succeed him. October 20, 1869, Crockett was elected to succeed himself, and served until the change was effected by the new Constitution.

In 1879 the people adopted the new Constitution, which constituted the Supreme Court of a Chief Justice and six Associate Justices, and it provided: "The Chief Justice and the Associate Justices shall be elected by the qualified electors of the State at large, at the general State elections, at the time and places at which State officers are elected, and the term of office shall be twelve years from and after the first Monday after the first day of January next succeeding their election; provided, that the six Associate Justices elected at the first election shall, at their first meeting, so classify themselves, by lot, that two of them shall go out of office at the end of four years, two of them at the end of eight years, and two of them at the end of twelve years, and an entry of such classification shall be made in the minutes of the court in bank, signed by them, and a duplicate thereof shall be filed in the office of the Secretary of State. If a vacancy occur in the office of a Justice, the Governor shall appoint a person to hold the office until the election and qualification of a Justice to fill the vacancy, which election shall take place at the next succeeding general election, and the Justice so elected shall hold the office for the remainder of the unexpired term. The first election of the Justices shall be at the first general election after the adoption and ratification of this Constitution." The salary was fixed at $6,000 per annum.

Under the provisions of the amendment to the Constitution ratified by the electors at the election held on the 6th day of November, 1906, the salaries of the Justices of Supreme Court were increased to $8,000, to take effect on and after the first day of January, 1907.

September 3, 1879, ROBERT F. MORRISON, Democrat and Workingmen's Party, was elected Justice, and SAMUEL BELL MCKEE, ERSKINE M. ROSS, JOHN R. SHARPSTEIN, J. D. THORNTON, ELISHA W. MCKINSTRY, and M. H. MYRICK—all Democrats and Workingmen's Party, except Myrick, Republican—Associate Justices. The new court organized January 5, 1880, and on the classification, by lot, Ross and Sharpstein drew for four years, McKee and Myrick for eight years, and Thornton and McKinstry for twelve years.

Chief Justice Morrison died in office March 2, 1887, and Governor Bartlett on April 19, 1887, appointed NILES SEARLS, Democrat. November 6, 1888, WILLIAM H. BEATTY, Republican, was elected, and served out the remainder of the term. November 4, 1890, WILLIAM H. BEATTY was elected for a full term, and November 4, 1902, was reelected for a full term to succeed himself.

The following are the successions of Associate Justices since the first election under the new Constitution:

Term January 5, 1880, to January 8, 1883.—JOHN R. SHARPSTEIN and ERSKINE M. ROSS served the full term.

Term January 5, 1880, to January 3, 1887.—SAMUEL BELL MCKEE and MILTON H. MYRICK served the full term.

SUPREME COURT COMMISSIONERS.

March 12, 1885, the Legislature passed an act that provided the Supreme Court should appoint three commissioners to assist the court in the performance of its duties; said commissioners to hold office for the term of four years and to receive a salary equal to that of the Justices of the Supreme Court.

February 15, 1889, an act was passed that provided that the Supreme Court should appoint five commissioners to assist the court in the performance of its duties. The commissioners were to hold office for the term of four years and to receive a salary equal to that of the Justices of the Supreme Court.

January 31, 1893, an act was passed that provided that the Supreme Court should, upon the expiration of the term of office of the Supreme Court Commissioners, appoint five others to fill the positions for the term of four years and at a salary to each equal to that of a Justice of the Supreme Court.

March 2, 1897, an act was passed that provided that the Supreme Court should, upon the expiration of the term of office of the then Supreme Court Commissioners, appoint five commissioners for the term of two years and that they should receive a salary equal to that of the Justices of the Supreme Court.

February 17, 1899, March 12, 1901, and March 18, 1903, similar acts were passed that provided for the appointment by the Supreme Court of five commissioners for the term of two years from and after their appointment, to assist the court in the performance of its duties. Said commissioners to receive a salary equal to that of the Justices of the Supreme Court.

Appointed under Act of March 18, 1903.—George H. Smith, John Haynes, James A. Cooper, N. P. Chipman, Wheaton A. Gray.

Under the provisions of section 25 of article VI of the Constitution as amended and ratified at the election held on the 8th day of November, 1904, the Supreme Court Commissioners was abolished at the expiration of the term of office of those appointed under the act of 1903.

DISTRICT COURTS OF APPEAL.

At the twenty-fifth session of the Legislature, on March 14, 1903, an amendment was proposed to certain sections of article VI of the Constitution, relating to the Judicial Department of the State, the purpose of which was to submit to a vote of the people a plan to create three District Courts of Appeal and to define the jurisdiction thereof. Section 25, a new section, was proposed, providing for abolishing the Supreme Court Commission at the expiration of its current term of office. It was also proposed to amend section 4 so that upon the ratification of the amendment the Governor should appoint nine persons as Justices of the Appellate Courts to serve until the first Monday after the first day of January, in the year 1907, and that at the election in 1906, nine such Justices should be elected to take their seats in January, 1907, and the Justices of each District Court should so classify themselves, by lot, that one of them should go out of office at the end of four years, one at the end of eight years, and one at the end of twelve years. These amendments were adopted at the general election on the 8th day of November, 1904. It was also provided that the salaries of the Appellate Judges should be the same as that of the Supreme Court Justices, or $6,000 per annum, which was the figure at that time.

By constitutional amendment adopted at the general election of 1906, amending section 17 of article VI, the annual salary of the Justices of the Supreme Court was increased from $6,000 to $8,000 per annum and that of the Justices of the District Courts of Appeal was fixed at $7,000.

On the 10th day of April, 1905, the Governor made appointments as follows:

For the First District, RALPH C. HARRISON, Presiding Justice; JAMES A. COOPER and SAMUEL P. HALL, Associate Justices.

For the Second District, WHEATON A. GRAY, Presiding Justice; GEORGE H. SMITH and MATTHEW T. ALLEN, Associate Justices.

For the Third District, NORTON P. CHIPMAN, Presiding Justice; ABRAHAM J. BUCKLES and CHARLES E. McLAUGHLIN, Associate Justices.

At the general election held on the 6th day of November, 1906, the following Justices were elected for the said courts, viz.:

For the First District, JAMES A. COOPER, Presiding Justice; SAMUEL P. HALL and FRANK H. KERRIGAN, Associate Justices.

For the Second District, MATTHEW T. ALLEN, Presiding Justice; JAMES W. TAGGART and VICTOR E. SHAW, Associate Justices.

For the Third District, NORTON P. CHIPMAN, Presiding Justice; E. C. HART and ALBERT G. BURNETT, Associate Justices.

The classification by lot resulted as follows: Justices Hall, Taggart, and Chipman drew the twelve-year term; Justices Kerrigan, Allen, and Hart drew the eight-year term, and Justices Cooper, Shaw, and Burnett drew the four-year term.

GENERAL STATE ELECTIONS, 1849-1908.

The original Constitution provided that at the election for its submission to the people on November 13, 1849, there should be elected a Governor, Lieutenant Governor, and two Members of Congress; that the other State executive and judicial officers should be elected by the first Legislature, and thereafter chosen at general elections by the people.

ELECTION NOVEMBER 13, 1849.

At this election there were practically no partisan nominations and the candidates were independent. A mass meeting of Democrats was held at San Francisco October 25, 1849—the first political party gathering in the State—but no formal nominations were made. At the election the following candidates were voted for, and the vote was:

Governor—Peter H. Burnett, 6,716; Winfield S. Sherwood, 3,188; John A. Sutter, 2,201; William M. Steuart, 619; John W. Geary, 1,475; with 32 scattering. Lieutenant Governor—John McDougal, 7,374; Richard Roman, 2,368; Francis J. Lippett, 1,060; John B. Frisbie, 1,558; A. M. HISTORY OF THE SEAT OF STATE GOVERNMENT.

Action of First Constitutional Convention, 1849.—The first Constitutional Convention of California met in Colton Hall, Monterey, September 1, 1849, and on the 26th the question of the location of the seat of State government came up upon the consideration of the report of the Committee on Miscellaneous Provisions of the Constitution. That Committee reported the following as the first section of article XI;

The first session of the Legislature shall be held in the Pueblo de San José, which place shall be the permanent seat of government until removed by law; provided, however, that two thirds of all the members elected to each house of the Legislature shall concur in the passage of such a law.

Henry W. Halleck, then Secretary of State under General Riley, the Military Governor, and a member of the Convention from Monterey, offered the following as a substitute:

The first session of the Legislature under this Constitution shall be held at Monterey, and the subsequent sessions at the permanent seat of government, which shall be the Pueblo de San José, unless otherwise directed by a majority of all the members elected to each house of the Legislature.

In the lengthy debate which followed, the delegates from Monterey represented that the amendment was offered merely as a compromise; that they were willing that the seat of government should be changed to San José after the adjournment of the first Legislature; that if the first Legislature should meet at San José in the following December, as had been proposed, it would be difficult for the people of that town to provide proper accommodations; that they were authorized by the people of Monterey to tender Colton Hall and other suitable buildings to the State for the use of the Legislature and the other State officers; that the capital should not be removed from Monterey without some notice, as that place had been, with the exception of a few years, the seat of government of the country since 1781; that it was true that the accommodations in Monterey for the members of the convention, from circumstances entirely beyond the control of the inhabitants, had been very scanty, but that difficulty would be remedied before the meeting of the first Legislature; that the government records were then at Monterey, and that they could not be legally removed until after the new government had gone into operation and had changed the location of the capital, so that, therefore, if the first Legislature should meet at San José its session would be held at quite a distance from the place where the official records would be kept; that the question of the removal of the capital had been sprung on the people of Monterey, and that the people of San José had unexpectedly presented to the convention maps showing the advantages of their town, and that Monterey was the center of the population of the State, and was more accessible generally than San José. The delegates from San José argued that that place was the geographical center of the State; that because Monterey had been the seat of government for years was no reason why the removal should not be made; that they had been authorized by the local authorities of San José to tender to the State for the use of the Legislature a furnished building free of expense. They presented a plan of their town, and stated that the local authorities by a resolution passed on the 8th, had unanimously resolved to permanently donate to the State a square of thirty-two acres, and valued at $60,000, provided the capital should be removed to that place at the first session of the Legislature; that until the capitol was built they would tender gratuitously for the use of the Legislature a building, which was then being erected, 70 feet long, 35 feet wide, and 21 feet high.

Rodman M. Price, of San Francisco, moved to amend the substitute by striking out "Monterey" and inserting "San Francisco." He said that he had not been authorized by his people to offer a lot of ground or a building for the accommodation of the Legislature, but he knew that suitable accommodations would be furnished, and that ground for the permanent buildings would be freely donated. Suggestions were made also to locate the seat of government at San Luis Obispo, at Benicia, at Stockton, and at Santa Barbara. The amendment of Price to insert "San Francisco" in the substitute was lost. A motion to strike out all after the word "San José" in the substitute was also lost. The substitute was then rejected—fifteen to twenty-three—and the section as reported by the committee was adopted—twenty-three to fourteen—and became a portion of the Constitution of the State.

San Jose the Capital, 1849.—The session of the first Legislature commenced at San José, December 15, 1849. When the session opened, the town could not accommodate the large increase in population so suddenly thrown upon it, and complaint was made by the members that all the rooms, instead of being reserved for their use, had been rented to speculators, and either held at high prices or hired to lobbyists. The rooms which had been fitted up by the people of the town for the accommodation of the two branches of the Legislature were in separate buildings at some distance apart, and were poorly adapted for legislative purposes. The State House, in which the Assembly met, was a large adobe structure, which had been built by Sansevain & Rochon on the south half of lot 6, block 1, range 1 south of the base line, which is on the east side of Market Square. It had been built for a hotel, but was the most appropriate house in the town for the accommodation of the Legislature. The Town Council had intended to lease the house for the use of the State at the rate of $4,000 per month, but upon reconsideration they decided to purchase the property. The owners of the building being unwilling to take the municipal authorities for security, several citizens executed a note for $34,000, and the deed to the property was delivered to trustees, to be conveyed to the town whenever the payment for it should be made. Several years afterwards the trustees sued the Town Council for the money that had been advanced. This building was 60 feet long, 40 feet wide, two stories high, with a piazza in front. The upper story contained but one room, with a stairway leading thereto. This room was occupied by the Assembly. The lower story was divided into four rooms. The largest one, 40 by 20 feet, was afterwards fitted up for the Senate chamber. The other rooms were used by the Secretary and various committees. The building was destroyed by fire on April 29, 1853. The San Francisco Alta of the 30th contained this news item announcing the destruction of the building:

Fire at San Jose.—At a quarter past five o'clock yesterday morning, the courthouse, formerly the State House, in San José, was discovered to be on fire, and in a very short time the building was entirely destroyed. The loss is about $5,000. The fire was undoubtedly the work of an incendiary. When it was discovered a box of coals was seen under the floor, and the supposed object was to rescue several prisoners who are now in the jail which adjoins the courthouse. The purpose, however, was not attained; the thick adobe walls of the old jail were fireproof. The county records were all saved.

Until the Senate moved into the State House, the sittings of that body were held in the house of Isaac Branham, on the southwest corner of Market Plaza. On December 4, 1849, the authorities at Monterey authorized their delegation "to put at the disposal of the Legislature the whole premises known by the name of Colton Hall, which consists of two large rooms on the ground floor, suitable for the Senate and Assembly, one large saloon above for the Legislature, and two small back rooms for the Secretary, all with comfortable fireplaces." A proposition was also made by the citizens of San Francisco to provide accommodations if the Legislature should remove to that city. There was a strong disposition on the part of the members of the Legislature to remove to Monterey and accept the offer of Colton Hall, but the dreadful state of the roads prevented any change during that session. On the 18th the Senate appointed a committee to secure a suitable and properly furnished room for the use of that body, and on the 21st the committee reported that they had conferred with a committee of citizens of San José, and had concluded that the lower part of the State House, in the upper story of which the sessions of the Assembly were being held, was the only practicable place that could be obtained in the town. They also reported that the people of San José would have the hall prepared for occupation immediately, and that it would be assigned to their use free of charge. The Senate decided to accept the State House room, and that body moved into it on the 28th.

Removal Question, 1849-50.—The subject of the permanent location of the seat of the State government early occupied the attention of the first Legislature. The inferior accommodations which had been provided by the people of San José, as well as its then unsatisfactory geographical position, created a strong desire on the part of the members and a great number of the people for a change. At first there was a strong sympathy for the project of an immediate removal to Monterey, but as time wore on it died away, and the bills that had been introduced to provide for the removal of the capital to that town were defeated. On January 29, 1850, a resolution was adopted by the Senate, directing the Building Committee to report a bill to provide for the location of the capital at some point on the bays approachable by the largest class of steamers, and distant from any town then laid out.

On February 18th, the Town Council of Monterey tendered to the State the free use of the public buildings there for a period of five years. A proposition was made to the Legislature on December 17, 1849, by Stevenson & Parker, for the location of the seat of government at "New York of the Pacific." They proposed to erect upon one of the squares of that city, or upon such other site as might be designated, suitable buildings, of such size as the Legislature might agree upon, for the use of the Legislature, the State officers, and for the Governor as a residence, and to furnish them in a manner that would equal the furniture used in the legislative chambers at Washington. The entire cost was not to exceed $100,000, and the buildings were to be completed by January 1, 1851. The grounds and buildings were to be given to the State, and in case they ceased to be used by the State, they were to revert to the original owners. The same parties, on January 17, 1850, proposed further, to have ready by May 1, 1850, suitable offices for the State officers, accommodations for the Supreme Court, and a residence for the Governor, to be used temporarily until the permanent buildings could be erected, and they offered to give security for the performance of the terms of their offer.

On January 30th, James F. Reed, a citizen of San José, proposed to donate four blocks, in all 420 by 220 varas, to be selected by the Legislature, from his addition to that town, as a site for the State buildings. In addition, he proposed to give one hundred and sixty-eight lots to be sold at auction, the money from the sale of which was to be applied to the erection of the buildings. If the Legislature concluded that two blocks would be sufficient, he then proposed to give two hundred lots, and in either event the State would get the fee simple title to the site.

Charles White, on the same day, proposed to donate a tract of land one and one half miles square, situated about three miles distant from the then legislative hall at San José, which land was eligible for building lots and contained building stone. The State was to reserve sufficient land for public use and sell the balance. One third of the net proceeds from the sales was to go to White, and the balance to the State, to be used in the erection of the buildings.

On February 4th, John Townsend and others offered, in case the capital should be located at San José, to donate to the State about two hundred acres of land in that vicinity, from the sale of which a building fund could be realized.

Munificent Proposition of General Vallejo, 1850.—The proposition of General M. G. Vallejo, however, was the most munificent. On April 3, 1850, he proposed to lay out a city upon the straits of Carquinez, upon grounds to be selected by five commissioners, three to be appointed by the Legislature and two by himself; to grant the State one hundred and fifty-six acres of land, and to donate and pay to the State within two years after the acceptance of his proposition $370,000, to be applied to the erection of public buildings. He asked that his proposition be submitted to vote of the people at the next general election, and offered to give bonds for the performance of the terms of his contract.

The citizens of Monterey afterwards tendered, in addition to their public buildings, all the land that would be needed, together with one thousand acres for a botanical garden or model farm.

Vallejo Selected as Seat of Government, 1850-51.—The Committee on Public Buildings reported in favor of accepting the Vallejo proposition, and on April 2 1850, an act was passed and approved directing the Governor to submit to the people at the following general election the various propositions that had been made for the location of the capital, and the Surveyor General was directed to examine the various localities that had been proffered, and report to the next Legislature.

At the general State election held October 7, 1850, the people voted on the propositions, with the following results: Vallejo, 7,477; San José, 1,292; San Diego, 14; Monterey, 399; Santa Cruz, 2; Reed's proposition, 651; Gilroy, 71; Eureka, 301; Stockton, 6; Sacramento, 160; San Francisco, 25; Benicia, 70; Nevada, 82; Downieville, 150; Hamilton, 10; Yuba City, 14; scattering, 5.

At the opening of the second legislative session, in 1851, General Vallejo, and the parties interested with him in obtaining a removal of the seat of government from San José to Vallejo, appeared at the former place and exerted themselves to consummate the change. They succeeded in turning a strong current in favor of their project, but the scheme had also an able and energetic opposition. On January 14, 1851, Vallejo presented a communication to the Senate, in which he stated he was prepared to give bonds, with ample security, for the fulfillment of the proposition which he had submitted to the preceding Legislature. On the 16th, the Surveyor General submitted a report upon the advantages and disadvantages of the different localities proposed for the establishment of the capital, and the report favored a removal to Vallejo. The next day the majority of the Senate Committee on Public Buildings reported in favor of accepting Vallejo's proposition, but George B. Tingley, from the same committee, submitted a minority report on the 20th, in which he vigorously opposed the change and favored San José for the seat of government. The majority of the committee reported a bill in accordance with their views, and it was passed by the Senate on the 23d by a vote of eleven to two. The next day Tingley filed a written protest against the passage of the bill, upon the grounds that Vallejo could and would pay the $370,000 in State scrip, which was then worth but fifty cents on the dollar, and that the change of the capital would be injurious to the State.

An effort was made in the House to defeat the bill. The citizens of San José sent a communication to the Assembly offering, if the capital should be retained at that city, to donate to the State $406,000 worth of land, and to furnish accommodations for the Legislature and State officers free of charge until such time as the State should become able to pay rent. On February 1st the removal bill came up for discussion in the House. The chamber was crowded with interested spectators. After a warm debate, it was passed by a vote of twenty-six to eight. This act provided that after the close of that session Vallejo should be the permanent seat of government, provided General Vallejo should submit a satisfactory bond, to be approved by the Legislature and Governor, conditioned that he would faithfully carry out the terms of his offer; that he would provide for the space of three years a State House and other offices of State equal to or better than those then occupied and without expense to the State; and that in case he refused or failed to perform the conditions of his proposition, the law would become void. The Governor approved the bill on the 4th, and on the same day Vallejo submitted his bond, which was approved after a great deal of opposition and discussion.

Vallejo the Capital, 1851.—Governor McDougal caused the governmental archives to be removed from San José to Vallejo in June, 1851. General Vallejo was slow in performing his part of the contract, and in September it was found that the State House and offices were not sufficiently completed to preserve the public records or to accommodate the public business, and the Governor ordered a removal back to San José, which was accordingly done. As the time approached for the assembling of the Legislature the question as to where it should meet was much discussed. It was held by some that Vallejo was the seat of government, and that the Legislature would have to meet there at all events, while others claimed that inasmuch as General Vallejo had not fulfilled the terms of his proposition the removal act was void, and that San José was still the capital. On December 30, 1851, a meeting of members elect to the Legislature was held in San Francisco for the purpose of consulting as to the proper place for holding the session. Twelve Senators and thirty Assemblymen were present, and after a debate and the reception of the opinion of Attorney General McDougall that Vallejo was by law the seat of government, it was decided to meet at that place. Accordingly, on January 5, 1852, the third session of the Legislature began at Vallejo. The building provided was of wood. It was afterwards destroyed by fire. When the Legislature met the State House was entirely unfurnished, and the rostrums for the presiding officers had not been built. So uncertain had it been whether the Legislature would meet there that the inhabitants of that city were ill prepared to accommodate the increase in the population. Rooms and beds were scarce, and upwards of one hundred persons were forced to seek quarters on board the steamer Empire, on which they had come up. Chairs were so scarce in the town that the members were seated in their halls on temporary benches made of boards placed on stools and nail kegs. It was not until the 8th that a sufficient number of chairs arrived to comfortably seat them. The legislators soon began to complain that their wardrobes were becoming soiled, and that there was not even a washerwoman in town to keep them in clean collars. To add to the discomfort, food of all kinds became exceedingly scarce. While work was prosecuted with energy on the State House, it was yet some time before it was in anything like order. A strong disposition was manifested for a removal of the Legislature to some other city that could afford superior accommodations.

Removal Question, 1852.—On December 29, 1851, the Court of Sessions of Sacramento County passed a resolution tendering to the Legislature the newly completed courthouse at Sacramento in which to hold the sessions, and on that evening a mass meeting of the citizens of that city was held and the action of the court was indorsed, and as an additional inducement, they proposed to tender to the State officers and members of the Legislature a grand complimentary ball on the evening of January 13, 1852. The Common Council of San Francisco, on January 5th, invited the Legislature to meet in their city. The people of San José offered, as an inducement to hold the session there, to board the members at the rate of $14 per week, and the citizens of Benicia tendered the free use of suitable buildings at that place. On the first day of the session protests were presented to each house against meeting at Vallejo, upon the ground that General Vallejo had not complied with the terms of his contract; that, therefore, the law designating his city as the seat of government was void, and that if the session were held there the General would insist that it amounted to an acceptance, on the part of the State, of Vallejo as the capital. On the 7th, Governor McDougal transmitted to the Senate a written protest against the Legislature meeting at Vallejo, based substantially on the same grounds. The feeling in favor of a removal grew stronger each day. On the 10th the people of Vallejo memorialized the Legislature to allow them another week to prepare suitable accommodations, but their petition was laid on the table.

Session at Sacramento, 1852.—On January 9, 1852, the Assembly adopted a joint resolution for a removal to Sacramento, and to meet in that city on the 13th. The next day the matter came up in the Senate and was defeated by a tie vote, but on the 12th both houses adjourned, to meet at Sacramento on the 16th. The steamer Empire left Vallejo for Sacramento, with the Legislature, at three o'clock on the afternoon of the 13th, and reached the latter city the next day. A dense crowd of people was at the landing awaiting her arrival, and she was received with the firing of cannon and other manifestations of appreciation. The work of fitting up the Sacramento courthouse was immediately commenced, and by noon on the 16th everything was arranged, and the two houses met in it. The grand ball was given on that evening by the citizens of Sacramento, who charged themselves $20 apiece for the tickets. A joint resolution was adopted on the 16th authorizing the Governor to have the State archives removed from San José to Sacramento, to remain during the session, and requiring the Governor and the executive State officers to reside in Sacramento during the session. The State officers prepared to obey the order, when an injunction was served upon them, issued upon the petition of J. D. Hoppe, and other citizens of San José, who claimed that their city was the true seat of government. The restraining order was dissolved, however, and a few days afterwards the records were boxed up and shipped to the new capital, where they arrived on the 21st.

On April 30, 1852, an act was passed recognizing Vallejo as the permanent seat of government, and directing the Governor to remove the archives and State offices from Sacramento to that city without unnecessary delay upon the adjournment of the Legislature. Early in the session a joint committee was appointed to confer with General Vallejo to ascertain if he intended to carry out the terms of his agreement, and on January 24th that gentleman addressed a letter to the committee stating that since he had made the proposition he had become so embarrassed as to be unable to perform his obligations, and asked that his bond be canceled. On March 7th the city of Sacramento was inundated by high water, and there was for a time a disposition to remove the Legislature to San Francisco.

General Vallejo Fails to Fulfill His Contract—Benicia the Capital, 1853.—As in the preceding year, as the time for the meeting of the Legislature of 1853 approached, the question as to where the session should be held was agitated. General Vallejo had become so embarrassed as not to be able to perform the conditions of his proposition, and the accommodations at the "permanent seat of government" were but little better than those which had been afforded the Legislature in 1852. The disposition was strong to have the Legislature removed to some other city immediately after it was organized at Vallejo. The citizens of Benicia and Sacramento held out flattering inducements for a change to their cities respectively, with the odds largely in favor of the former place, where it was urged there would be no danger of a flood, such as had rendered Sacramento so unpleasant in 1852. Immediately on the organization of the Legislature, resolutions were introduced to adjourn the session to San José, to Benicia, and to Sacramento, but they failed. The removal question, however, soon absorbed everything else, and the issue was made between Vallejo and Benicia. The citizens of the latter place agreed to donate the free use of their new city hall to the Legislature, to provide suitable offices for the State officials, and to pay the expenses of the removal, if the Legislature would meet in their city.

On February 4, 1853, the Assembly adopted a resolution to adjourn to meet Benicia on the 11th. On the same day the Senate concurred, and Vallejo agreed to lose the Legislature. The same day an act was passed, the preamble of which recited that by the law which located the capital at Vallejo it was provided that if General Vallejo failed or refused to comply with the terms of his proposition, whole or in part, the act should become void; and that General Vallejo had promised the Legislature to be released from the performance of his bond given under that act, and had expressed his inability to comply with its conditions. It therefore provided that the permanent seat of government should, on and after February 5, 1853, be established at Benicia, if Vallejo should fail or refuse to comply with the conditions of his bond, or should be released from it. The act also provided that he should be released upon condition of his waiving all claims for relief or damages against the State, founded upon the location of the capital at or its removal from Vallejo. On the 14th General Vallejo executed the release. It was approved by the State authorities, and on the 24th the Mayor of Benicia executed a deed to the State for the city hall property, conditioned that in case the seat of government should be thereafter removed from that city the property should revert to the municipality. On May 18th another act was passed declaring Benicia the permanent seat of government in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution, and it was declared to be unlawful for any court or judge to grant a writ of mandamus or other order directed against the State officers to compel them to remove the State archives or offices from Benicia to any other point in the State. The building in which the Legislature met at Benicia was built of brick and was two stories in height. The rear end of the lower story constituted the Senate chamber, which was approached by a hallway from the main entrance. There were four large rooms in the building on that floor, opening into the hallway between the Senate chamber and the entrance. In the upper story the Assembly chamber occupied the rear part, and the front of the building was divided into two rooms. The building is still standing, and is used as a town hall and theater.

Sacramento Made the Capital, 1854.—As early as October, 1853, a movement was set on foot to remove the permanent seat of government from Benicia to Sacramento, and soon after the organization of the Legislature of 1854 the question of removal was second in importance to the election of United States Senator. It was argued that the conveniences to the members at Sacramento would be greater, the accommodations for State officers would be more ample, and greater security would be provided for the public records; and there was a strong disposition to make the change. Governor Bigler, in his annual message of January 4, 1854, said:

"Although deeply impressed with the importance, as well as the necessity, of economizing in every department of the State government, I feel it incumbent upon me to direct your attention to the insecure condition of the public archives. The entire public records, as well as the State Library, now numbering about four thousand volumes, are kept in fragile frame buildings, without fireproof vaults or safes. The public records are now invaluable, and if destroyed, could not be replaced, and their loss would involve the State and individuals in serious difficulties. In the other states of the confederacy, the officers of State are provided with substantial brick or stone buildings, and the public records rendered entirely secure by being deposited in fireproof vaults or safes, provided for that purpose. In this truly important matter, we are admonished of the necessity of increased safeguards by the many and terrible conflagrations which have occurred during the past year. I trust, therefore, that you will, without delay, adopt such measures as you may deem necessary to render entirely secure the public archives in the several offices, and also the State Library."

On January 6th the Governor sent a special message to the Legislature, transmitting a communication from the Mayor and Common Council of Sacramento, offering if the capital should be removed to that city, to grant to the State government the free use of the courthouse and other suitable rooms, for the accommodation of the State officers, together with fireproof vaults for the security of the public moneys and records; to remove the members of the Legislature and the State officers and the government furniture and archives, free of charge, from Benicia; and to grant to the State, for a building lot for the capitol, the public square between I and J and Ninth and Tenth streets. The courthouse tendered for the use of the Legislature was the same building in which the session of 1852 had been held. It was of brick, 60 by 80 feet in dimensions, and two stories high. The people of Benicia offered the free use of the buildings then occupied for State purposes, for as long a time as they might be desired. The propositions were referred to special committees, to whom, also, were referred the various resolutions and bills that had been offered on the subject of the capital removal.

Early in the session joint and concurrent resolutions were offered to remove the Legislature to Sacramento, but they failed, and it looked very much as if the removal proposition would be defeated. Finally, on February 9th, A. P. Catlin introduced a bill in the Senate to fix the permanent seat of government at Sacramento. In the Assembly there was a clear majority in favor of the removal, but in the Senate Benicia had the advantage. Catlin, however, succeeded in carrying the bill through the Senate. The measure passed that body on the 18th by a vote of thirteen to eleven. The Senate adjourned, however, without assenting to the title of the bill, and on the 20th that question came up. After a number of amendments had been voted down the title was approved. A motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill had been passed was then made, and the remainder of the day was consumed in voting on motions for delay, when the whole matter went over until the next day by the withdrawal of enough members to leave no quorum. On the 21st a motion to indefinitely postpone the motion to reconsider was carried. The bill went to the Assembly on that day, and a motion to reject it was defeated by a vote of thirty-two to thirty-five. On the 23d the bill was referred to a committee. It was favorably reported on the next day, and came up on its passage. Various amendments were defeated, and the bill was passed as it had come originally from the Senate, by a vote of thirty-nine to thirty-five. On the 25th a motion to reconsider was defeated, and on that day it met with the approval of Governor Bigler. The act repealed all former acts in relation to the localities of the capital, and provided that from and after one day after its passage the seat of government should be located permanently at Sacramento. A resolution to adjourn to the new capital was immediately passed. On the 28th the Governor and the other State officers arrived at Sacramento, where they were received with numerous demonstrations of rejoicing. The Sutter Rifles paraded the streets, acting as an escort to the Governor. The procession, after marching through the principal streets, halted in front of the Orleans Hotel. Here Alderman Spaulding delivered an address of welcome to the State officers and members of the Legislature. Speeches were also made by Governor Bigler, Secretary of State J. W. Denver, Mayor Hardenburg, J. W. Coffroth, and others. On March 1st the Legislature again met in the Sacramento courthouse.

Litigation, 1854.—On March 24, 1854, an act was passed requiring the sessions of the Supreme Court, which were then being held in San Francisco, to be held at the seat of government; and on the 27th Justices Heydenfeldt and Wells decided, Chief Justice Murray dissenting, that San José was the legal capital, and that all the acts in relation to removal which had been passed were unconstitutional. An order was entered by the court directing the transfer of the judicial archives to San José, and ordering the Sheriff of Santa Clara County to provide suitable accommodations. On the 30th the change was made.

After the election in 1854 the question of the removal of the capital was again discussed, and so confident were the people of San José that the seat of government would be removed to that city, in view of the favorable ruling of the Supreme Court, that extensive preparations were made there for the accommodation of the State officers and the Legislature. On October 21st a writ of mandate was issued by Judge C. P. Hester, of the Third District Court, at the instance of Thomas L. Vermeule and others, directing the State officers to show cause why they should not forthwith remove their offices and papers to San José. The Attorney General answered on the 28th, and on the hearing, the Judge made an order directing that the removal be made. The matter was carried to the Supreme Court, and on December 28th, Justices Murray and Bryan (who had been appointed, vice Wells, deceased) filed opinions reversing the judgment of Judge Hester, and an order was made directing the Clerk of the Supreme Court to remove the records of that court to Sacramento, and ordering the Sheriff of that county to provide suitable accommodations for the court. The court then adjourned to meet at Sacramento on the first Monday of February, 1855. Their decision was that Sacramento was the legal State capital. Justice Heydenfeldt dissented, and held that as the act to remove the capital to Sacramento had not been passed by a two-thirds vote in the Legislature, it was unconstitutional. He also held that the act to remove to Vallejo was unconstitutional, for the reason that it appeared on its face that in its passage the Legislature had been prompted by a consideration of the amount of money which General Vallejo had agreed to pay, which act had amounted to a sale of the seat of government, and that it had not been the deliberate judgment of the Legislature. He therefore concluded that San José was the legal capital.

First Two Capitol Buildings at Sacramento.—The first courthouse that was erected at Seventh and I streets, in Sacramento City, and in which the sessions of 1852 and 1854 were held, was commenced in June, 1850, and completed December 24, 1851. It was destroyed in the great fire of July 13, 1854, which consumed a large portion of the business part of the city. On the 14th the Democratic State Journal gave the following as one of the incidents connected with the destruction of the courthouse:

State Capitol at Sacramento—1855-1869.

Taken down in 1910 to make room for a new Sacramento County Courthouse.

Patriotic.—When the fire threatened the courthouse with destruction, the Governor (Bigler), who was present, and who had been working from the commencement of the fire wherever Sacramento most needed a soldier, asked those present to assist him in saving the furniture. To this many objected, on the ground that private parties, who could not suffer the loss as well as the county, needed their services. A full-length portrait of Washington was standing against the southern wall, and, pointing to it, the Governor said, "See, there is the portrait of the father of your country; will you permit it to be destroyed?" when a general rush was made for the portrait, and it was saved.

The portrait thus preserved now hangs in the present Capitol.

Immediately after the fire a contract was entered into between Joseph Nougues and the county officers for the erection of a new county courthouse. As originally arranged, the building answered the following description: Extreme height, 61 feet; dimensions, 80 by 120 feet; with a portico supported by ten pillars, 3 feet 6 inches in diameter by 31 feet 6 inches in height. The ground floor was devoted to a county prison. On the same floor were two separate offices containing fireproof vaults, and occupied by the State Controller and State Treasurer. The second floor was devoted to a Senate chamber, 57 by 30 feet, and an Assembly room, 72 feet 8 inches by 41 feet 4 inches, together with nine rooms for clerks and officers of the Legislature. The style of architecture was Ionic. The original contract price was $100,600, and the subsequent contracts made the total cost of the building to the county $240,000. The cornerstone was laid September 27, 1854, with Masonic honors, and the brick work was completed November 9th following. The building was finished January 1, 1855. It was rented to the State for capitol purposes at an annual rental of $12,000, and was used for that purpose from 1855 until the completion of the present capitol.

Contemplated Capitol Building at Sacramento, 1856.—On April 18, 1856, the Legislature passed a law providing for the construction of a capitol building on the public square between I and J and Ninth and Tenth streets in the city of Sacramento. By the act Controller Whitman, Secretary of State Douglass, and G. Griswold were appointed a Board of Capitol Commissioners, with power to make contracts and superintend the erection of the building. The proposed capitol was to be ready for occupation on or before January 1, 1858, and the cost was limited to $300,000. The law also authorized the issuance of thirty-year bonds to that amount to pay the expenses of construction. The Board organized a few days after the passage of the act, and immediately advertised for plans. On August 13, 1856, it adopted the plans submitted by Reuben Clark. The building contemplated in these plans was to be in the form of a Greek cross, of the Corinthian style, with a rotunda and dome. It was to be 212 feet long and 145 feet wide, and to have a cellar beneath for the reception of fuel and rubbish. Above the cellar was to be the basement story, raised about five feet above the grade of the lot. The height of this story was to be 14 feet, and it was to contain the apartments of the executive and judicial officers. The second story was to be 36 feet in height, and in it were to be located a circular Senate chamber, 64½ by 50 feet, and an Assembly hall, in the form of a half square, 84 by 52½ feet. The library was also to be on this floor, and above it were to be a number of committee rooms. The height of the dome from the ground line was to be 132 feet, and the rotunda was to be 40 feet in diameter and 118 feet in height. It was designated that up to the first floor the walls should be of granite, and above that of brick, coated on the outside with mastic. On September 1st the Board advertised for proposals for erecting the building, and on November 1st the bids—sixteen in number—were opened, and the contract was awarded to Joseph Nougues for $200,000. The highest bid was $290,000. On December 2d the contractor staked off the ground for the building, and on the 4th the earth was broken for its foundation. The bill provided that the contractor should be paid in bonds as the work progressed, but on the 15th the State officers refused to issue the bonds for the work that had been done, on the strength of a decision which had been rendered by the Supreme Court, declaring in effect that the indebtedness created by the act, being in excess of the amount permitted by the Constitution, was void. The contractor instituted an action of mandamus to compel the issuance of the bonds, but the Supreme Court decided adversely to him, and the work was stopped and never resumed. On April 11, 1859, the Legislature allowed the claim of Nougues, on account of labor and material furnished under this contract, for the sum of $5,388.05.

Failure of Capitol Building Bill, 1858.—The want of a suitable State capitol was felt more as the public business increased in volume. Governor Johnson in his annual message of 1858, in referring to that subject said:

After the frequent changes we have witnessed of the seat of government, at length a degree of permanency has been given to it which fully justifies speedy action being taken for the erection of public buildings suitable for the various departments of government. Independent of that laudable pride which, in the present condition of public affairs, should impel such action—in a pecuniary sense it would be serviceable to the public good. The amount of rents now paid by the State government fully equals the interest on $300,000, at seven per cent per annum, the same rate which is to be paid on our public debt. That sum, or even less, will suffice to erect a suitable building for the necessary purposes of the State, and I recommend the passage of a law, at this session, making provision for the erection of such a building.

The Governor further recommended the erection of a first-class building, and the appropriation of $100,000 a year for three years, for the purpose of paying for its construction. On February 3, 1858, R. D. Ferguson offered a resolution in the Assembly for the appointment of a joint committee to confer with the Supervisors of Sacramento County and ascertain on what terms the county would dispose of the courthouse, then occupied as the capitol. The resolution was adopted by both houses, and on the next day the committee was appointed. The Supervisors offered to dispose of the courthouse for $125,000, and on February 27 W. I. Ferguson introduced a bill in the Senate to provide for the purchase of that building by the State at the price named.

The bill was referred to the Committee on Public Buildings, and on March 13th a majority of the committee recommended its passage. The minority submitted a dissenting report on the 17th, based on the following reasons: That there had been donated to the State a square of land in Sacramento, valued at about $40,000, which would revert to the city if not used; that the State had, at a cost of $3,000, procured plans of a magnificent capitol of suitable size; that a branch prison would shortly be established, and the granite needed for the erection of a capitol could then be taken out and prepared by the prisoners; that the brick needed could also be manufactured at small cost by the same labor; that a capitol could be so erected at a cost of not over $200,000; that the courthouse was not fitted for the purposes of a capitol, as it had been hastily erected for another purpose, and had become prematurely old and dilapidated; and that to fit it up and make it answer for a capitol would incur an expense much larger than to erect a new building. They therefore recommended the indefinite postponement of the bill. The Senate had the matter under consideration until toward the end of the session, when it was lost.

On March 13, 1858, Nougues, the contractor to build the capitol under the act of 1856, sent a communication to the Legislature, proposing for $125,000 to erect upon the public square which had been donated to the State by the city of Sacramento, a building in all respects according to the plans of the courthouse, except that instead of having a prison in the basement, it should be fitted up for public offices. He proposed to have the building ready for occupancy by December 1st following. This offer met the same fate as the courthouse purchasing bill.

Proposed Removal to Oakland, 1858-59.—Soon after the meeting of the Legislature of 1858, a movement was inaugurated to remove the seat of government from Sacramento to Oakland. On March 23d a memorial was read in the Senate, from the Mayor, the Council, and citizens of the latter city, asking for the change. S. B. Bell offered a resolution to appoint a joint committee to visit Oakland with a view to ascertaining its advantages as a site for the capital, and to receive such proposals to donate land, buildings, etc., as the people of that city might be disposed to make. A like memorial was presented to the Assembly, and was referred to a select committee, which on the 27th reported a resolution to appoint a similar committee to the one proposed in the Senate. This resolution was adopted by both houses, and the committee was formed. The three Assemblymen on the joint committee reported on April 6th that the citizens of Oakland proposed to furnish at a nominal rental suitable buildings for the use of the State until a capitol should be erected; that they proposed to donate twenty acres within the city limits as a site for the contemplated public buildings; and that the location was better than at Sacramento. They strongly recommended the removal, and presented a bill to the House to provide for the permanent location of the capital at Oakland. The two Senators concurred in the report, except that they made no recommendation in regard to a removal. The bill to remove to Oakland was taken up in the Assembly on the 21st and defeated by a vote of forty-four to fifteen.

In the Assembly, on March 2, 1859, the Committee on Public Buildings, acting in accordance with the direction of that body, reported a bill to provide for the construction of a State capitol in Sacramento. The bill contemplated the erection of a building in accordance with the plans which had been prepared under the act of 1856, at a cost of not over $120,000. The consideration of this was made the special order for the 14th, at which time W. P. Rodgers offered a substitute, to authorize the Common Council of Oakland to levy a special tax of $10 on each $100 worth of real estate in that city, and the Supervisors of Alameda County to levy a tax of 50 cents on the $100 of real estate in that county, to create a fund for building a capitol at Oakland; and to authorize the Governor to accept for the State a donation of ten acres of land in that city as a site for the building, and to issue his proclamation for the removal of the seat of government to Oakland. A resolution was adopted by the House, by a vote of thirty-two to thirty, creating a committee of five to visit Oakland and inquire into the expediency of locating the seat of government there. On the 22d the bills again came up, when Henry Hancock introduced a bill to appropriate $200,000 for the purpose of commencing the erection of a capitol at Oakland. On the same day four of the visiting committee submitted a report warmly recommending the removal, while the remaining member expressed the view that it would be impolitic to leave Sacramento. A week later the Rodgers bill was defeated by a vote of twenty-eight to thirty, and the Sacramento bill was refused engrossment by a vote of fifteen to forty-one. The Hancock bill was laid on the table on April 9th.

Removal Question, 1860.—Governor Weller, in his annual message of 1860, recommended the appropriation of $100,000 for the purpose of erecting a capitol at Sacramento, and he argued that it would be a move in the direction of economy, as the State was then paying $8,000 per annum rental for a building—an amount equal to eight per cent per annum on the estimated cost of the structure which had been contemplated by the act of 1856. Since the adjournment of the Legislature of 1859 the question of removal of the seat of government from Sacramento had been agitated to a considerable extent in San Francisco and Oakland, and it was anticipated that an effort to remove to one of those cities would be strongly pressed in the session of 1860. On January 20th of that year, R. A. Redman introduced a bill in the Senate to remove the seat of government to Oakland in July following, provided that city would, within sixty days after the passage of the act, execute a deed to the State for a quantity of land, not less than ten acres in extent and suitably located in that city, for the State buildings. The bill was referred to a select committee, but it never came up for a vote to be taken thereon by the Senate.

On the 24th a bill was introduced in the Assembly by W. B. Maxson, to locate the capital at San Francisco after July 8th. It was referred to a select committee, and met a like fate with the Redman bill. On the 27th the Senate adopted a resolution to appoint a joint committee to take into consideration the permanent location and removal, if deemed expedient, of the capital, and on February 7th the House concurred in the action of the Senate. The committee visited San Francisco, San José, and Oakland, and on March 8th submitted their report. They had received from the Supervisors of San Francisco the offer of a donation of any public square, except Portsmouth, in that city as a location for the building; and they also had proposed to issue city bonds to the amount of $150,000 for the purpose of raising money to erect the building, with the understanding that the State should own the land and building so long as it should be used for the purposes indicated, but in case the capital should be removed from San Francisco the property should revert to the city. As an additional inducement for the location of the capital at San Francisco, Beideman & Page proposed to convey to the State, as a site for the capitol, four blocks of land, and to improve the streets around them. The citizens of Oakland renewed the offer that had been made by them the year before. The authorities and citizens of San José claimed that the removal of the capital from that city had been unconstitutional, and that, therefore, it should be relocated there. The authorities of Sacramento tendered the free use of the then State capitol for as long a time as the State should see fit to occupy it. Four of the committee recommended that it was inexpedient to remove from Sacramento, and that an appropriation should be made for the immediate construction of a State capitol in that city. On March 20th, three other members of the committee submitted a lengthy report recommending the removal of the seat of government to San Francisco at the close of the session then in progress, and they presented a bill to that end.

Bill for Construction of New Capitol, 1860.—On January 23, 1860, S. A. Merritt introduced a bill in the Senate to provide for the construction of a capitol in Sacramento, and on March 12th the majority of the committee to whom it had been referred recommended its passage, with sundry amendments. On the 15th, the minority of the committee recommended its indefinite postponement for various reasons. The bill came up in the Senate for discussion on the 21st, and was amended to increase the appropriation for the entire work to half a million dollars; to provide for the removal of the Supreme Court to San Francisco; and to authorize the city authorities of Sacramento to condemn for a site for the capitol the four blocks of land between L and N, Tenth and Twelfth streets, which land it was agreed should be purchased by the city and donated to the State. The bill passed the Senate on the 23d by a vote of twenty-six to seven. On February 20th, John Conness introduced a bill in the Assembly to build a capitol at Sacramento. This bill was almost a duplicate of the Merritt bill. It was favorably reported by the majority of the committee to which it had been referred on March 14th; and on the same day an adverse minority report was submitted, because the title to the land to be donated for the location of the capitol would be imperfect, because the land would be insufficient in quantity, and because the financial condition of the State did not warrant the appropriation of the sum of money contemplated in the bill. After a discussion lasting several days, the Assembly, on the 24th, passed a substitute for the Conness bill by a vote of forty-six to twenty-four. This bill differed from the Merritt bill in that it did not provide for the removal of the Supreme Court to San Francisco. The substitute bill was passed by the Senate on the 26th, and on the next day a motion to reconsider was lost by a vote of five to twenty-five. On the 29th, Governor Downey approved the bill.

The law provided for the appointment of a commission, consisting of the Governor, Secretary of State, Treasurer, A. C. Monson, and Alfred Redington, whose duty it was to contract for and superintend the erection of the capitol upon the tract of land between L and N, Tenth and Twelfth streets, in Sacramento. After condemning the land mentioned, the commission was directed to adopt plans for the building, to appoint a supervising architect, and to make contracts for its construction. The entire cost of the building was limited to $500,000, and the city of Sacramento was to pay for the land.

Work Commenced on New Capitol, 1860.—On April 4, 1860, the Board of Supervisors of the City and County of Sacramento deeded to the State the blocks of land mentioned in the law, and an ordinance was passed on that day vacating the streets and alleys within the limits named. On the 6th the commissioners advertised for plans for the contemplated building, and on May 19th the seven plans which had been submitted were opened and examined, but it was not until July 14th that the Board determined to accept the one submitted by M. F. Butler. In that same month Reuben Clark was appointed Superintending Architect. On June 2d proceedings were commenced in the Sixth District Court to condemn the lands selected as the site for the building. The commissioners appointed by the court to estimate the value of the property sought to be condemned reported, on July 5th, that the compensation to the owners should be $65,517. A tax was levied upon and collected from the citizens of Sacramento to pay that amount. On September 3d the Capitol Commissioners opened the proposals for the construction of the foundation and the erection of the basement story walls of the building. Seven bids were submitted, the highest being $130,000, and the lowest—that of Michael Fennell—$80,000. The contract was awarded to Fennell, and was signed on the 20th.

Progress of Work on New Capitol, 1860-63.—It was agreed in the contract that work should be commenced before October 1, 1860, and finished within ten months. Ground was broken in excavating for the foundation on September 24th, and that work was completed on October 25th, when the laying of concrete was commenced. On April 1, 1861, Fennell withdrew from the further prosecution of the work. The Legislature on May 20, 1861, authorized the commissioners to make an amicable settlement with him to cancel his contract, provided he would file a release of all claims against the State. The law provided that the matter should then be arbitrated, and the Commissioners were directed to make a new contract for the completion of the building to the extent contemplated in the Fennell contract, and the sum of $50,000 was appropriated to carry on the work. Some time was spent in letting the second contract, and until the middle of August, 1861, little or nothing was accomplished. On May 15, 1861, the corner stone was laid with imposing Masonic ceremonies in the presence of a large concourse of people. On July 29th the contract to complete the work laid out was let to G. W. Blake and P. Edward Conner, and they continued to work until January 1, 1862, when they quit, having suffered severe losses in the great flood. On April 19, 1862, the Legislature passed an act directing the Commissioners to cancel this contract also, and the contractors were awarded $55,570.26 to pay them for the labor and materials they had furnished, and for damages they had sustained by the flood. The same law provided for a modification of the plans, so that the total cost of the building should not be, when added to the amount which had then been expended, over $500,000, and it was provided that work should be continued by day's labor until the unexpended appropriation should be disposed of.

Session of Legislature in San Francisco, 1862.—The thirteenth session of the Legislature met at Sacramento, January 6, 1862. The city had been overtaken with a disastrous flood on December 9, 1861, and was not particularly inviting when the Legislature met there a month later. This calamity opened again the subject of removal of the State capital to some other point in the State, and it was discussed to a considerable extent in the newspapers. On the 10th of January, 1862, the day on which Governor Stanford was inaugurated, another flood visited the city, and on the next day the Senate, by a vote of twenty to thirteen, adopted a concurrent resolution to adjourn the meeting of the Legislature to San Francisco for the remainder of the session. The Assembly refused to concur by a vote of thirty-six to forty. However, on the 22d, a resolution to adjourn to San Francisco passed both houses, and on the 24th the Legislature met in the Exchange Building, on Battery street, in that city. Unsuccessful efforts were subsequently made to remove the offices of the State officers to San Francisco.

Progress of Work on New Capitol, 1863-66.—On March 27, 1863, an act was passed levying an annual ad valorem tax of 5 cents on the $100 of property in the State to create a Special Capitol Fund, and the act was to remain in force until the building should be finished and the grounds graded and fenced. On April 20th, another act was passed directing the Commissioners to let contracts for the purchase of materials and to employ labor by the day.

Governor Stanford, in his annual message of December 9, 1863, reported that work on the State capitol had been renewed in June, 1863, and had been prosecuted with vigor under the direction of the Commissioners, though they had been compelled to proceed cautiously, actuated by a desire to keep within, rather than go beyond, the limits of the legislative appropriations. The Governor said:

This method of constructing a State capitol will be a long and tedious one, and, at best, the yearly advance it will make will not keep pace with the people's expectations. The building should be finished as early as possible, and the means provided to insure that result. In a young State like our own, poor comparison to what its future promises, the conviction has become strong in my mind that coming generations should share with the present in the erection of any great and permanent public building. And while thus calling upon the future for aid an edifice should be constructed that will be satisfactory to the grandeur of the coming time. In all new countries the first generation has much to overcome, which inevitably results largely to the benefit of those that follow after; and the older a growing state becomes, the more ability it has to bear burdens that have been lightened by the sacrifice of its earlier years.

The State capitol of California, that is to endure for generations, should be a structure that the future will be proud of, and surrounded by grounds that should extend into the dimensions of an ample park. Such grounds can now be had at a comparatively nominal sum, and the peculiar salubrity of our climate would in a few years surround the edifice with a beauty and luxuriousness that no other capitol in the country could boast.

I would, therefore, recommend that, consulting the future, with a due consideration for the present, a law should be passed, and submitted to the people of the State, providing for the issuance of bonds for State capitol purposes, sufficient to complete the work in the manner proposed.

On December 16, 1863, A. C. Henry introduced in the Senate a bill to repeal the act providing a special fund for the construction of the capitol at Sacramento, but the bill was never reported back from the Committee on Public Buildings, to which it was referred. On January 5, 1864, a bill for the completion of the capitol was introduced in the Assembly by Frederick Lux. The bill contemplated the issuance of State bonds to the amount of $1,000,000, payable in 1884, the proceeds to be expended for the immediate completion of the building. This bill was reported back with amendments on the 15th, and after being lengthily debated, was indefinitely postponed on March 16th, by a vote of thirty-nine to twenty-three. On February 8, 1864, a bill was introduced in the Assembly by Seth Martin to provide a special fund for the construction of the capitol, and to submit the same to a vote of the people, but on March 18th it was indefinitely postponed, on motion of its author. The session of the Legislature closed without any action upon the subject of the capitol.

On February 10, 1866, Thomas Hardy offered a resolution in the Senate to instruct the Committee on Public Buildings to report upon the advisability and economy of donating the capitol and whatever other buildings in Sacramento the State had any interest in, to that city, and of removing the capital to some other locality. The resolution was set for April 7th—beyond the constitutional period for the session of the Legislature—by a vote of twenty-two to fourteen. On March 2d, an act was approved to provide for the speedy completion of the capitol. It imposed an annual ad valorem tax of 5 cents on the $100 to raise a fund for that purpose, and the law was to remain in force until the Governor should declare by proclamation that the building was finished.

The State Capitol Commissioners reported, under date of November 1, 1867, that during the years 1863, 1864, and 1865, there had been levied an annual tax of 5 cents on the $100 to create a special fund for the construction of the capitol; that in 1866 and 1867 the tax had been increased to 10 cents; that the amounts derived from this taxation had been: In 1863, $62,000; 1864, $69,641.96; 1865, $72,193.96; 1866, $151,378.10; 1867 (estimated), $155,000. That the expenditures had been: In 1863, $59,731.18; 1864, $59,515.14; 1865, $72,704.78; 1866, $118,952.30; 1867, $175,184.90. That in October, 1866, attention had been attracted to some cracks in the northern wall, alleged to have been caused by the settling of the building, but that defect had been remedied. That on January 1, 1866, G. P. Cummings had been appointed architect in place of Reuben Clark, who had become sick, and who died subsequently on July 4, 1866. And that on January 18, 1867, the Board had adopted a resolution discontinuing the use of granite for the exterior walls, above the medallion course at the top of the basement story, and had determined to used hard-burned brick, with ornaments of cast iron—the brick to be covered with a substantial coat of mastic, and painted. Later, A. A. Bennett succeeded Cummings as architect.

On January 10, 1868, Francis Giltner offered a resolution in the Assembly to instruct the Committee on Public Buildings to examine the condition of the capitol, its manner of construction, the expenditure, and the probable cost for its completion, the probable cost to secure it against overflow from the Sacramento and American rivers, and the cost of grading the grounds, and of ventilation and lighting. An amendment, by A. Comte, Jr., was adopted—forty-two to thirty-two—directing the committee to examine into the condition and progress of the building, and the manner in which the materials had been procured. The resolution was further amended in the Senate, and, finally, a substitute resolution was adopted by both houses. On March 21st the committee submitted a lengthy report.

Agitation of Removal Question, 1868.—On January 23, 1868, Francis Giltner introduced a bill in the Assembly to provide for the removal of the seat of government to San José after the adjournment of the Legislature. The city was to furnish, free of charge, for six years, an appropriate capitol, by which time it was expected that the building to be erected by the State would be completed. The bill came up on March 3d as a special order, together with other removal bills, and the whole matter was laid on the table by a vote of thirty-four to nineteen. Afterwards the bills were taken from the table, and on the 21st were indefinitely postponed by a vote of forty-four to twenty.

On January 30, 1868, E. C. Tully introduced a bill in the Assembly, the preamble of which recited that "the completion of the capitol in Sacramento, the grading of the grounds and streets, the ornamenting and fencing of the same, will cost the State several hundred thousand dollars; and the location of the capital is a question of continued agitation by the Legislature; and serious doubts exist in the minds of a large portion of the people throughout the State as to the safety of Sacramento from floods; and that the people of the State are heavily burdened with taxation." The bill provided that whenever the local authorities of San Francisco, San José, Oakland, or Benicia should notify the Governor that they would erect a capitol to cost not less than $400,000, on a suitable lot within the corporate limits of the city they represented, and that they would deed the lot and building to the State before December 1, 1869, then all further work on the Sacramento building should cease. Upon the receipt of the deed and the possession of the building being given, the Governor should issue a proclamation declaring the city so deeding the property to be the seat of government, and, as soon thereafter as practicable, the State officers should remove to the city designated, with the official archives and public property.

On February 4, 1868, a communication was presented to the Assembly from the Dashaway Club of Santa Cruz, offering the use of their hall for ten years as a State capitol, provided the seat of government should be removed to that place. A similar communication was received by the Senate, but no action was taken on the matter by either house. On the 7th, the authorities of San José and Santa Clara County formally tendered the members of the Legislature and their friends a free special train on which to visit San José. The Council of that city, by resolution, offered to donate to the State any one of their public parks as a site for the capitol, and the Board of Supervisors of Santa Clara County tendered the free use of the courthouse for five years, until a capitol could be built on the square. The invitation to ride was accepted by the Senate, but declined by the House. The Senate also took a trip to Oakland, by invitation of the officers of that city. A bill was introduced in each house to repeal the act providing for the special tax for the construction of the capitol, but they failed of passage.

On February 21, 1868, W. Z. Angney introduced a bill in the Assembly, the preamble of which was similar to that of Tully's bill, except that it stated in addition that serious doubts existed as to whether San José was not the constitutional seat of government. The bill provided for the appointment of a Board of Capitol Commissioners, to be composed of certain State officers, who were to meet at San José and select a site for the State capitol in that city. They were to adopt plans for the building, and the local authorities were to erect a building before October 1, 1869, in accordance with the plans, and transfer the building and grounds to the State free of charge, when the seat of government was to be removed to that city. Both of these bills were lost with the Giltner bill.

Occupation of the New Capitol Building, 1869.—On the evening of November 25, 1869, the gas in the legislative chambers, and in the new capitol generally, was lighted for the first time. The offices of the Governor and the Secretary of State in the new building were opened for the transaction of business the next morning. The Supreme Court met there for the first time December 3d. The formal taking possession of the building by the Legislature on December 6th was commemorated by the firing of a salute and a general display of flags in Sacramento. On the 15th a grand ball was given in the capitol in honor of its occupation. In his annual message of December 8, 1869, Governor Haight estimated that it would require $381,280 to complete the building in accordance with the plans, which added to the expenditures which had been made, would make the total cost of the building $1,447,377.04. On March 29, 1870, an act was approved declaring the Board of Capitol Commissioners, created by the act of March 29, 1860, to be constituted of the Governor, Secretary of State, and Treasurer. Another act was approved on April 4, 1870, authorizing the issuance of seven per cent fifteen-year bonds, to the amount of $250,000, for the purpose of providing for the payment of work to be done and materials to be furnished on the building and on the grounds after June 1, 1870, and the Commissioners were authorized to expend from the money realized from the sale of bonds not exceeding $50,000 for the purchase of suitable grounds and the erection of a mansion for the Governor. On August 19, 1870, it was decided to purchase a block of land in Sacramento, to the east of the capitol grounds, as a site for the mansion, at an expense of $14,000. On August 26th work was commenced on the mansion, and it was prosecuted until the appropriation became exhausted. The building remained in an incomplete condition for several years, when finally an act was passed to fit it up for the State printing office, and it has since been used for that purpose. On March 28, 1872, an act was approved authorizing the issuance of State bonds to the amount of $250,000, the proceeds from the sale of which were to be applied in paying for the construction of the capitol after June 1, 1872.

Addition to Capitol Grounds, 1872.—On April 1, 1872, a law was passed authorizing the Capitol Commissioners to condemn five blocks of land in Sacramento City between L and N, Twelfth and Fifteenth streets, and to cause the same to be inclosed with the capitol grounds and the block on which the Governor's mansion was being built. The Commissioners were authorized to have the land suitably graded and planted to ornamental trees and shrubbery. The sum of $100,000 was appropriated for the purchase of the land. Under this act the Sixth District Court appointed E. Black Ryan, Edward Cadwalader, and W. C. Felch, on October 19th, to ascertain the compensation that should be paid to the owners of the property. On February 6, 1873, they reported and assessed the value of the land and improvements at $142,423.40. The State officers declined to make the purchase as the appraisement was in excess of the appropriation. Finally a few citizens of Sacramento assumed to pay to the property owners the excess over $100,000 and the amount for which the improvements would sell, and the purchase was made by the State. On March 7, 1874, the Legislature passed an act authorizing the authorities of Sacramento City to submit to a vote of the people of that city the question of levying a special tax of 20 cents on the $100 for the purpose of raising $29,883.70 to reimburse the parties who advanced the money over and above the State appropriation. At a special election held March 10, 1874, the people of Sacramento, by a vote of two thousand two hundred and ninety-three to five hundred and seventy-three, decided to levy the tax upon themselves. Since that time the Legislature has made appropriations for the erection of first-class stone and iron-fence, for the laying of concrete sidewalk around the grounds, and for the reconstruction of the interior of the building along modern lines, reaching a total expended by the State for its capitol of $2,972,925.

The present Constitution provides, in section 1 of article XX:

SECTION 1. The city of Sacramento is hereby declared to be the seat of government of this State, and shall so remain until changed by law; but no law changing the seat of government shall be valid or binding unless the same be approved and ratified by a majority of the qualified electors of the State voting therefor at a general State election, under such regulations and provisions as the Legislature, by a two-thirds vote of each house, may provide, submitting the question of change to the people.

Proposed Removal to San Jose, 1893 and 1903.—March 11, 1893, E. C. Seymour introduced Senate Constitutional Amendment No. 23, to submit to the people a proposed amendment to the effect that San José "is hereby declared to be the seat of government," on condition "that the State shall receive a donation of a site of not less than ten acres and one million dollars before such removal shall be had" from Sacramento. The Governor, Secretary of State, and Attorney General were to be authorized to approve the site, and upon their approval and the payment of the money into the State treasury, the Legislature was to provide for the erection of the necessary capitol building and the removal of the seat of government. The amendment was adopted in the Senate on the 11th by a vote of twenty-seven to eight, and in the Assembly by a vote of fifty-seven to seven. On the 13th a motion to reconsider was laid on the table in the Assembly. The Supreme Court in the case of H. P. Livermore vs. E. G. Waite, Secretary of State (102 Cal. 113), on March 29, 1894, in an action to prevent the Secretary of State from certifying the amendments to the various County Clerks or from doing any act submitting it to the people, decided that it was invalid.

On January 28, 1903, Louis Oneal introduced Senate Constitutional Amendment No. 16, which provided that after the first Monday in January, 1907, Sacramento should cease to be the seat of government and that San José should become and be the seat of government, to so remain until changed by law. February 17th the proposition was reported by the committee without recommendation, and on March 2d it was refused adoption in the Senate, by a vote of thirteen ayes to twenty-five noes. Eli Wright introduced a similar amendment in the Assembly (Constitutional Amendment No. 28) on February 14th. On the 24th it was reported without recommendation by a majority of the committee, and on March 6th it was withdrawn by the author.

Proposed Removal to Berkeley.—On February 21, 1907, G. R. Lukens introduced a bill in the Senate providing for the removal of the seat of government from Sacramento to Berkeley. February 27th, it was reported to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds with a recommendation that it do pass. On February 28th, the bill passed the Senate by a vote of thirty ayes to nine noes. On March 2d, the bill passed the Assembly by a vote of fifty-nine ayes to eighteen noes. The bill was approved by the Governor on the 6th day of March, and read as follows:

An act to change the seat of government of the State of California from the city of Sacramento to the town of Berkeley, and to submit the question of such change to the people, and to provide regulations and provisions for such submission.

The people of the State of California, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. On and after the first day of January, A. D., nineteen hundred and nine, the seat of government of the State of California shall be changed from the city of Sacramento to the town of Berkeley, and it is hereby declared that on and after said date the town of Berkeley shall be the seat of government of this State.

SEC. 2. The question of such change of the seat of government shall be submitted to the people of the State at a general State election to be held in the month of November in the year nineteen hundred and eight, and in the manner and subject to the regulations and provisions provided in title two, of part three, of the Political Code of the State of California, for submitting any proposition or constitutional amendment to the vote of the people, and said question shall be designated on the ballot in the following words: "An act to change the seat of government of the State of California from the city of Sacramento to the town of Berkeley."

At the general election held on November 3, 1908, the removal proposition was submitted to the people and defeated by a vote of 165,630 votes in opposition to the measure as against 87,378 votes in its favor.

HISTORY OF THE GREAT SEAL OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA.

At the time when the question of designing the great seal for the new State was being agitated in the Constitutional Convention which met in Monterey in 1849, there happened to be sojourning temporarily in that little town an accomplished and cultivated officer of the United States Army, Major Robert Selden Garnett. He was a gentleman of modest demeanor, and excelled in the use of his pencil. One evening he sketched a design for a seal of the State, and it was exhibited to various members of the Convention. One of the delegates asked leave to present it to the body, but the quiet Major declined, upon the ground that he believed that a knowledge of the source whence it had come would prevent its adoption. There existed at that time quite a hostility between the military authorities and the nascent civil powers, and there was an especial distrust of the secret mission of Thomas Butler King, with which Garnett was understood to be connected. Caleb Lyon, one of the clerks of the convention, learned of the design, and readily obtained the consent of Garnett to appropriate it and present it as his own production. As the design came from the hands of its author, it was chaste and beautiful, and somewhat different from the present seal. It represented the figure of Minerva, with the Golden Gate, and a ship in full sail in the foreground, and the Sierra Nevada range in the background, with the word "Eureka" above. The design was referred to a committee, and on September 29, 1849, the report of the committee was considered by the convention. W. E. Shannon deemed the design a most happy one, but more appropriate for a coat of arms than for a seal. He said that it was unusual for a State seal to contain a motto, and that it ordinarily comprehended the main emblems, and the words "Great Seal of the State." An explanation accompanying the design was entered in the Journal, as follows:

Around the bend of the ring are represented thirty-one stars, being the number of States of which the Union will consist upon the admission of California. The foreground figure represents the Goddess Minerva, having sprung full grown from the brain of Jupiter. She is introduced as a type of the political birth of the State of California, without having gone through the probation of a territory. At her feet crouches a grizzly bear feeding upon the clusters from a grapevine, emblematic of the peculiar characteristics of the country. A miner is engaged with his rocker and bowl at his side, illustrating the golden wealth of the Sacramento, upon whose waters are seen shipping, typical of commercial greatness; and the snow-clad peaks of the Sierra Nevada make up the background, while above is the Greek motto "Eureka" (I have found it), applying either to the principle involved in the admission of the State, or the success of the miner at work.

After various amendments had been suggested, the matter was laid on the table. On October 2d the report of the committee was again considered. Rodman M. Price submitted a resolution that the design for the seal reported by the committee be accepted. O. M. Wozencraft submitted the following, which was rejected: "That the seal be amended by striking out the figures of the gold-digger and the bear and introducing instead bags of gold and bales of merchandise." M. G. Vallejo submitted an amendment that the bear be taken out of the design; or, if it do remain, that it be represented as made fast by a lasso in the hands of a vaquero.

After the debate, the amendment proposed by Vallejo was rejected by a vote of sixteen to twenty-one. Price's resolution was then adopted. W. S. Sherwood moved that the seal be the "coat of arms" of the State of California, and the motion was then carried by a vote of twenty-one to sixteen. Price then submitted a resolution that Lyon be authorized to superintend the engraving of the seal; that he furnish the same, in the shortest possible time, to the Secretary of the Convention, with a press and all necessary appendages, and that the sum of $1,000 be advanced to him in full compensation for the design and seal. This resolution was not considered until the 11th, when a substitute was adopted, authorizing Lyon to superintend the engraving and to furnish the seal as soon as possible to the Secretary of the Convention, to be delivered to the Secretary of State under the Constitution; and the sum of $1,000 was to be paid, in full compensation for the design, seal, press, and all appendages. It was also resolved that the words "The Great Seal of the State of California" be added to the design. Henry W. Halleck inquired if any gentleman present knew what had become of the original design, and that the gentleman by whom it was designed (Major Garnett) requested that it should be found if possible and handed to the gentleman who occupied the chair. Mr. Sherwood said that he believed the seal was not the entire production of the gentleman who had been authorized to have it engraved, and that Lyon did not claim it as such. He said that the original design had been given to Lyon by a gentleman who did not wish his name to be made public, but expressed a desire, in a confidential letter to Lyon, that he (Lyon) might be known as the author.

The bear was added chiefly to gratify Major J. R. Snyder and the men of the Bear Flag revolution. Then was added the figure of a man with an uplifted pick-ax, as an emblem of the great mining interests of the country.

There is some dispute as to whether Lyon ever got the $1,000 voted him by the convention. The following article was published in the Alta California of February 19, 1850, and presumably written by Edward Gilbert, the editor, a member of the Constitutional Convention, and one of the two Congressmen elected from California at the first election in 1849:

The State Seal.—We observe that a petition has been made to the Legislature, on behalf of Caleb Lyon, for $1,000 for the State seal, "designed and executed by him." It may as well be understood at once that if any credit belongs to any person for the design of the seal, it is not to Caleb Lyon, of Lyonsdale. The original design for the seal was made by an officer of the army, sojourning temporarily at Monterey during the time the convention was in session. When the subject of a seal was mooted, this design was shown to various members of the Convention, who suggested some emendations and the insertion of other matters. These were drawn in by the original designer, who did not wish it to be known who was the author, and the seal was presented by Mr. Lyon. After a pretty hard fight it was adopted, and $1,000 appropriated to Mr. Lyon to procure a die and proper press. This duty he performed after a fashion. The design was marred in the engraving; the die was not sunk near deep enough, and the press was not sufficiently powerful for the purpose. The commissions of the congressional delegation were without the slightest impress of the seal before they left the country. If we are not very much mistaken, Mr. Lyon, of Lyonsdale, received his money out of the Civil Fund, and is now conveying it to the sylvan retreats of Lyonsdale.* But this has nothing to do with the paternity of the seal. All we wish to state, and that most distinctly, is that Mr. Lyon has no right or title to the honor of either designing or executing the seal any more than the Khan of Tartary.

The Legislature of 1850 did not make any appropriation in response to the petition mentioned.

In October, 1855, a peculiar complication occurred between Governor Bigler and the Secretary of State, James W. Denver. Under the Constitution, as it then stood, the Secretary of State was the appointee of the Governor. Denver had been appointed by Bigler on February 19, 1853. Afterwards a difference arose between the Governor and Secretary of State. Denver had been elected to Congress in 1854, and on October 5, 1855, Bigler addressed a letter to Denver demanding the great seal of State, and said that he desired to keep it in his own office, where he claimed the Constitution contemplated that it should be kept. On the same day Denver replied, declining to permit the seal to pass out of his possession, and immediately departed for Washington to attend his congressional duties, leaving his deputy in charge of the Secretary's office. He also left a resignation to take effect November 5th. On the 6th of October the Governor again visited the office of the Secretary, demanded the seal of the deputy, and was again refused its possession. He then handed to the deputy the commission of Charles H. Hempstead as Secretary of State, and directed the deputy to affix to it the seal, but the deputy refused to do so, on the ground that it was a constitutional office, and could not be vacated except by death, resignation, or impeachment. The deputy of Denver held possession of the office for a month, during which time his acts were not recognized as valid by the Governor, and it is said that the latter caused a duplicate great seal to be made, with which his official acts were attested by his newly appointed Secretary. Years afterwards it was stated that forged patents for State lands were in circulation, and that one of these old seals had been stolen and used for attesting them. However this may be, two dies of the State seal remain in the possession of the Secretary of State.

In 1858 the State seal was damaged so that it failed to give a true impression, and a bill was introduced in the Senate by Mr. Thom to authorize the Secretary of State to procure a new seal, to be engraved on steel, and to be substituted for and used instead of the seal then in existence; and requiring him to destroy the then State seal in the presence of the Governor and Controller. The bill was accompanied with a design which reduced the size of the seal a twelfth part of an inch, and to admit of this contraction some of the details of the original design were omitted. The bear was made to crouch submissively at the feet of Minerva, the miner's cradle was left out, and the miner was brought nearer the water. On March 10, 1858, the Senate amended the bill by providing that the design and size should be the same as the seal then in use, and on April 16th another amendment was adopted that "the design of the present seal shall be preserved intact in the new one, but the size thereof shall be reduced six tenths of an inch, so that the new seal when completed shall be three and three tenths of an inch in diameter." The bill with this amendment passed the Senate on April 21st, but was not considered in the House.

Garnett, the designer of the original seal, was born in Virginia about 1821; entered West Point in 1837; graduated twenty-seventh in his class July 1, 1841, and appointed Brevet Second Lieutenant of artillery; was assistant instructor of infantry tactics at the military academy from July, 1843, to October, 1844; was Aid-de-Camp to General Wool in 1845, and distinguished himself in the battles of Palo Alto and Reseca de la Palma; was promoted to first lieutenancy August 18, 1846; was Aid-de-Camp to General Taylor during the Mexican War and until 1849; brevetted Captain and Major for gallant and meritorious conduct at Monterey and Buena Vista; transferred to the infantry in 1848; promoted to a captaincy in 1851; from 1852 to 1854 was commandant of the corps of cadets and instructor of infantry tactics at West Point; appointed Captain of the First Regiment Cavalry in 1855, and Major of the Ninth Infantry in the same month; was commander in the operations against the Indians on Puget Sound in 1856, and commanded the Yakima expedition in 1858. At the breaking out of the Rebellion he took the side of the Confederates, was promoted to a brigadier generalship and assigned to the Department of West Virginia. Here General McClellan attacked him, and after several days of alternate fighting and retreating, at the battle of Carrick's Ford, on July 15, 1861, Garnett was killed and his forces routed. His body was carefully cared for by the Federal commander, and after being embalmed was forwarded to his friends.

Caleb Lyon was appointed Consul to Shanghai, China, by President Polk in 1845. On his return to New York he served in both branches of the Legislature, and in 1853 was elected from that State to Congress. In 1864 he was appointed Governor of Idaho Territory, and retained the office three years. He died at Rossville, New York, on September 9, 1875. Of the members of the convention whose names figure in this article, W. E. Shannon died of cholera at Sacramento on November 3, 1850, at the age of twenty-eight, Rodman M. Price was afterwards elected Governor of New Jersey. General Vallejo died at Sonoma, January 18, 1890. Winfield S. Sherwood was afterwards a District Judge, and died in Sierra County on June 25, 1870. Snyder held many important public positions, removed to Sonoma County, conducted an extensive vineyard, and died there April 29, 1878. Halleck was at that time the Secretary of State under the military government. He afterwards practiced law in San Francisco, and in July, 1862, was appointed General-in-Chief of all the armies of the United States. He held that position until March 12, 1864, when General Grant was made Lieutenant General. He died in Louisville, Kentucky, January 9, 1872.

Albrecht Kuner, a native of Lindau, Bavaria, a member of the California Pioneers, was the engraver of the original seal as designed by Caleb Lyon. Mr. Kuner died on January 23, 1906, at his home in San Francisco.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.

GOVERNOR.

JAMES NORRIS GILLETT (Republican) was born at Viroqua, Vernon County, Wisconsin, September 20, 1860. When five years of age he went with his parents to Sparta, in the same State, where he attended the public schools; when eighteen years of age he commenced the study of law in the offices of Bleekman & Bloomingdale, and was admitted to practice in October, 1881. In 1884 he came to California, locating in the city of Eureka, Humboldt County. In 1889 he was appointed City Attorney of Eureka, and conducted the office for six years; in 1896 he was elected to the State Senate from the first Senatorial District, serving through the sessions of 1897 and 1899, and was chairman of the judiciary committee; in 1902 he was elected Representative in Congress from the First District, and reëlected in 1904; resigned as Congressman, October 4, 1906, and was elected Governor on the following 6th of November; inaugurated January 9, 1907.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR.

WARREN REYNOLDS PORTER (Republican) was born at the city of Santa Cruz, California, March 30, 1861, and educated in the public schools, finishing at St. Augustine's College, Benicia. He is a banker, with residence at Watsonville, and is a member of the State Board of Prison Directors; was a Presidential Elector in 1900 on the McKinley-Roosevelt ticket; elected Lieutenant Governor, November 6, 1906.

SECRETARY OF STATE.

CHARLES FORREST CURRY (Republican) was born at Naperville, Dupage County, in the State of Illinois, March 14, 1858, but resided at Mineral Point, Wisconsin, until 1873, when his parents removed to Washington Territory. In 1875 he came with his parents to California, and located in San Francisco. In 1886 he was elected Member of the Assembly from the Thirty-sixth District. On July 1, 1890, he received the appointment of Superintendent of Station "B," Post Office, in San Francisco, which position he held until 1894, when he resigned and was elected County Clerk of the City and County of San Francisco; while in this position, in 1898, he was elected Secretary of State; was reëlected in 1902, and again reëlected November 6, 1906, as the nominee of the Republican and Union Labor parties.

CONTROLLER.

ALFRED BOURNE NYE (Republican) was born at Stockton, California, October 25, 1853; he received his education in the public schools of Massachusetts and in the Academy at Falmouth, in the same State, became a newspaperman, and was residing in Oakland, California, at the time when Governor George C.

Pardee selected him as his Private Secretary, in which capacity he acted from January, 1903, until November 23, 1906, when he was appointed by Governor Pardee as State Controller to take the place of E. P. Colgan, deceased; on January 7, 1907, Governor Pardee again appointed him to the same office, vice self and E. P. Colgan, deceased.

TREASURER.

WILLIAM R. WILLIAMS (Republican) was born at Gold Hill, Nevada, November 6, 1870; he came to Fresno County, California, in 1879, where he attended the public schools; was in the drug business for a time, and then became an accountant; served as Deputy County Clerk of Fresno County for the four years 1895-1898; from 1898 to 1907 was associated with "The California Raisin Growers' Association." Elected State Treasurer November 6, 1906.

ATTORNEY GENERAL.

ULYSSES S. WEBB (Republican) was born at Flemington, West Virginia, September 29, 1864; in 1870 he removed with his parents to Kansas, in which State he was educated; came to California in June, 1888, and engaged in the practice of law in 1889 at Quincy, Plumas County; elected District Attorney of that county in 1890; reëlected in 1892, 1896, and 1900; resigned as District Attorney in September, 1902, and was appointed Attorney General by Governor Gage September 15, 1902, to take the place of Tirey L. Ford, resigned; elected to the same office for the regular term November 4, 1902, and reëlected November 6, 1906.

SURVEYOR GENERAL.

WILLIAM STEPHEN KINGSBURY (Republican) was born at Oakland, California, August 3, 1870; he received a grammar school education and then commenced the study of civil engineering under private instructors; after perfecting himself in this profession he took up his residence at Los Angeles, where he held the position of Chief Deputy City Engineer; elected Surveyor General November 6, 1906, as the nominee of the Republican and Union Labor parties.

CLERK OF THE SUPREME COURT.

District Attorney of Alameda County from 1878 to 1882, when he was elected District Attorney, to which position he was reëlected in 1884 and again in 1886; he was elected Judge of the Superior Court of Alameda County in 1896, and reëlected in 1902; in April, 1905, he was appointed Associate Justice of the District Court of Appeal, for the First District, elected to the same position, November 6, 1906, and allotted the twelve-year term.

FRANK HENRY KERRIGAN (Republican) was born at Green Valley, Contra Costa County, California, September 17, 1867, and educated in the public schools; he became a lawyer, with residence in San Francisco; in November, 1893, he was elected Justice of the Peace for that City and County, and reëlected in 1895 and 1897; in 1899 he was elected Judge of the Superior Court for an unexpired term, and in 1904 was elected for the full term of six years beginning January, 1905; elected Associate Justice of the District Court of Appeal, First District, November 6, 1906, and allotted the eight-year term.

PRESIDING JUSTICE, SECOND APPELLATE DISTRICT.

MATTHEW THOMPSON ALLEN (Republican) was born at Greenville, Ohio, September 17, 1848; he was educated in the common schools of his native State, with a partial course at Otterbein University; in February, 1887, he came to California, and took up the practice of his profession of attorney at law in Los Angeles; for a time he served as United States Attorney for the Southern District of California; he was elected Judge of the Superior Court for Los Angeles County in November, 1896, and reëlected in November, 1902; on April 10, 1905, he was appointed Associate Justice of the District Court of Appeal, Second District; elected Presiding Justice for the Second District, November 6, 1906, and allotted the eight-year term. At this election he was the nominee of the Republican and Democratic parties.

ASSOCIATE JUSTICES, SECOND APPELLATE DISTRICT.

JAMES WILLIAM TAGGART (Republican) was born at Parkersburg, West Virginia, February 24, 1859; he received a common school and academic education and became a lawyer by profession; in 1881 he came to California, and made his home in Santa Barbara, where he served on the Board of Education, and was elected Superior Judge for Santa Barbara County in 1902; on April 10, 1905, he received the appointment of Associate Justice of the District Court of Appeal for the Second District, was elected to the same position November 6, 1906, and allotted the twelve-year term.

VICTOR E. SHAW (Republican) was born in Pettis County, Missouri, December 15, 1857; he received his education in the common schools of Missouri and Oregon, in Willamette University at Salem, Oregon, and Ann Arbor Law School, Michigan; came to California in March, 1888, and practiced law in San Diego, which was his home when elected November 6, 1906, as Associate Justice of the District Court of Appeal, Second District, and allotted the four-year term.

PRESIDING JUSTICE, THIRD APPELLATE DISTRICT.

NORTON PARKER CHIPMAN (Republican) was born at Milford, Union County, Ohio, of New England parentage, his father and mother being natives of Vermont. The family soon afterwards moved to Iowa and resided variously at Keosauqua, Mount Pleasant, and Washington, in that State. He attended school at these places, receiving most of his education at Howe's Academy in Mount Pleasant and at Washington College. He commenced studying law at the latter place, but graduated at the Cincinnati Law School, entering practice just before the Civil War, at Washington, Iowa. At the call of President Lincoln, in 1861, he enlisted in the Second Iowa Infantry, the first three-year regiment from that State; was made second lieutenant of Company H; appointed by Col. Samuel R. Curtis regimental adjutant; elected by the officers as major to fill the vacancy caused by the promotion of Colonel Curtis to the rank of brigadier-general; was detailed to serve as chief of the latter's staff; returned to his regiment and took part in Grant's campaign on the Tennessee and Cumberland rivers; was severely wounded in a charge of his regiment upon the Confederate works at Fort Donelson; was back at his post at the siege of Corinth, where he received promotion as colonel and additional aid-de-camp in the regular army on the staff of Major-General Halleck, and was assigned to duty with his old commander, Curtis, now major-general, commanding the Department of Arkansas, and was made his chief of staff; was sent to Washington, D. C., on special duty, his services while there attracting the attention of Secretary of War Stanton, who refused his earnest request to be returned to field duty, and he served in the War Department to the close of the war; he successfully performed some important and hazardous special service as bearer of dispatches to commanders in the field, by the personal detail of President Lincoln, and came near capture by "Mosby's Guerrillas" on one of these occasions and on another by the retreating army of General Early; as judge-advocate he tried and convicted the Andersonville Prison jailer, Henry Werz, who was hanged in "Old Capitol Prison" for his atrocious cruelties to prisoners of war; he also tried many other important military commission cases as judge-advocate; was brevetted brigadier general of volunteers at the close of the war, and resigned to enter the practice of law at Washington, D. C., in November, 1865; when the District of Columbia was given a territorial form of government he was appointed Secretary of the District by President Grant in 1870, but resigned and was elected Delegate to Congress, where he served two terms (1871-1875) and was the only representative ever given the district in Congress. In 1868 and 1869 he was adjutant general of the Grand Army of the Republic on the staff of its commander-in-chief, General John A. Logan, and was largely instrumental in effecting a reorganization, on a sound and enduring basis, of that remarkable society of Civil War veterans; it was while adjutant general in 1868 that he wrote the memorable order creating Memorial Day. He came to California to reside in 1876, since which time he has been prominently connected with the industrial, political, and social welfare of the State. No man has written more or with better effect or given more of his time and energies to advertise to the world the attractions of California. For a number of years he was the President of the California State Board of Trade, and to him is due the credit of promulgating the dictum that "the climate of California is the State's most valuable asset." In April, 1897, he was appointed by the Supreme Court as one of the five commissioners of that court, and served in that capacity until appointed by Governor Pardee in 1905 as Presiding Justice of the District Court of Appeal, for the Third District; he was regularly elected to that office in November, 1906, and allotted the twelve-year term.

ASSOCIATE JUSTICES, THIRD APPELLATE DISTRICT.

ALBERT G. BURNETT (Republican) was born in the State of Oregon, April 9, 1856, but was brought to California when two years of age; he received a collegiate education, and took up the profession of the law, which he practiced in Santa Rosa, Sonoma County; in 1888 he was elected District Attorney of Sonoma County, and reelected to the same position in 1890; in 1896 he was elected Judge of the Superior Court, and reelected in 1902; elected Associate Justice of the District Court of Appeal, Third District, November 6, 1906, and allotted the four-year term.

ELIJAH CARSON HART (Republican) was born in an emigrant wagon en route to California, on the banks of the Carson River, in the State of Nevada, on September 9, 1857; he received a common school education, and learned the printer's trade, which occupation he followed for a time, and later engaged in various branches of newspaper work, as reporter, editor, and publisher; he then studied law under the direction of his brother, A. L. Hart, Attorney General (now deceased), and was admitted to practice before the Supreme Court in 1885; in the spring of 1886 he was elected City Attorney of Sacramento (the city elections then being held in March); in the fall of 1888 he was elected Member of the Assembly

For nine years he taught school in New York and Kansas, to which latter State he moved in 1876, where he read law and was admitted to the bar in 1881, but after practicing for a few years engaged in mercantile affairs, to which he has since given his attention. He became a resident of San Francisco in 1887. For several years he was connected with two of the largest mercantile institutions on the coast. He has always taken a lively interest in public affairs; was for six years President of the Pacific Coast Jobbers and Manufacturers' Association; has also recently retired from the presidency of the Transmississippi Commercial Congress. As Traffic Director and later as President of the Pacific Coast Jobbers and Manufacturers' Association, he assisted in accumulating the evidence and prosecuting the suits before the Interstate Commerce Commission in defense of the jobbing interests of the coast in what are known as the St. Louis Case, the State Toll Case, the Spokane Case, and others. He is Vice-President of the International Mercantile and Bond Company, and President of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Securities Company. Mr. Loveland is also prominent in Masonic circles and is Past Grand Commander of the Grand Commandery of Knights Templar of California. He was a member of Governor Pardee's staff and is Paymaster General of Governor Gillett's staff, with the rank of Colonel. He was appointed Railroad Commissioner for the Second District by Governor J. N. Gillett November 23, 1907, to succeed Andrew M. Wilson, resigned.

THEODORE SUMMERLAND (Republican) was born at Carlisle, Pennsylvania, September 6, 1852; he came to California in 1862 and received a common school education in this State; engaged in the insurance business, with residence in Los Angeles; in 1888 he was elected Councilman from the Eighth Ward, and reelected in 1890; in 1894 he was elected County Assessor of Los Angeles County; in 1902 he was elected Councilman from the Fourth Ward, and reelected in 1904, serving as President of the Council during his last term; elected Railroad Commissioner for the Third District, November 6, 1906.

The District of Columbia is in reality a municipal corporation having jurisdiction over the territory which "was ceded by the State of Maryland to the Congress of the United States for the permanent seat of the Government of the United States. It is practically correlative to the city of Washington, but the residents of that city have no voice in the choice of any of the officials. Its government is administered by a board of three Commissioners having in general equal powers and duties. Two of these Commissioners, who must have been actual residents of the District three years next before their appointment and have not during that period claimed residence elsewhere, are appointed from civil life by the President of the United States and confirmed by the Senate of the United States for a term of three years each. The other Commissioner is detailed from time to time by the President of the United States from the Engineer Corps of the United States Army, and is not required to perform any other duty. The salary of each of the Commissioners is $5,000 per annum. One of the Commissioners is annually chosen president of the Board. The Commissioners are in a general way vested with jurisdiction covering all the ordinary features of municipal government, and by various acts of Congress have been empowered to make all necessary regulations of a municipal nature. All matters relating to municipal management are divided among the Commissioners by agreement, and they have the direct power of appointment and control in all departments excepting the school department and the judiciary.

^g Gold and silver can not be stated separately prior to 1876. From 1862 to 1876 inclusive, gold and silver were not in circulation except on the Pacific coast, where it is estimated that the average specie circulation was about $25,000,000, and this estimate continued for the three following years under the head of gold. After that period gold was available for circulation.

PROTECTION OF THE FLAG.

The following act (Senate Bill No. 96) was introduced in the California Legislature of 1909 by Hon. William H. Savage, State Senator from the Thirty-fourth District, Los Angeles County:

CHAPTER 263.

An act to add a new section to the Penal Code of California, relating to the desecration, mutilation, or improper use of the flag of the United States of America.

[Approved March 18, 1909; Stats. 1909, p. 401.]

The people of the State of California, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. A new section is hereby added to the Penal Code of California to be numbered 310 and to read as follows:

310. That any person, firm or corporation, who, in any manner, for exhibition or display, puts, places, or causes to be placed, an inscription, picture, device, design, symbol, name, advertisement, word, letter, character, mark or notice of any kind whatsoever, upon any flag of the United States, or ensign evidently purporting to be such flag, or who in any manner appends, annexes or affixes to any such flag any inscription, picture, device, symbol, name, advertisement, word, letter, character, mark or notice whatsoever, or who displays or exhibits, or causes to be displayed or exhibited, any flag of the United States or ensign purporting to be such flag, upon which is put, attached, annexed, affixed or placed in any manner, any inscription, picture, design, device, symbol, name, advertisement, word, letter, mark or notice whatsoever, or who mutilates, tramples upon, or otherwise defaces or defiles any such flag, said flag, be public or private property, or who places or causes to be placed on any manufactured or prepared article or covering of said article, such flag, or indication of such flag, or who uses or causes to be used for purposes of a commercial or other trade-mark, such flag, or indication of such flag, shall be fined not more than two hundred dollars or imprisoned not more than one year, or both, for each and every offense, in the county jail of the county in which the trial is held; provided, however, that flags, or ensigns, the property of and used in the service of the United States, or any State, Territory or District of Columbia, may have inscriptions, names of actions, battles, skirmishes, or words, marks or symbols, which are placed thereon pursuant to law or authorized regulations; provided further, that this act shall not apply to banners or flags carried by military or patriotic organizations existing under the laws of the State of California and the United States of America, or to flags used in theatrical performances, or to flags carried by political parties, or organizations, in parades, or in public meetings.

"I pledge allegiance to my Flag and to the Republic for which it stands—one nation, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

HISTORY OF COLONIAL AND REVOLUTIONARY FLAGS AND THE NATIONAL FLAG OF THE UNITED STATES.

Prior to the Declaration of Independence the different colonies retained the standards of the mother country, the ancient national flag of England, a white banner with the red cross of St. George, or the union flag of King James, a combination of the crosses of St. George and St. Andrew, designated as the "King's colors." There was sometimes an addition, however, of some local emblem. Massachusetts, for instance, adopted for its emblem the pine tree, placing the device also on its coins.

According to the Massachusetts Bay records, the red cross of St. George was in use in that colony in 1634, and probably had been for some time. The Puritans strongly objected to the red cross on the flag, on the narrow ground that it was a papistical symbol and was idolatrous. In November, 1634, John Endicott, of Massachusetts, a Puritan of the most austere type, with his sword cut the cross out of the banner that hung before the Governor's gate. His act received so much support in sentiment among the militiamen that in 1635 the Military Commissioners substituted the King's colors for the cross of St. George, to be displayed from ships and over Castle Island, Boston, because the castle belonged to the King, but colors were appointed for the militia companies, with the red cross left out of all of them. The English Parliament, however, in 1651, revived the standard of St. George, and the General Court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts decreed that it be used on all appropriate occasions.

The flags in use in America in those early times were of various construction and arrangement of color. Sometimes the red cross was displayed upon a white field; at other times the field was red with the cross cantoned on a white field in one corner; sometimes, too, the field was blue, with the cross cantoned in white, and at times a pine tree or globe was displayed in the canton along with the cross. Under the government of Sir Edmund Andros the flag of New England was a white field bearing the cross of St. George surmounted with a crown and bearing the inscription J. R. (Jacobus Rex). In 1707, when, under Queen Anne, the kingdom of Great Britain, including England, Wales, and Scotland, was established by treaty, the Union Jack of the time of King James was adopted by the American colonies, in conformity to the action of the British Parliament.

At the commencement of the Revolution the revolted colonies displayed quite a variety of flags, those so much spoken of in 1774 as "union flags" being red English ensigns, with the Union Jack, or combined crosses of St. George and St. Andrew, and bearing, in addition, such mottoes as "Liberty," "Liberty and Union," etc.

The "union, with a red field," or, in other words a red ensign, was displayed at New York in March, 1775, on a liberty pole, with the inscription, "George Rex and the Liberties of America." The Connecticut troops displayed on their standards after the battle of Lexington the arms of the colony, with the motto "Qui Transtulit Sustinet," which was freely translated "God, Who Transported us Hither, will Support us." Some time later the Provincial Congress ordered that the regiments be distinguished by the colors of their flags. Nothing is positively known as to what flag, or whether any flag, was carried by the Americans at the battle of Bunker Hill, but there is a tradition that one was hoisted at the redoubt with the motto, "Come if You Dare." The generally accepted belief as brought down from early descriptions is that the Bunker Hill flag was blue, with the red cross of St. George and a green pine tree in a white canton in the upper left hand corner. The motto,

"An Appeal to Heaven," was ordered by the Provincial Congress of Massachusetts in 1776, to be borne on the flag of the warships of that colony. This flag was the green pine tree on a white field. The first warships commissioned by Washington sailed under the pine-tree flag. Blue, with a white crescent, was the first revolutionary flag unfurled in the South. This was hoisted on the fortifications of Charleston, September 13, 1775, being the design of Captain William Moultrie, who prepared it at the request of the Council of Safety.

The flag known as the "Great Union" was first unfurled by Washington at Cambridge, on January 2, 1776. It combined the thirteen alternate red and white stripes of the present United States flag, with the St. George and St. Andrew crosses on the blue canton where the stars are now displayed.

The first flag adopted for general use by the ships of the United States as a national ensign consisted of the familiar horizontal stripes, with the British union however, retained in a canton. Commodore Esek Hopkins bore this flag at the mast head of his ship when he sailed with his fleet from the Delaware capes on February 17, 1776. A yellow ensign, with the device of a rattlesnake about to strike, and bearing the motto, "Don't Tread on Me," was carried by Hopkins previous to the introduction of the "Great Union." The snake emblem on many of the flags then used was doubtless suggested by the illustrations at the heads of many of the newspapers of the time, representing a snake in thirteen sections, each inscribed with an abbreviation of the name of a colony and bearing the motto, "Join or Die." Sometimes the snake was represented coiled around the base of a pine tree, and at other times lying at length on a field of thirteen alternate red and white or red and blue stripes. Again, it was coiled in the center on a yellow field.

When the "Great Union," whose official origin is somewhat obscure, was adopted the legal rights of the mother country were still acknowledged by the colonists; hence the combination of the crosses of St. George and St. Andrew was retained. The thirteen red and white stripes were probably derived from the red flag of the army and the white flag of the navy, which were previously in use. It is said that the thirteen stripes were first used in a banner presented by Captain Abraham Markoe to the Light Horse troop of Philadelphia in 1775. This banner is still in the possession of the troop, and is sometimes displayed at its anniversary dinners. The stripes, however, were cantoned in the upper left-hand corner, while the center of the flag contained armorial emblems.

THE NATIONAL FLAG.

The emblems of union with Britain were retained in the American flag until the year after the signing of the Declaration of Independence. As they were then considered altogether inappropriate, Congress decreed, on June 14, 1777, that "the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation." This was the basis of the present United States flag, which only differs in the number of white stars cantoned on the blue, and is the first definitely recorded legislative act for the adoption of a national flag.

The original thirteen States were: New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New York, Delaware, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Georgia. Some of the flags used, when only twelve of the States had ratified the articles of the Convention, bore only twelve stars.

The resolution in relation to the flag was published in the papers in August, but the design was not officially promulgated by Congress until September 3, 1777.

There is a story that the national flag was first unfurled by Paul Jones on the Ranger, he having been appointed to the command of that ship on the very day that Congress passed the national flag resolution. It has long been accepted as a historical fact that the first military display of the flag in battle was made August 2, 1777, when the American garrison at Fort Stanwick, New York, besieged by redcoats and Indians, raised a curiously improvised banner made of shirts cut up to form the white stripes, bits of scarlet cloth joined for the red, and the blue ground for the stars composed of a cloth cloak.

Although tradition speaks of the unfurling of the stars and stripes immediately after the Declaration of Independence, there is no definite evidence of the use of the flag of thirteen stars and thirteen stipes prior to its adoption by the American Congress. George Henry Preble, Rear Admiral, U. S. N., in his "History of the Flag of the United States of America," has this to say:

"Beyond a doubt, the thirteen stars and stripes were unfurled at the battle of Brandywine, September 11, 1777, eight days after the official promulgation of them at Philadelphia, and at Georgetown on the 4th day of October following; they witnessed the operation against and the surrender of Burgoyne, after the battle of Saratoga, October 17, 1777; and the sight of this new constellation helped to cheer the patriots of the army amid their sufferings around camp fires at Valley Forge the ensuing winter. They waved triumphant at the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown, September 19, 1781; looked down upon the evacuation of New York, November 25, 1783; and shared in all the glories of the latter days of the revolution."

It is conceded by all authors of books touching upon the subject, that the first flag combining the stars and stripes was made and partially designed by Elizabeth or "Betsy" Ross, at No. 89 Arch street (now No. 239), Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. Mrs. Ross made the flag after a rough drawing explained to her by General Washington, during the year 1776, for the use of the committee of Congress "appointed to design a suitable flag for the nation." After its adoption by Congress, Mrs. Ross was for many years engaged in making flags for the Government.

The National Flag of the United States is a growth rather than a creation. It is not known with any degree of accuracy by whom the stars were first suggested. Some ascribe their suggestion to John Adams, while others maintain that the design of the whole flag was borrowed from the arms borne by the Washington family. The earliest recorded suggestion of stars as a device is found published March 10, 1774, in the Massachusetts Spy in a song written for the anniversary of the Boston Massacre of March 5, 1770. In poetic fancy, the writer foresees the victories of the American Flag.

"A ray of bright glory now beams from afar,
The American ensign now sparkles a star
Which shall shortly flame wide through the skies."

Still another origin is claimed for the national flag, it being asserted that the blue field was taken from the banner of the Scottish Covenanters, and is, therefore, significant of "the league and covenant of the United States against oppression."

FIFTEEN STARS AND STRIPES.

The thirteen stars on the blue canton in the flag of 1777 were arranged in a circle, although no special form for their disposition was officially prescribed. The stars were probably thus disposed to symbolize the perpetuity of the new Nation, as well as the equality which existed among the States. The national flag in this form continued unchanged until May 1, 1795. In the year before, Senator Bradley of Vermont, whose own State, on March 4, 1791, as also Kentucky on June 1, 1792, had been admitted to the Union, introduced a bill, which passed Congress and was approved January 13, 1794, as follows:

"Be it enacted, etc., That from and after the first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and ninety-five, the flag of the United States be fifteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be fifteen stars, white in a blue field."

This flag floated throughout the war of 1812-14 and was the identical flag that the Chesapeake flew in its famous encounter with the Shannon, off Boston, in 1813.

No provision, however, for future alterations, was made in the Act of 1794, and the admission of the states of Tennessee, June 1, 1796; Ohio, November 29, 1802; Louisiana, April 30, 1812; Indiana, December 11, 1816, and Mississippi, December 10, 1817, made a change in the flag necessary.

THIRTEEN STRIPES, WITH A STAR FOR EVERY STATE.

In 1817, Congress took up the question of altering the flag, and on January 2, 1817, a bill was reported embodying the suggestions of Captain Samuel C. Reid, a naval officer who in 1813 gained renown for his defense of the brig General Armstrong against a vastly superior British force in the Fayal Roads. Captain Reid recommended that the stripes be reduced to the original thirteen, and that stars equal to the number of States in the Union be adopted, formed into one large star, a new star to be added on the fourth day of July next succeeding the admission of any new State.

A long debate ensued, and no final action was taken upon the question during that session of Congress. In the session of 1818, a bill was finally passed fixing the number of stripes permanently at thirteen, but without any regulations for the arrangement of the stars beyond that there should be as many as there were States in the Union. This bill was approved by the President, April 4, 1818, and read as follows:

"AN ACT TO ESTABLISH THE FLAG OF THE UNITED STATES.

"SECTION 1. Be it enacted, etc., That from and after the fourth day of July next, the flag of the United States be thirteen horizontal stripes, alternate red and white; that the union have twenty stars, white in a blue field.

"SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That on the admission of every new State into the Union, one star be added to the union of the flag; and that such addition shall take effect on the fourth of July next succeeding such admission."

The first flag, as thus established in 1818, was made by Mrs. S. C. Reid, of New York, wife of Captain Reid, under the direction of her husband. It was hoisted on the flagstaff of the House of Representatives April 13, 1818, though the law provided that the act should not take effect until the following fourth of July.

The Washington Gazette, under date of April 10, 1818, published the following:

"By this regulation the thirteen stripes will represent the number of States whose valor and resources originally effected American independence; and the additional stars—the idea of which has been borrowed from the science of astronomy—will mark the increase of the states since the adoption of the present Constitution. This is the second alteration which has taken place in the flag of the United States, and we trust it will be the last. There is a manifest inconvenience in altering a national flag; and in the present instance it may, in some degree, prove injurious to our navigation, considering the number of licentious privateers that are abroad. Our merchants and navigators would do well to attend to the alteration in time. The time allowed for the alteration contemplated by the act of the fourth instant is, we fear, too short. It does not allow three months to persons interested to prepare themselves for the change; and it will take one month at least before the provisions of the act will be known at New Orleans."

Stars were added to the constellation as new states were added to the Union in the following order: Illinois, on December 3, 1818, was the first state to be admitted after adopting the flag, and following came Alabama, December 14, 1819; Maine, March 15, 1820; Missouri, August 10, 1821; Arkansas, June 15, 1836; Michigan, January 26, 1837; Florida, March 3, 1845; Texas, December 29, 1845; Iowa, December 28, 1846; Wisconsin, May 29, 1848; California, September 9, 1850; Minnesota, May 11, 1858; Oregon, February 14, 1859; Kansas, January 29, 1861; West Virginia, June 19, 1863; Nevada, October 31, 1864; Nebraska, March 1, 1867; Colorado, August 1, 1876; North Dakota, November 3, 1889; South Dakota, November 3, 1889; Montana, November 8, 1889; Washington, November 11, 1889; Idaho, July 3, 1890; Wyoming, July 10, 1890; Utah, January 4, 1896, and Oklahoma, November 16, 1907. The flag has thus been altered from time to time, until it now contains forty-six stars.

In consequence of the great increase in the number of stars, the circular arrangement, as on the flag of 1777, had to be abandoned, and where the full number of stars are used they are now disposed in parallel lines.

FLAGS OF THE ARMY AND NAVY.

After the establishment of the flag in 1818, the following circulars were issued:

"NAVY COMMISSIONERS' OFFICE, May 18, 1818.

"SIR: The Navy Commissioners have to inform you that agreeably to the Act of Congress of the fourth day of April, 1818, entitled, 'An Act to establish the Flag of the United States,' our national flag is, from and after the fourth day of July next, to be: Thirteen horizontal stripes, alternate red and white. The union to be twenty stars, white in a blue field; one star to be added on the admission into the Union of every new State; such addition to be made from and after the fourth of July next succeeding the date of such admission.

"The size of the flag must be in the proportion of fourteen feet in width and twenty-four feet in length, the field of the union must be one third of the length of the flag, and seven thirteenths of its depth, so that from the top to the bottom of the union there will be seven stripes, and six stripes from the bottom of the union to the bottom of the flag. The manner of arranging the stars you will perceive by the subjoined sketch. The upper and lower stripes to be red.

Respectfully,

"JNO. RODGERS, President.

"To the officer commanding, Navy Yard, Portsmouth, N. H."

This was amended by the following circular:

"NAVY COMMISSIONERS' OFFICE, September 18, 1818.

"SIR: Since our circular of the 18th of May last, relative to the flag to be worn by the vessels of the United States and at our naval stations, it has been determined by the President of the United States that the arrangement of the stars shall correspond with the pattern stated below, and the relative proportions of the flag to continue as stated in our circular. You will govern yourself accordingly.

"On the first hoisting of the flag, you are to fire a salute of twenty guns.

"I am, respectfully, your obedient servant,

"JNO. RODGERS,

"President of the Navy Board.

"Captain Morris, Portsmouth."

The army regulations at the present time, as issued by the War Department, provide:

"ARTICLE XXVIII. PAR. 213. The flag of the United States has thirteen horizontal stripes, seven red and six white, the red and white stripes alternating, and the union of the flag consists of white stars in a blue field placed in the upper quarter next the staff, and extending to the lower edge of the fourth red stripe from the top. The number of stars is the same as the number of states in the Union. On the admission of a State into the Union, one star will be added to the union of the flag, and such addition will take effect on the fourth day of July next succeeding such admission.

"214. The field or union of the national flag in use in the army will, from and after July 4, 1908, consist of forty-six stars, in six rows, the first, third, fourth, and sixth rows to have eight stars, and the second and fifth rows seven stars each, in a blue field, arranged as follows :

"215. The flag of the President shall be of blue bunting, with the official coat of arms of the United States of suitable size in the center, and shall be 10.20 feet hoist. 14.40 feet fly.

"221. The garrison, post, and storm flags are national flags, and shall be of bunting. The union of each is as described in paragraph 214, and shall be one third the length of the flag.

"The garrison flag will have 36 feet fly and 20 feet hoist. It will be furnished only to posts designated in orders from time to time from the War Department, and will be hoisted only on holidays and important occasions.

"The post flag will have 20 feet fly and 10 feet hoist. It will be furnished for all garrisoned posts, and will be hoisted in pleasant weather.

"The storm flag will have 8 feet fly and 4 feet 2 inches hoist. It will be furnished for all occupied posts for use in stormy or windy weather. It will also be furnished to national cemeteries and recruiting stations."

In addition to the national flag, army regimental colors are carried. For infantry regiments, the regulations are (Paragraph 226) :

"The regimental color, of same dimensions as national color, shall be of blue silk having embroidered upon it in colors the official coat of arms of the United States, of suitable size. Below the coat of arms shall be placed a scroll embroidered in red silk, bearing the inscription '——— U. S. Infantry,' embroidered in white silk; the edges to be trimmed with knotted fringe of yellow silk 2½ inches wide; cord and tassels same size as those of national color, to be of blue and white silk strands."

The regimental standard for the cavalry branch of the service is of the same design, but is of yellow silk, instead of blue. Underneath the coat of arms of the United States, as in the infantry, is placed a scroll bearing the number of the regiment. (Par. 227, U. S. Army Regulations.)

Field artillery regiments have a scarlet standard.

In the United States navy a considerable number of flags are in use. The national ensign is the same as prescribed for the army. The "Union Jack" is a dark blue flag with no stripes but with forty-six white stars arranged in parallel lines the entire length of the field. The United States man-of-war pennant is a narrow flag tapering to a point, and is sometimes of great length. It bears thirteen stars on a blue field finished by a streamer of one white and one red stripe. It is known as the "home ward bound" pennant and flies astern of a man-of-war when leaving for a home port. The President's flag for use at sea is the same as that used on land. The flag of the Secretary of the Navy contains an anchor and four white stars arranged in a parallelogram on a blue field. An Admiral's flag is of blue with four white stars arranged as a diamond. A Vice-Admiral's flag has three stars, and a Rear-Admiral's flag two stars, on a blue field. A Commodore's flag is of blue, forked or "swallow tailed" at the end, and bears a single white star in the center. The United States revenue flag contains sixteen red and white stripes running perpendicularly, with the national arms and thirteen stars cantoned in dark blue on a white background in the upper left-hand corner. The quarantine flag is of plain yellow, a color in general use for this purpose among all departments of the Government, military, naval, or civil. The United States yacht ensign has the thirteen stripes arranged as on the national flag, but instead of the forty-six stars shows but thirteen, surrounding a white foul anchor on a blue field. At sea, when the United States ensign is hoisted upside down it is a signal of distress.

CHRONICLES OF THE FLAG.

There are many beautiful and poetic conceptions of the profound meaning contained within the stars and stripes of our national emblem. While some of these interpretations might surprise yet many would without doubt give delight to the original designers of "Old Glory," and so long as it shall "wave o'er the land of the free and the home of the brave," will the immortal poem of Francis Scott Key stir the heart of every true American to patriotic fervor. The author of "The Star-Spangled Banner," was born in Frederick County, Maryland, August 9, 1780, and died in Baltimore January 11, 1843. The song was first published in the Baltimore American eight days after the bombardment of Fort McHenry, Baltimore, September 13, 1814.

The phrase, "I pledge allegiance to my flag and to the republic for which it stands—one nation, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all," which is repeated by pupils in the public schools, accompanying a military salute to the flag, originated with the late J. B. Upham, of Boston, Massachusetts, who was the originator and chief promoter of the school flag movement.

The flag of the United States at the time of the Revolution had thirteen stars; in the War of 1812, fifteen stars; in the Mexican War, twenty-nine stars; in the Civil War, thirty-five stars; and in the Spanish-American War, forty-five stars.

It waved for the first time over a foreign fortress when the Americans took possession of Fort Nassau, on the Island of New Providence, the seat of government of the Bahama Islands, on January 28, 1778.

It was displayed for the first time in a British port in 1783, when it was hoisted by Captain William Mooers, of the American ship "Bedford," of Nantucket, who sailed up the river Thames with a cargo of whale oil and reported at the London Custom House.

The honor of first carrying our flag around the world belongs to the ship "Columbia," built on the North River, Massachusetts, and which sailed out of Boston with Captain John Kendrick, on September 30, 1787, on a trading expedition to the Northwest country. The sloop "Lady Washington," Captain Robert Gray, accompanied as a consort. The two vessels rounded Cape Horn in January, 1788, and proceeded up the Pacific coast to Nootka Sound, where they spent the following winter and summer trading among the Northwest Indians.

The "Columbia" having been loaded with a cargo of furs, it was agreed by the two captains that Kendrick should remain with the sloop upon the coast, while Gray should sail in the "Columbia" for Southern China, which he accordingly did on July 30, 1789, arriving at Canton on the sixth day of December of that year. There he sold his furs, and took on board a cargo of tea, with which he entered Boston harbor August 10, 1790, amid the firing of welcoming salutes. The "Columbia" returned by way of the Cape of Good Hope, thus making the circuit of the globe, for the first time in the history of the stars and stripes.

In a later voyage, on May 7, 1792, Gray discovered a harbor in latitude 46° 58', which he named Bullfinch Harbor, in what is now the State of Washington. This was afterwards renamed Gray's Harbor. Early in the morning of the eleventh day of May, the "Columbia" sailed up the great river which now bears its name. On May 19, 1792, Gray landed with his crew, formally named the river after his famous ship, and claimed it for the United States. Gray's discovery was the foundation of our claim to the Oregon country.

The twin-screw steam schooner "Midas," in 1844, was the first American steamer to carry the flag around the Cape of Good Hope while en route to China.

The first merchant vessel to carry the stars and stripes through the Straits of Magellan was the "Endeavor," Captain David Elwell, in 1824.

In 1839 the pilot boat "Flying Fish," Lieut. W. M. Walker commanding, attached to the Wilkes U. S. Exploring Expedition, carried our flag to the latitude of 70° 14' S. and about longitude 100° W.

The bark "Edith" was the first auxiliary screw steamer under the American flag that went to the British Indies. The "Edith" was launched in 1844, and sailed from New York January 18, 1845; was afterwards chartered by, and finally sold to, the War Department, and sent to California, where the vessel was transferred to the Navy, and was lost off the coast of Santa Barbara.

The first American propeller packet ship to carry our flag to England was the "Massachusetts," which was launched at East Boston July 22, 1845, and sailed from New York September 17, 1845. Like the "Edith," the "Massachusetts" was chartered by the Government, transferred to the Navy Department, and sent to California. During the Civil War the engines were taken out, and the vessel was refitted as a storeship and renamed the "Farallones." After the war the ship was sold in San Francisco, renamed the "Alaska," and engaged in carrying wheat from that port to Liverpool. Pictures of both the "Edith" and the "Massachusetts" are in the Naval Library and Institute at Charlestown.

According to the Boston Daily Advertiser the first stars and stripes were raised in California, at San Diego, by James P. Arther, when mate of the ship "Brookline," while on a trading cruise in the latter part of 1829. The flag was manufactured from shirts, and Arther writes, with the accuracy of a historian, that Mr. George W. Greene's calico shirt furnished the blue, while he furnished the red and white. The same flag was afterwards frequently raised at Santa Barbara. This flag, however, was not raised as an act of sovereignty, but to show the nationality of the party and as a signal to other vessels.

In "The Discovery of Gold in California," Mr. Ed E. Dunbar writes: "In 1841 Commodore Jones, of the United States Navy, impressed that the United States were at war with Mexico, took possession of Monterey, hoisted the 'stars and stripes' there, and proclaimed California a territory of the United States. Discovering his mistake the next day, he hauled down our flag, and made such apology as the circumstances would admit."

The flag was officially raised in California by Commodore Sloat, at Monterey, July 7, 1846, and at San Francisco, by Commander Montgomery of the sloop-of-war "Portsmouth," July 9, 1846, on the Plaza, which was henceforth named "Portsmouth Square."

It was hoisted for the first time in Palestine, by Lieutenant Lynch, March 3, 1848, displayed on the sea of Galilee, April 8, 1848, and on the Dead Sea, April 19, 1848.

On April 11, 1848, it was planted by Lieutenant Stone on the loftiest peak Mount Popocatepetl, Mexico, at an altitude estimated from 17,720 to 18,362 feet.

In May, 1848, a party of nine officers, thirty soldiers, and two sailors started on the ascent of Mount Orizaba, Mexico, which had never before been accomplished but only three army officers and two naval officers succeeded in reaching the summit where, at an altitude which they estimated at over 18,000 feet, they raised the American flag. A correspondent of the New Orleans Delta wrote concerning this feat. "On the highest pinnacle of the frozen summit of Orizaba waves the Star Spangled Banner! So you can tell Mr. Polk, his Cabinet, and all Congress assembled, that they may pass what laws they please, make treaties, and the Mexican issue pronunciamentos, but still will the American flag wave over their country! For who will go up to pull it down?"

When Commodore M. C. Perry landed at Uraga, on the bay of Jeddo, in July, 1853, the American flag was displayed in Japan for the first time; there were twenty-nine stars in its cluster.

In 1856, when, after the Crimean War, Sebastopol was opened to all nations, the first vessel to enter its port was the American ship "Troy," with the stars and stripes flying.

In 1854 it was raised by Dr. I. I. Hayes at Cape Constitution, in latitude $82^{\circ} 27'$, the most northern land that had then been reached by man.

The Army and Navy Journal of November 6, 1880, states that "On the fourth of July, 1879, Lieutenant Frederick Schwatka, U. S. Army, on his remarkable ledge expedition of 3,251 statute miles, unfurled for the first time at Cape Felix, King William's Land, a United States flag, which is now deposited in the Museum of the United States Military Service Institution, on Governor's Island."

One of the first United States flags ever used at sea is still in existence. It is the flag bearing twelve stars which was displayed by Paul Jones from the masthead of his privateer, the "Bon Homme Richard," during the engagement with the English warship "Serapis," on September 23, 1779. In the course of the action the flag was shot away from the masthead, whereupon Lieutenant Stafford, then a volunteer with Jones on his vessel, leaped into the sea after the starry banner, and, though severely wounded in the exploit, succeeded in recovering it and replacing it on the mast. The flag thus so bravely saved by Lieutenant Stafford was afterwards presented to him by the Marine Committee of Congress, and is now cherished as a family heirloom.

AMERICAN FLAG ASSOCIATION.

The American Flag Association was organized February 17, 1898, its motto being, "One Flag, One Country, God over all." Its object is to secure National and State legislation for the protection of the flag from degrading and desecrating uses, and to secure a general observance of June 14th as "Flag Day," because on that day in 1777 Congress adopted the United States flag. The association is composed of individual members and also the members of the flag committees of patriotic societies for the purpose of fostering public sentiment in favor of honoring the flag of our country and preserving it from desecration. It aims to coördinate the efforts of all flag committees. Its officers are as follows: Col. Ralph E. Prime, President, Yonkers, N. Y.; Theodore Fitch, Secretary, 120 Broadway, New York; A. Noel Blakeman, Treasurer, 140 Nassau street, New York.

RESPECT FOR THE FLAG.

(Sons of the Revolution in the State of New York.)

In order to show proper respect for the flag the following ceremony should be observed:

It should not be hoisted before sunrise nor allowed to remain up after sunset.

At "retreat," sunset, civilian spectators should stand at "attention" and uncover during the playing of the "Star Spangled Banner." Military spectators are required by regulation to stand at "attention" and give the military salute.

When the National colors are passing on parade, or in review, the spectator should, walking, halt, and if sitting, arise and stand at attention and uncover.

When the flag is flown at half staff as a sign of mourning it should be hoisted to full staff at the conclusion of the funeral.

In placing the flag at half staff, it should first be hoisted to the top of the staff and then lowered to position, and preliminary to lowering from half staff, it should be first raised to the top.

On Memorial Day, May 30, the flag should fly at half staff from sunrise to noon and full staff from noon to sunset.

The Sixty-first Congress.

Term from March 4, 1909, to March 4, 1911.

NOTE.—Sessions of The Congress begin on the first Monday in December of the odd numbered years, except when it is convened in extraordinary session, as was the case in 1909. Special sessions of the Senate are called in March of years when a President is inaugurated.

The first session convened on Monday, March 15, 1909. At that time the political complexion of State delegations stood as follows:

| Senate— | | House of Representatives— | |
|-------------------|----|---------------------------|----|
| Republicans | 59 | Republicans | 21 |
| Democrats | 32 | Democrats | 17 |
| Vacancy | 1 | Vacancies | |
| Total | 92 | Total | 38 |

In January, 1910, changes had taken place up to that time so that the delegation stood as follows:

| Senate— | | House of Representatives— | |
|-------------------|----|---------------------------|----|
| Republicans | 59 | Republicans | 21 |
| Democrats | 33 | Democrats | 16 |
| Vacancies | | Vacancies | |
| Total | 92 | Total | 37 |

DIPLOMATIC AND CONSULAR SERVICE OF THE UNITED STATES.

CORRECTED TO FEBRUARY 1, 1910.

To insure prompt attention, letters upon consular business should be addressed to the American consul at ----- Such letters are opened and attended to by the person who happens to be in charge of the office. If addressed to the consul by name they are forwarded to him unopened if he should be absent, and a delay thus intervenes; if he should in the mean time have gone out of office they may wholly escape attention.

IV. TARIFF OF UNITED STATES CONSULAR FEES.

Tariff of fees prescribed by order of the President to be charged by consular officer of the United States. All consular charges must be in strict accordance with this tariff, and be collected in gold or its equivalent. No fee or compensation will be collected for any service not covered by this tariff.

(The fees in this tariff are not prescribed for American vessels and seamen, because they are exempted by law from the payment of consular fees. Consular agents will make the fees in this tariff the basis of collection from the Treasury for services to such vessels. Foreign-built vessels, unregistered, owned by American citizens, are not exempt from the payment of the fees prescribed herein.)

| Nature of Service. | Fee. |
|---|------|
| Miscellaneous services. | |

V. COMPENSATION OF CONSULAR AGENTS.

The act for the reorganization of the consular service of the United States, approved April 5, 1906, provides:

"Sec. 8. That all fees, official or unofficial, received by any officer in the consular service for services rendered in connection with the duties of his office or as a consular officer, including fees for notarial services, and fees for taking depositions, executing commissions or letters rogatory, settling estates, receiving or paying out moneys, caring for or disposing of property, shall be accounted for and paid into the treasury of the United States, and the sole and only compensation of such officers shall be by salaries fixed by law; but this shall not apply to consular agents, who shall be paid by one half of the fees received in their offices, up to a maximum sum of one thousand dollars in any one year, the other half being accounted for and paid into the treasury of the United States. And vice-consuls-general, deputy consuls-general, vice-consuls, and deputy consuls, in addition to such compensation as they may be entitled to receive as consuls or clerks, may receive such portion of the salaries of the consuls-general or consuls for whom they act as shall be provided by regulation."

Duties of the Court.

Decisions of contested cases in the collection of customs duties have been in great confusion for several years. It has been exceedingly difficult for the law officers of the Government to obtain consistent interpretations of the various provisions of the tariff law as applied to specific articles. It is believed that by concentrating the responsibility for deciding such cases in a single judicial body much of the confusion that arises from these variations of interpretation will be removed. The new court will decide all contested cases without appeal, except on questions of constitutionality.

The act establishing the court provides as follows:

The said Court of Customs Appeals shall always be open for the transaction of business, and sessions thereof may, in the discretion of the court, be held by the said court, in the several judicial circuits, and at such places as said court may from time to time designate. * * * The said court shall organize and open for the transaction of business in the city of Washington, D. C., within ninety days after the judges, or a majority of them, shall have qualified.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURTS OF APPEALS.

The Chief Justice and the Associate Justices of the Supreme Court assigned to each circuit, and the circuit judges within each circuit, and the several district judges within each circuit, shall be competent to sit as judges of the circuit court of appeals within their respective circuits * * * (Act of March 3, 1891, 1 Sup. R. S., 902.)
